LEAGUE QUESTION
COMING TO FLOOR

Newton D. Baker Appeals From Committee For Direct Plank Favoring Entrance To League.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, June 27.—Thoroughly alarmed by the possibilities of a fight over a Ku Klux Klan plank on the floor of the convention tomorrow, various groups of leaders were in conference tonight seeking to devise some means to smooth out the situation so the convention could get to balloting for a presidential nominee.

One conference was attended by David L. Rockwell, campaign manager for William G. McAdoo; Norman E. Mack, of New York; George Brennan, of Illinois; E. H. Moore, of Youngstown, Ohio; Senator Gerry, of Rhode Island; G. Bruce Kremer, of Montana; McAdoo floor manager; Senator Walsh, of Montana, permanent chairman of the convention; Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, and Chairman Hull, of the democratic national committee.

Friendly in All Respects.

The conference was described as friendly in all respects, and it was said all the participants agreed that the need of the moment was to find some way to keep the Klan fight from coming to the floor of the convention.

Grave fears of the consequences were expressed should the efforts fail.

After the principal conference, the conferes split up into groups and
gates and leaders separately. No specific plan for avoiding the open fight was advanced, but all the participants were engaged actively in the attempt to find one before morning.

Members of the democratic national executive committee, who had interested themselves in the move to bring about a semblance of harmony on the Klan issue, said, after hours of hasty telephoning and conference around the various state headquarters, that some sort of a compromise, while not yet advanced to the realm of possibilities, was at least a mutual goal of the hitherto hopelessly divergent groups.

Working to Same End.

J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, vice chairman of the national committee, and McAdoo floor manager, said after a protracted effort of conciliation that "We now have two divergent groups working in the same direction for the first time since the convention began."

"How far the negotiations will be successful cannot yet be determined, but all those who have the matter in hand still are determined, so far as we can learn, to exhaust every possibility before the question goes to the floor tomorrow morning."

A Difficulty of the Peace Endeavor,

It was pointed out by those close to the helm, was that in the first coming-together of the rival forces tonight, no specific and definite plan of action or ultimate aim could be agreed upon.

LEAGUE AND KLAN GO TO FLOOR TODAY.

New York, June 27.—A minority report on the League of Nations question, as well as on the Ku Klux Klan issue, will be presented tomorrow to the convention.

When Fur Began to Fly
In Atlanta Politics

Only about 3,000 people lived here in 1850
when Atlanta saw its first political campaign.

The "Moral Party" supported Jonathan Norcross, while the candidate of the "Rowdy Party" was L. C. Simpson. In the heat and excitement of the contest, Norcross' supporters were treated to apples and candies; Simpson's headquarters were said to have served up whisky and other ancient brews.

The "Moral Party" carried the day.

Since then this city's interest in politics has grown with the increase of population. Candidates, voters and disinterested onlookers find no more dependable medium for political news than the columns of The Atlanta Constitution, which—fifteen years before any other Atlanta newspaper was even in existence—began publishing for Southern readers reliable news of world statesmanship.

GERMANY ACCEPTS SMITH IS POINT
ALLIED CONTROL OF FLYING WEDGE OF HER MILITARY TO CRUSH M'ADOO

Marx Shoulders Junkers Out of Way As He Puts Final Touches on Note of Surrender.

BY ERIC KEYSER.

Berlin, June 27.—The German government has definitely accepted inter-allied control of Germany's military organizations.

Despite the fiery objections of the junkers, the government completed a note to the allies Friday, agreeing to a final inspection of the organizations which have caused anxiety abroad.

The accent is on the "final" in the note. Having embarked on a course which is not approved by reactionary groups, the government wishes to settle the question in definite fashion. The note is being forwarded to Paris and will be handed to the allies between now and Monday, when it probably will be published.

Marx Is Blunt.

Chancellor Marx put the final touches to the note Friday noon after conferences with the nationalists with whose protests he dealt firmly and briefly.

Marx told them, according to reliable information, that their interference in the situation was not desired. Considerable surprise has been caused by his attitude toward the group which was led by the powerful nationalist leader, Admiral von Tirpitz, of U-boat fame.

Expect No Sabotage.

The correspondence between Premier Herriot and von Hoesch, German ambassador to Paris, has been published. Discussing renewal of the so-called M. I. C. U. M. contracts whereby German industrialists agreed to give Ruhr deliveries in kind to the French, Herriot pointed out that the London conference is coming in mid-July, that he hoped the question of the experts' report will be settled shortly, and that he thus saw little occasion for government to government negotiations which would last only a few weeks.

GIRL IN HOSPITAL
AFTER DRINKING
DOSE OF POISON

In a serious condition from the effects of poison which she took early Friday afternoon because her father,
C. F. Verhime, of 269 East Fair street, denied her permission to visit a picture show, Alma, 15-year-old pretty school girl, was under the observation of physicians at the Grady hospital Friday night.

Quick work by doctors at the hospital with the stomach pump, together with a record run of the embulance, enabled the girl to have a fighting chance to live, it was said.

According to the story the poison victim told doctors upon her arrival at the hospital, she wanted to see a movie show, and when her father refused this privilege, she rushed into her room, where she said she drank poison.

MANAGER PLANS COUP TO STAMPEDE VOTES

Californian Plans for William Jennings Bryan To Electrify Convention in Speech.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

New York, June 27.—(Special).—
The McAdoo leaders openly, designated and militantly dumped the Ku Klux Klan today.

This was specifically forecasted
last night.

The dumping process began yesterday when Major Cohen was quoted as saying there were no Klan delegates from Georgia, and when prepared statements were given out by Judge Rockwell denying that his candidate had any Klan allegiances or any Klan sympathies.

As an offset to this, however, there were further circulations of a secret order issued by the grand dragon of Georgia asking all Klan delegates to attend the McAdoo convention in Atlanta and to support Major Cohen for committeeman because he had agreed to protect the Klan's interests at the New York convention.

Issued Anti-Klan Orders.

During the night, fully aware that the Klan pillory was choking their candidate to death, a program of seconding speeches from all the Mc-Adoo states that had not already been called in the nomination roll was prepared and the speakers coached that the Klan should either be directly denounced by name or that the liberty guarantees of the federal constitution should be stressed as a McAdoo characteristic.

Hence it was that an Irishman from North Dakota denounced the Klan by name in one breath and lauded William Gibbs McAdoo, whose nomination he seconded, in the other.

When he pronounced McAdoo's name, the Georgia delegation, which has stood a lot of finger pointing and none too kindly kidding as a "Klan delegation," jumped up on its chairs and put its flag as high in the air as they could.

Delegate Dodges Questioner.

The McAdoo women delegates screamed. The men roared. They cheered and cheered and shouted for McAdoo. An Evening World reporter met Mr. O'Connor, the World Irishman, and asked him if his speech was the result of instructions by Judge Rockwell, the McAdoo manager.

"I refuse to say," he said, and

Al Smith's Famous War Song
Inspired by Beef and Beer

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, June 27.—The man who wrote Al Smith's battle hymn, "The Sidewalks of New York," sat on the edge of a dog-eared theatrical trunk in a dressing room beneath the stage of a little vaudeville house in Brooklyn. He is 72 years old.

He is blind. There was a rabbit's foot in a dish of face powder on the make-up shelf and an old pair of character pants dangled by green suspender from a nail on the wall. Down the iron stairway from the stage came the harmony of a couple of fifty singers, which at that distance sounded like a man being strangled.

"I wonder," said old Charlie Lawlor, who got picked one night 30 years ago and wrote the anthem of the East Side, "I wonder would Tom Foley or Al Smith or any of them boys remember me well enough to get me into that convention where they've been singin' my song. I've got a show at 2:15 in the afternoon and another at 8:45 in the evening, but maybe if they'd get me into the Garden, I could go there for one of the morning sessions or after I've done me act at night. They say Tom can get anybody into any place, or out, for that matter."

"But he might not remember me," said old Charlie. "It's a long time ago since I was around with the boys on the Bovy."

"I mind the night I got up that song about the sidewalks of New York. They were having a beef steak ladies' night at the old Annanda club and Charlie Murphy—rest his soul, he was a good man and don't let them tell you any different—Charlie had a beer-saloon downstairs. I was there, singin' some of my songs like "The Best in the House Is None Too Good for Riley," and "The Mick What Threw the Brick," and everybody was havin' an elegant time they was.
They was beef-steaks and chops and Irish ham and all kinds of them German pickled things and beer and champagne and cigars and wine and all. Oh, dear, I mind those old nights well. And how you used to get some of the boys together and roll in a leg from the saloon next door and knock the bung out of it and every-body'd sing "Hi Lee, Hi Lo," and eat pretzels. Al Smith was only a young fellow, an assemblyman, I think he was then, and he used to drink a few steins and eat pretzels with us down at the Seymour club on Madison street."

"Well, this night I'm talkin' about I got to thinkin', you know, the way you will when you get squiffed, and which continued for approximately an hour after Senator Phelan, of California, had placed William Gibbs McAdoo in nomination.

BATTLE LOOMING
OVER STATE TAX ON CIGARETTESHouse Adjourns After Skirmish Over Bill To Require Autoists to Stop at Grade Crossings.

After two or three sharp parliamentary skirmishes on Friday morning, the house of representatives of the Georgia general assembly adjournd at 1 o'clock, not to meet again until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Introduction of a new bill providing for repeal of the state cigar and cigarette tax act, and a bitter fight on a motion to reconsider the bill which would require all Georgia motorists to stop fifty feet from every railroad and interurban line grade crossing were the high lights of the session.

While the house was debating in old-time form the senate adjourned after a session lasting only fifteen minutes, during which practically no matters of importance came up.

Compels Complete Stop.

The bill providing that all machines come to a complete stop before driving over grade crossings was passed in the senate and defeated in the house last year. Notice that reconsideration would be asked was made, however.

Debate lasting over an hour developed Friday when this motion to reconsider was put. Among those speaking in favor of the bill were Barrett, of Stephens; W. R. Jones, of Meriwether; Fleming, of Hancock, and others. Opposition was led by Linder, of Jeff Davis; Wimberly, of Laurens; Pope, of Walker, and others.

A call for the yeas and nays was carried and the roll call resulted 74 for reconsideration and 70 against.
Final passage of the bill, so amended as to remedy certain objections, is considered probable.

Cigar Tax Repeal.

Stanford, of Lowndes, introduced the bill to repeal the state cigarette and cigar tax, which was passed during the special session last fall and only went into effect last January 1.
A sharp parliamentary fight was precipitated over the committee to which it was to be referred. Representative Stanford asked unanimous consent that the bill be referred to the committee on agriculture, number 1, of which he is a member. This motion was lost.

Motions were made asking that it be referred to several other committees, all of which were lost until a vote to place it in the hands of the ways and means committee carried.
Sponsors of the bill stated that they were not satisfied with this result, however, and would attempt to have the bill referred to another and more friendly body next week.

Mrs. T. E. Burson, 32, of 8 Carr street, was shot to death Friday night by her husband, who then shot himself through the throat and is believed to be dying at Grady hospital.
The tragedy occurred shortly after the two had retired for the night and followed a violent quarrel earlier at night, according to neighbors, although no motive for the shooting has been learned. Jalcusy on the part of Burson is hinted.

The first shot, believed to have been fired while the two lay in bed, struck Mrs. Burson in the knee and she ran through an adjoining room and into the front yard of a neighbor, crying for help, closely pursued by the enraged husband, who continued to shoot at the fleeing form.

Four Shots Find Mark.
Near the front door of a neighbor's house, the woman collapsed, four bullets having found their marks in the right side.

Burson, with smoking gun, ran to her side and for a moment attempted to raise her dying form in his arms, then suddenly changing his mind, carefully placed the body again on the ground and fired a bullet into his neck, falling beside his dying wife.

Mrs. Mattie Lee Bratcher, 25, a niece of the dead man, who was sleeping in an adjoining room with the three orphaned Burson children, stated that she was awakened shortly before midnight by the sharp report of a revolver and the screams of Mrs. Burson, who rushed into her room. Frightened, Mrs. Bratcher ran

MEMORIAL HEARING
TODAY POSTPONED

Illness in Venable Family Causes Injunction Suit To Be Put Off Indef-nitely.

Hearing on injunction proceedings instituted in DeKalb county superior court by the Stone Mountain Mentorial association against S. H. Venable, scheduled to come up this morning, has been postponed indefinitely on account of illness in Mr. Venable's family.

Judge John B. Hutcheson, of De-Kalb superior court, said Friday night he would sign an order this morning postponing the hearing indefinitely for the reasons stated, and in reply to a query, said he had no idea when the matter would be called up.

In the meantime, the temporary injunction restraining Mr. Venable from alleged interference with construction of the Confederate memorial on Stone Mountain is still in effect.

Charges of Venable.
Much interest centered about the hearing owing to charges that officials of the association, headed by Hollins Randolph, had been guilty of "wild-eyed extravagance" in handling funds subscribed by the general public to complete the memorial. In a public statement on June 11, the day following the signing of a temporary restraining order, Mr. Venable made charges of a sensational nature against officials of the association, referring particularly to administration of public contributions and high salaries of officials. Mr. Venable and his two sisters, Mrs. Walter G. Roper and Mrs. Priestly Orme, owners of Stone Mountain, gave their permission for the carving of the great memorial.

ANCIENT STRATAGEM BEHIND M'ADOO MOVE

Nomination Before Adop-

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 27.—Now the preliminaries—some picturesque, some dull—are over, and sleeves are being rolled up for the real fight that will make this democratic national convention historic.

The first phase comes Saturday when the Klan issue comes to the floor of the convention. Madison Square Garden, the citadel of boxing, has never seen a fight like that will be. For a week the trouble has been simmering, and now everyone is keyed up for the climax. For the time being, it will overshadow entirely the question of a candidate. The candidate fight will come later Saturday.

Resolutions To Be Miled.

The platform committee, struggling to settle the Klan issue inside the committee and thus avoid a floor fight, seems to have abandoned hope.
It probably will report out a mild plank not mentioning the hooded order. A minority report denouncing the Klan by name will be presented on the convention floor and a vote taken after debate. The same procedure appears likely over the league, though a compromise still is possible.

While the platform committee was working on these questions, the convention sat through a long, deadly day of oratory. There were some six hours of speeches—mostly of wearisome length, reciting in hackneyed phrases the wonders of the various candidates. There is, it would seem, not a mediocre man in the lot. All are matches of leaders, followers of the idealism of Woodrow Wilson, untouchable by scandal, and they believe that the laws should be enforced.

Six Names Offered.

The following candidates were placed in nomination Friday:
Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio.
Governor Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska.

Governor Fred H. Brown, of New Hampshire.
John W. Davis, of West Virginia.
Governor George S. Silzer, of New Jersey.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia.
Governor Brown, of New Hampshire, is the most unique of the group. He is the only democratic governor New Hampshire has had in years and the first ex-baseball professional to be put up for the white house job. He played in the National league years ago.

Baker Given Ovation.
Newton D. Baker, who placed Cox in nomination, received a remarkable personal tribute from the convention.

Public Service Companies Make Prosperous Showing

According to figures given out in the annual report of the Georgia public service commission, made public Friday, public service corporations operating in the state for the year ending December 31, 1923, made a prosperous showing: large extensions and developments to properties were reported.

The Georgia Railway & Power Co. completed its Tugalo hydro-electric development with an installed capacity of 88,000 horsepower. The Morgan Falls hydro-electric plant was increased to afford an annual output of approximately 20,000,000 k. w. h., bringing the total hydro-electric power in use in the state of 515,500 horsepower.

The commission reported progress of continuation of revision of railroad rates on commodities throughout the state, with a view to removing any discriminations between localities. Rates on many important commodities were prescribed and made effective November 15, 1923, and schedules of rates on a number of other important commodities are now under consideration.

The commission points out that interstate express rates, determined by the interstate commerce commission for general application, if made final, will be approximately the same as the present Georgia rates. No order has been made as to when the interstate rates would be made effective.

An inspection of the Western & Atlantic railroad, supervision of which was delegated the commission under the lease act of 1916, has been made and the commission reports the road in first-class condition.

Financial Operations.
A summary of financial operations of corporations subject to jurisdiction of the commission for 1923 is contained in the report. The summary follows:
Railroad companies, gross earnings, $97,559,652.95; operating expenses, $83,897,174.32; terminal companies, gross earnings, $349,906.57; operating expenses, $744,660.16; telegraph and express companies, $8,505,009.10; operating expenses, $6,684,962.93; street railways, gas and electric companies, $3,578,885.48; gross earnings and $2,812,301.13; operating expenses; telephone companies, gross earnings, $7,449,261.71; operating expenses, $5,401,285.33; cotton compress companies, gross earnings, $1,241,233.27; operating expenses, $883,541.54.

GRAND JURY REFUSES TO INDICT TINNEY

New York, June 27.—The grand jury today declined to indict Frank Tinney, actor-comedian, on charges of assault made by Imogene Wilson, "Follies" chorus girl, and the complaint was dismissed.

The refusal to indict followed the appearance of Tinney before the grand jury. Miss Wilson charged that Tinney assaulted her in her apartment on the night of May 28.

The Perfect Oil for Cooking and Salads

EVERY cook knows how tiresome is the "creaming-in" process of cake making. Use Mazola instead of butter and a cake is made in less than one-half the time. Mazola eliminates the "creaming-in" process.

In any of your recipes—use one-fourth to one-third less Mazola than the amount of butter called for. This means real economy also. You will never miss the butter in the finished cake.

For deep frying Mazola is preferred to lard and other animal fats. No smoky or soggy cooking.

Duke's Home-Made Mayonnaise

Just as delicious as you can make it, for it is made in the self-same way—with fresh country eggs and finest salad oils.

Conveniently packaged in glass jars of three convenient sizes, it is always ready to serve. Buy it by the dozen, for it keeps indefinitely.

Atlanta To Make Exhibit At New York Exposition

Decision of the chamber of commerce to present an Atlanta exhibit at the Southern Industrial exposition, which is to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, next January, is the latest result of efforts to obtain for Georgia the $5,000 worth of advertising offered by the Manufacturers' Record as a prize for the best state showing.

Aside from the prize, however, it was the opinion of E. S. Walker, secretary of the chamber, that the publicity resulting from participation in the big two-weeks' show, in which eleven southern states will be represented, will reward amply all exhibitors. With this in mind, he will ask all industrial firms in the city to cooperate in making Atlanta's exhibit live up to her already high reputation.

This Georgia committee is composed of the following: E. S. Walker, manager of the Savannah board of trade, chairman; R. E. L. Neal, Albany, vice chairman; J. Ralston Carrell, Columbus; B. S. Barker, Atlanta; and Spencer J. Hart, Augusta. The local Atlanta committee will be appointed in the near future.

The purpose of the exposition is to bring to the attention of the whole country the remarkable progress in industrial development made by the south in recent years.

Klan Robes and Hoods Waste HOT ANTI-KLAN PLANK OFFERED BY WOMEN Good Bed Linen, Say Women

BY MAXINE DAVIS.
New York, June 27.—White hoods and shrouds are not popular with the ladies. They think it's no way to waste sheets.
Feminine delegates to the democratic national convention are almost unanimous in condemning something they are not invited to join and are ready to fight for a good strong anti-Klan plank.
Even in states where the sentiment is largely divided, the women stand solidly for an emphatic expression of opinion on the secret order, although they are hesitant about announcing it.

The women took the lead in announcing their position on the Klan when Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's women's advisory committee, composed of the leading women in public welfare and civic activities in the country, wrote a strong anti-Klan plank into the platform they presented to the resolutions committee, although they did not call the organization by name. Texas has sent a strong Klan delegation to the convention and here the women stand by their men folk, presenting the argument that the democratic party has no right to have any opinion whatever on any individual organization.

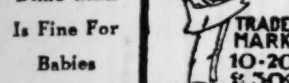

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, of Chicago, a McAdoo woman, joins the other women of her delegation in opposing the Klan and the Ohio delegation has the Klan and the Ohio delegation has the Klan and the Ohio delegation has the Klan.

all the demonstrations. Nevertheless, if you looked at that demonstration with a background of political information, you know that it proved not Smith's strength, but his utter weakness, so far as concerns the coming nomination.

Smith Weakness Evident.
In the parade of the various delegations to Smith there were 16 units of a total of 54. That portion was significant enough. But consider what delegations they were. Two of them were the outlying orphans, Alaska and the Philippines, who have no choice in choosing a president. Another was the District of Columbia, which likewise has no vote. A fourth was Nevada, which has just three electoral votes out of 531. A fifth was Vermont, which has never gone democratic within the memory of man and which certainly will not begin in a year when its own native son is the republican candidate. A sixth was Wisconsin, which has not gone democratic since 1884. A seventh was New Jersey, according to a time-tested adage of politics, "will not change its mind," and has just three electoral votes out of 531. A eighth was Pennsylvania, which has not gone democratic in 50 years. A ninth was North Dakota, which is almost as republican as Iowa or Pennsylvania and has only five electoral votes anyhow. The tenth was Pennsylvania itself, which has not gone democratic since the Civil war, a mere fungus in the democratic cosmos. The eleventh was Massachusetts, which is hardly to be carried by the democrats in the year when its own native son is the republican nominee. The twelfth was Illinois, which is almost as republican as Pennsylvania. Then there was New York, which is always going to elect a democratic president, but hasn't done so since 1892, except in 1912, when the republicans split—New York, which was running for governor, gave a republican presidential candidate a million majority. There remains out of these fifteen states parading for Smith just one, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Now, that parade of Smith states was thrilling; but politically it amounted to nothing. If you didn't get about politics, you might get hope out of the parade. If this is a political convention, it will never give the nomination to a man whose strength is only in this parade. But maybe this is not a political convention. The parade has been signs that it is something else. The true inference from that Smith demonstration, fine as it was, was not Smith's strength, but his weakness.

Taggart wants to nominate Ralston for president and Taggart knows perfectly well the only way that can be done is to keep him out of sight. Let the leaders and delegates see Ralston ambulating the hotel corridors or hunched up in his chair, and all thought of making him the candidate would vanish. His physical unfitness for the presidency is a campaign or the burden of the presidency would be apparent. Ralston himself has not hesitated to say privately to his friends that the notion of taking up the burden of the presidency would entail thoroughly frightens him. Nevertheless, there are some seasoned observers who tonight look upon Ralston as the most likely compromise candidate. Certainly there is every indication of giving him a "good ride." Ralston has made no record of a kind of an alienate any large element of voters. One reason for this is his typical, plug-hat mediocrity.

The mere fact that these sentences—and others even more pungently positive—have been written and printed in such a democratic source should almost be enough, alone, to disqualify Ralston. Fancy how the republicans would reproduce them in the campaign.

Other Strong Dark Horses.
The more thoughtful democratic leaders hope the convention will not reach a point where this sort of incoherent compromise is made. They hope that the McAdoo-Smith deadlock is inconclusive, it will be John W. Davis or Carter Glass. And there are others besides these. Some of the progressive democrats are strongly for Senator Robinson, of Arkansas. Senator Walsh, of Montana, is strongly to the front of many minds. No man who has appeared before the convention has evoked a better impression or has evoked warmer admiration. Walsh has as much intellectual distinction as John W. Davis or Carter Glass. He is a Catholic; but it is a sign of the true spirit of the convention that Walsh's religion is not a serious handicap. Walsh, unlike Smith, is Catholic plus dry and minus Tammany. Walsh could get practically all the McAdoo strength. The anti-McAdoo leaders, so far as they are primarily wet, would like to turn to Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, or Senator Underwood, Underwood's handicap is that he submitted himself to state after state, even in his own south, and was everywhere, been except in his own state of Alabama. Underwood is now in a position where he has very few delegates of his own and can only be in the position of being a beneficiary of Tammany and the other old-guard leaders. Underwood would be opposed by the McAdoo delegates almost as firmly as Smith. Bryan has come out in opposition to Underwood, citing in detail Underwood's long opposition to prohibition. And this is a dry convention. Only by some trick of strategy can any wet win.

Smith Really Big Man.
When you heard Franklin Roosevelt's speech Thursday nominating Governor Smith, when you looked at Roosevelt's own fine presence, and when you saw the demonstration for Smith, you almost wished you could sandbag your knowledge of practical politics for an hour and permit yourself to think that Smith's chances are in proportion to the enthusiasm of his supporters. Nothing but big personal qualities in a man could give occasion to the kind of demonstration Smith got from his people. There was in it more than enthusiasm and more than affection. There was the higher quality of respect and regard.

And the sort of speech Franklin Roosevelt made could only be inspired in the sort of man Roosevelt is by genuine and high conviction. The candidate he was talking about. It was one of the very best nominating speeches this writer has ever heard of. He has heard, oh, Lord, how many. There was in it a true eloquence. Also there was a trained mind back of the choice of words. The rest of the speech that made Roosevelt refer to the republicans as "the adversary" instead of "the enemy" was alone enough to distinguish this from other speeches.

Roosevelt's Personality Impressive.
And Roosevelt's personality was as impressive as his speech. He had dignity and force and in his countenance, the marks of a fine mind kept in training by constant exercise. One got the idea that the convention would make no mistake if it should name Roosevelt himself. This writer will never listen with patience to those malicious "smart Alecks" who try to belittle this Roosevelt in comparison with his great cousin, Theodore, by calling him "Roosevelt, Jr." If anybody in the audience still thought of Governor Smith as an ordinary Tammany candidate, they must have been corrected by that nominating speech. Roosevelt would not and could not not have made that speech about Smith unless Smith were a big and able man.

It is not too much to say that today's events put Smith's candidacy on the highest plane. The demonstration that followed the speech could not have come from any but a community that holds its governor in something far above ordinary liking and respect. It was by far, very much by far, the most impressive of house Friday was one by Linder, of Jeff Davis, to change the time of meeting of the general assembly to the first Wednesday in January. Mr. Linder states that passage of this bill would be desirable in that it would allow with the long wait between sessions of the assembly members and the convening of their first session.

Bussey, of Crisp, introduced a bill to appropriate $85,000 to the University of Georgia to meet requirements of the Smith-Lever fund for 1924. In addition to Mr. Bussey the bill was signed by Ellis of Tift, Rozeman of Worth, Shedd of Wayne, Tyson of McIntosh, Holton of Wilcox and others. It provides that "in addition to the sum provided by the appropriation act of 1923 there is hereby appropriated to the State College of Agriculture for the fiscal year of 1924 and to become available July 1, 1924, the sum of $85,000 to meet requirements of what is known as the Smith-Lever bill.

The federal funds referred to are for the compensation of county agents. They are given on the basis of an equal division of costs between the federal government, the state college and the counties. Georgia is unable, because of lack of funds for the college, to meet its share of the expense to provide agents for counties without them at present, it is said.

Stewart, of Atkinson, introduced a bill to make the state veterinarian subject to election every two years. Instead of holding his office during "good behavior," as at present.

Langley, of Floyd, introduced a bill changing the method of reviewing cases by the supreme court and court of appeals, with a view to relieving the crowded condition of the docket in both these appellate courts.

Another interesting bill was introduced by Rowe, of Richmond, which would consolidate the offices of tax receiver and tax collector and to abolish the fee system of payment for certain county officers, substituting salaries set by the legislature.

Blease, of Brooks, introduced a bill to provide for a state agricultural board of 15 members, which would hold office for six years and would select the commissioner of agriculture and all heads of bureaus under this department. The board would be appointed by the governor.

A resolution as introduced and referred to the committee on agriculture No. 2, calling for investigation of alleged wrongdoing of the city of Atlanta on state owned property along the W. & A. railroad.

SENATE ADJOURNS OVER TO MONDAY IN SHORT SESSION

With several pieces of legislation ready for consideration next week, the Georgia senate, after a brief session of less than 15 minutes Friday, adjourned until 11 o'clock Monday morning. Only a single new bill was introduced Friday, and last session were read for the third time, as they were read, motions were made and carried that discussion be postponed until next week.

Probably the most important of these bills, which will be taken up next week, is the proposal to repeal the tax equalization law, which was passed by the house last session. A motion was carried to consider the measure Tuesday.

The new bill introduced in the upper house Friday was by Senator Mason, of the 13th district, seeking to abolish the school system in the town of Bowersville in Hart county. It was referred to the committee on special judiciary.

Consider Viaduct Bill Wednesday.
The viaduct bill, which was ordered put back on the senate calendar Thursday at a session of the rules committee, was read in the senate Friday and will be considered next Wednesday. The measure calls for amendment of the charter of Atlanta, permitting the construction of viaducts over the railroad tracks at Pryor street and Central avenue. The bill was passed by the house at its last session and was favorably reported on by the senate committee in whose hands it has been.

Other bills, read for the third time in the senate Friday and deferred until Tuesday, Wednesday of next week, included one by Senator Hamby, of the 40th district, to change the county line where a non-navigable stream forms the boundary. A bill to amend the constitution to consolidate the offices of tax receivers and tax collectors was postponed for consideration until Tuesday, on motion of Senator Grantham, of the 46th district.

Senate Bill No. 50, an act to amend paragraph 1, section 2, article 7, of the state constitution, which would authorize the assembly to classify property for taxation as affects rates and methods for different classes of property, and for taxes to be imposed on inheritances, privileges and occupations, with provisions for reasonable exemption, was postponed indefinitely.

A meeting of the subcommittee of the state sanitarian was held after the regular senate session, but nothing was brought up for consideration, and the committee adjourned until a later date.

The general judiciary committee Friday reported recommendation of two measures, one to amend section 310 of the penal code regarding trespass to include ornamental trees, wild flowers, etc. Another would change the term of court of the Flint county circuit.

AL SMITH'S FAMOUS WAR SONG INSPIRED

I say to myself, 'Lawlor,' I say, 'now why don't you write a real big hit like Jimmy Thornton's been doing?' And as I'm walking home, watching my step—oh, wasn't I loaded that night!—I got to thinking, 'The Sidewalks of New York.' Well, I got home and went to bed and the next morning I went around to Jim Blake—his brother, of Judge Blake and he must be 108 years old now, but the last I hear of him he's out on the road selling carpets.

"Jim," I says, 'I got a hit,' and he says, 'where?' just like my wife, and I says again, 'On the Sidewalks of New York.'

"So we sat down together and I got up the tune and he both got up the words. You know the way it runs? It goes:

The Sidewalks of New York.
"Down in front of Casey's old brown wooden stoop

M'ADOO DEFEATED IN SECOND EFFORT

the entire body of delegates rising to applaud when he took the platform. This has not been done for anyone else.

Both Smith and McAdoo were kept before the convention throughout the day by means of seconding speeches. The effect of this short simple speech on the crowd was electric. She received a five-minute ovation.

McAdoo Man Blasts Klan.
Just previously the Klan had been criticized by name in a McAdoo seconding speech by J. F. T. O'Connor, of North Dakota.

O'Connor made his attack on the Klan before he revealed who it was he was seconding. So the anti-Klan states, many of whom are anti-McAdoo, set up a great cheering leading on chairs and waving their hats. McAdoo states like Kansas sat silent through this. Then, in his next sentence O'Connor announced that he seconded the nomination of McAdoo. The applause was reversed. The eastern anti-McAdoo states who a moment before had gone wild, sat silent while Kansas, Texas and the other McAdoo sections hopped up cheering.

Pennsylvania made seconding speeches for Smith, McAdoo, Underwood and Governor Ritchie of Maryland. During the latter speech, Mrs. Mary E. Herbert, a young Philadelphia matron, appeared on the platform holding up a husky Rhode Island Red rooster.

One 14-Word Speech.
The most popular speaker of the day was Mrs. Averill Beavers, of Washington, who, upon being introduced, said "Washington considers it a great honor to second the nomination of William G. McAdoo," and retired. This 14-word speech was so completely unique that the appreciative crowd gave a friendly hand to the little woman who had been so considerate of it.

Governor Selzer, of New Jersey, was given a loud demonstration. It was organized on the Al Smith model, but on a much smaller scale. It was the greatest of the favorite s-s-s demonstrations. Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, was almost as strong and had the disadvantage of lacking the organized lung power that Selzer workers had imported from nearby Jersey.

Cox received a big hand and Newton D. Baker brought the crowd to its feet several times with his endorsement of the league of nations, Woodrow Wilson's policies and the qualities of Cox.

Ohio Joins New York.
John W. Davis was presented as a progressive by Judge Holt, of West Virginia, and the nomination was seconded by Mrs. Izzetta Jewell Brown, the former actress, striking voice made an impression on the crowd despite the fact that she came at the tag end of an exhausting series of oratory.

It was a hard day, but there was yet one more speaker to be heard. Martin L. Lueck, of Wisconsin. He had a thundering voice which could not be drowned out by the cries of the impatient delegates who wanted to get out and eat, having subsisted on chewing gum since 11:30 a. m. then the Tammany crowd discovered he was to second Al Smith's nomination. When he finished, he let go a wild yell. Wisconsin ran around to the New York section with her standard. Massachusetts joined and the group gradually enlarged until there was a small forest of standards clustered around that of New York which was held high above the others. Finally Ohio joined the group—a new member of the Smith celebrants. The Smith crowd welcomed the recruit with a big cheer. Rhode Island, Iowa and several others joined.

Hunger Strike Show.
Meanwhile two little urchins, one a dirty-faced little girl with beautiful long red curls in infant's overalls, and a little boy with a still dirtier face, were lifted upon the speakers' table on the platform. Each wore an Al Smith placard designed like an automobile license. They clapped their hands and the crowd gave them a big hand.

The band swung into Al's song, "East Side, West Side," and for five minutes the old garden shook with the racket. But it was soon over. Enthusiasm doesn't last long on an empty stomach. This was the end of the nominating speeches.

Ed Moore, of Ohio, moved adjournment until 8:30 eastern standard time Saturday. He explained that the platform committee would be unable to finish Friday night. A Tennessee delegate moved that the motion be tabled. "If the platform committee can't agree, we can't," he shouted. Walsh overruled him and put the question, which was carried with an almost unanimous shout.

Previously there had been a confusing series of conferences among convention leaders. McAdoo people wanted to meet again Friday night and to ahead with the balloting and let the platform question wait until afterward. But the Smith-Brennan-McAdoo alliance refused to permit McAdoo to have this advantage. They wanted to smoke the convention out first on the Klan question. It was the same issue as was at stake Thursday night when the McAdoo floor manager let the question come to a vote of the reasons for, only to be beaten by the allied leaders. This time, finding themselves unable to reach an agreement behind the scenes, the McAdoo people withdrew their efforts and submitted to an adjournment.

This means that the party platform with respect to the Klan will be drawn before the convention nominates its candidate.

It will avoid the situation which developed in 1904 when Alton B. Parker, by a maneuver such as the McAdoo people are now trying to execute, was nominated before the platform was adopted. Then, as the presidential nominee, he demanded that the convention adopt a gold standard plank in place of the silver plank which seemed about to go through. He threatened to refuse the nomination unless a gold platform was adopted. The oldtimers here are now on guard against McAdoo's accomplishing the same stroke with regard to the Klan.

SMITH MANAGERS DENY TRADE OFFER

New York, June 27.—Leaders of the movement to bring about the presidential nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, asserted tonight their readiness to test strength with other candidates and begin balloting for the prize as soon as the party platform has been adopted by the convention.

"Developments of the day have been most encouraging," Franklin D. Roosevelt, manager of the Smith campaign, said.

"We have received pledges of support from some of the south and southwestern delegates."

Mr. Roosevelt denied emphatically that he or any of the Smith workers had attempted to "bribe" for support, or had promised to throw their strength to candidates put forward for the vice-presidency in return for Smith support.

"Such reports are utter rubbish," Mr. Roosevelt said.

"I consider the dissemination an unfriendly act. Those who have swung into our columns have done so entirely of their own accord and moreover they understand that the pledges were accepted only on condition that they would stay with us to the end."

The denial of any bargaining for support as made by Mr. Roosevelt referred to a statement issued under the name of Phineas V. Stephens, of New York, through the headquarters of Representative William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, announced candidate for the vice-presidential nomination.

The statement said a prominent New York attorney and two other gentlemen called upon the Georgia candidate twice in an effort to get him to "win the Georgia and other southern delegations" for Governor Smith and promising in turn that they would give Mr. Upshaw the vice-presidential nomination and further back him with all the money and power he needed.

ALL CANDIDATES ARE REPRESENTED

A general row broke out in the committee immediately after the compromise league draft had been read. Some committeemen took the position that it was not strong enough in its declarations regarding the league; others that it was too strong; while still others agreed that if there was to be a referendum, it was necessary to make the league an immediate issue.

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson, prepared an alternative plank late tonight after a subcommittee had reported to the resolutions committee a compromise plank on the league which, among other things, would declare for a nationwide referendum on the question of American membership.

Discussion of this question delayed until exceedingly late in the night consideration of the Klan issue, and some committeemen expressed doubt that the two controversial subjects could be put in shape for presentation to the national convention at the hour of its convening—9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Composite of Many Plans.
The compromise league plank was a composite of the plans submitted by Owen D. Young, of New York, formerly a member of the Dawes reparations commission; John H. Clarke, president of the League of Nations Non-Partisan association; Newton D. Baker, Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and Alfred E. Lucking, member of the committee from Michigan. Its text follows:

"The democratic party pledges all its energies to the outlawing of the whole war system. We refuse to believe that the wholesale slaughter of human beings on the battlefield is any more necessary to man's highest development than killings by individuals."

"The only hope for world peace and for economic recovery lies in the organized efforts of nations combining to remove the cause of war and substituting law and order for violence."

"Under democratic leadership a practical plan was devised under which fifty-four nations are now operating and have been for the past four years, while the United States government for the last four years has had no foreign policy and consequently has delayed the restoration of political and economic conditions in the world which has impaired respect at home and diminished prestige abroad; has curtailed foreign commerce and ruined agriculture."

Called Greatest Moral Question.
"It is of supreme importance to civilization and mankind that America be placed on the right side of the greatest moral question of all times. The democratic party declares its principles of remedying assistance to the high purpose of establishing world peace through the league of nations and the world court of justice, which recognizes as institutions representing the supreme effort of statesmanship."

"Therefore, the democratic party declares the purposes of the next administration to be all in its power to secure that moral leadership in the family of nations which in the providence of God we are called upon to assume."

"There is no substitute for the league of nations as an agency operating for world peace. Therefore, we declare in the interest of peace that we will establish a permanent foreign policy under which the supreme questions may be settled not subject to change."

Take Question Out of Politics.
"It is desirable and wise and necessary to lift this question out of partisan politics, and that we take a census of the American people by a referendum election, advisory to the congress, to be held officially under action of congress and free from all contentions political questions."

"Shall the United States become a member of the league of nations, under such reservations to the covenant of the league as the United States may care to establish, immediately upon an affirmative vote we will carry out such mandate."

The compromise league plank was adopted after lengthy and heated discussion by a vote of 1,000 to 900, and the league question was disposed of by the platform committee and put up to the convention itself.

League Plank Changed.
The league plank, as originally presented, was changed in several respects by the committee before it was approved. One of the principal changes was in the final paragraph, which was amended to read: "Shall the United States become a member of the league of nations upon such amendment to the covenant of the league as the president may propose and the senate may ratify?"

Three planks with respect to the Ku Klux Klan were presented, one of which omitted the name of the invisible empire was prepared by William Jennings Bryan. That naming the Klan constituted a composition of the anti-Klan forces in general. There was, however, an additional plank presented from Alabama, the home state of Oscar W. Underwood, one of the candidates for the presidential nomination.

Composite Plank on Klan.
The composite plank of the opponents read:
"We condemn political secret societies of all kinds as opposed to the exercise of free government and contrary to the spirit of the letter of the constitution."
"No member of such society can justly claim to be a disciple of Thomas Jefferson. We therefore pledge the democratic party to oppose the efforts of the Ku Klux Klan or any similar organization that interferes with political freedom or religious liberty or which engenders racial prejudices."

Bryan Plank Moderate.
The Bryan plank, which leaves out any specific mention of the Klan, reaffirms the devotion of the democratic party to the fundamental principles contained in the constitution providing for the free exercise of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and the right of the people to free assembly.

It declares further that a religious test cannot be required for any office of trust in the government, and that there shall be no effort to arouse a religious discussion.

The third, or so-called Alabama plank, is lengthy, reviewing the history of organizations of that character and making specific reference to the "know-nothing party" of 1856. It declares that the democratic party openly opposed the "know-nothings," and that there is no reason now why it should not specifically oppose the Ku Klux Klan.

Bryan Takes Floor.
Taking the floor under the same five-minute limitation rule on speakers that obtained when the league

UNIDENTIFIED MAN SERIOUSLY HURT

An unidentified white man, about 35 years old, found at midnight Friday in a vacant lot at the corner of Spring and Mills streets, which is considerably below the street level, early this morning was treated at Grady hospital for a fractured skull and internal injuries. Police think he met with violence and was thrown into the lot by his assailants. He had not regained consciousness and doctors held out little hope for his recovery.

A theory that the man fell down the bank accidentally, was discounted by detectives who found that the victim had not been drinking.

Although the man had no papers on his person which might aid in identification, police hope to find relatives today.

was under discussion, William Jennings Bryan made a stirring address in opposition to naming the invisible empire in the party declaration.

The great commoner declared that four years hence the Klan organization will have been forgotten and he pleaded with the committee to avoid any action that would divide the democratic party. He said he could support no movement which would array one group of men against another.

Votes Upon Referendum.
Unofficial reports were that these states and territories were among those voting for a referendum: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, North Carolina, Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Alaska and the District of Columbia.

Yoting against a referendum were: Delaware, Idaho, Louisiana, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Washington, Indiana, Maine, North Dakota, Ohio, Hawaii, the Philippines and Porto Rico.

Committee discussion on the league issue was general, each member being allowed five minutes in which to present his views. Bryan, who had been away from the home earlier in the night, returning only a short while before Bryan and his wife retired for the night. She admitted that Bryan was extremely jealous of his wife, but said the quarrels were not frequent. She admitted hearing man and wife talking in a subdued tone before she retired but would not say they were quarreling.

Falling asleep, Mrs. Bratcher said she was next awakened by cries for help from the wounded woman and heard the angry voice of the husband. Mrs. Bratcher dashed through the door of the room in which Mrs. Bratcher had been sleeping, preceded by the young woman, in an effort to escape the rain of bullets and the pursuing husband. Bleeding profusely from the wound in the knee Mrs. Bratcher collapsed in the yard of Mrs. Lillian Beavers, 6 Carr street, where she died pleading for help.

Ambulance Is Called.
A Grady hospital ambulance was called by persons attracted by the shooting, and both victims were rushed to Grady hospital where physicians stated early Saturday morning that there was practically no chance for the man's recovery. Mrs. Bratcher died before reaching the hospital.

The Bursons are survived by three children, Mattie Lee, 12; Annie Blanche, 10, and Thomas, 7.

Reject Child Labor Amendment.
Chairman Cummings of the resolutions committee announced at midnight that there had been a heated contest over a labor amendment, child welfare plank. He explained that the fight was to determine whether there should be a specific endorsement of the proposed constitutional child labor amendment.

"I found myself in the minority," Chairman Cummings stated. "We fought it out, and I renewed the contest a while ago seeking a form of language which might serve our purpose, but again I found myself in the minority when the committee voted 18 to 22 against inserting such a plank."

Meanwhile, a group of democratic women workers assembled at the committee headquarters in an eleventh hour attempt to persuade the committee to reconsider the two decisions and agree upon a plank specifically endorsing the child labor amendment.

This would probably be given by courtesy.

The McAdoo leaders figure the psychology of such a drama would swing McAdoo through in a stampede. All of this, however, it is believed will now be of little avail. At any rate the strategy is anticipated.

Smith Boom Diminished.
The electric magnetism of Franklin Roosevelt was not there to keep the fire burning. At the same time he remains the second in early rating strength and will remain so as long as the deadlock continues. Of course he cannot be nominated, as I have consistently maintained.

The Klan issue on the floor of the convention is expected to be the big spectacular event of the whole show tonight, tonight the old democratic leaders are desperately endeavoring to put the soft pedal on in the interest of party unity in combating the Coolidge-Dawes ticket in November.

The effort of the McAdoo leaders to have the voting begin before the platform is adopted will fail. The platform will be made first then a candidate placed upon it.

As to who will be the party candidate—Davis, Ralston, Glass, Ritchie remain the favorites.

donating, it is stated, space on the face of the mountain for that purpose.

Hollins Randolph, chairman of the association, in a statement following publication of Mr. Venable's scathing attack, denied accusations made and attributed charges to irritation of Mr. Venable over his inability to "control" the affairs of the association.

Injunction Was Last Resort.
The Randolph statement alleged that a temporary injunction was resorted to only as a "last resort" and to enable work on the memorial to continue. It was said Mr. Venable had fenced in his property about the mountain, through which driveways to the mountain have been made and power lines for carving purposes had been placed, nailed up a fence which prevented free passage of visitors to the memorial, and other steps which tended to obstruct work on the memorial.

A temporary injunction was signed, and June 28 was set as the date on which Mr. Venable was cited to appear and show cause why the order should not be a permanent one.

Mr. Venable was out of the city Friday night, at the bedside of a brother who is very ill, it was said at his home here.

Victim of Tuberculosis.
Mrs. Bratcher stated that Burson had been out of work until two weeks ago when he accepted a position in Atlanta as a nightwatchman. For the past three nights, however, he had not gone to work and appeared sullen. He had been a sufferer for many years with tuberculosis, she said. He was able to perform manual labor however, and showed only slight symptoms of the disease.

Mrs. Burson had been employed for many months as a machine operator with the Southern Upholstering company. For sometime, relatives of the family, Friday night, Mrs. Burson had been the sole support of the family.

Was Jealous of Wife.
Mrs. Bratcher told police who were called to the scene of the shooting, that so far as she knew there had been no quarrel, although she had been away from the home earlier in the night, returning only a short while before Burson and his wife retired for the night. She admitted that Burson was extremely jealous of his wife, but said the quarrels were not frequent. CHURCH AT WAR; NATIONS DIVIDED Modernists-Fundamentalist Controversy To Have Airing

From time immemorial humanity has been divided on religion, on politics, on social ethics. Race distinction has been a great barrier against unity and cooperation of thought and endeavor. The world has been a fighting world; history is written in blood. Where did the trouble start, what was its cause, and will it ever cease? Contrary to expectation, the Churches professing to follow Jesus of Nazareth can not agree in doctrine and precept. Long ago there was a falling away in the faith, and then came a split into numerous sects. What was the underlying cause? The controversy over the nature of Jesus started in the days of Emperor Constantine. Creeds have been formed to clarify the matter. And it was hoped that the time would come when all Christians would get together and accept a common faith. But the truthfulness or falsity of the Godhead of Jesus has become a very live subject. What will the outcome be? Will it be settled on the right side, or on the wrong side? Who can tell? A time of cleavage has come to the so-called Christian world. Some call themselves Modernists; some are Fundamentalists; some are Liberals; some are Conservatives; and some are on the fence. Bible study is taking on an activity never before known. There is a reason for this. Many would like to know—those who are of inquiring minds. Will it evaluate in bringing Christian people closer together, or will there be further divisions? Efforts have been put forth to make a League of Nations. Many joined the League; some do not; and some of those who are members do not obey its laws and regulations. Why do people not recognize a common consanguinity and unite in harmonious action? A free lecture will be given in the Bible Students' Hall, 44½ E. Hunter street, Sunday, 3:00 p. m., June 29th.

THE CROSSING BILL.

By a vote of 74 to 70, the house of representatives of the Georgia legislature decided, on Friday, to reconsider its action of last year in defeating the bill known as the grade crossing bill. It is earnestly to be hoped that when this measure comes up for final consideration it, or some substitute bill designed for the same end, be enacted into law.

The bill as now written provides that all motor vehicles must come to a full stop not more than fifty feet from any grade crossing where a steam railroad or interurban line intersects the highway. The bill also provides that failure to observe the provisions of the act shall not be considered negligence, per se, in any action against the railroad for accidents involving injury to life or property.

Opposition to the measure has been based mainly on the charge that the bill is supported by the railroads, with the object of reducing their liability for damages in case of accident.

The importance of enacting some legislation which will reduce the frightful loss of life in Georgia, through grade crossing accidents, is evident to all thoughtful persons. Even if such legislation results in the saving of only one life, it will be worth all the time, effort and thought devoted to it. That the bill as now written is exactly the measure needed, may or may not be true. If it is not perfect, it can easily be made so by amendments before it comes before the house for final passage. It is to be hoped that those who are at present not in agreement on some of its clauses may be able to reach agreement on amendments which will make it satisfactory to the great majority when it is finally passed.

Similar laws are now in effect in many other states, including New York, Connecticut, Virginia and North Carolina. Reports from the public service commissions of these states declare that the number of grade crossing accidents has been materially reduced since enactment of the law, one state alone placing the reduction in fatalities at 65 per cent.

The railroads, of course, are in favor of any legislation which will reduce the staggering loss of life now chargeable to the grade crossing menace. Irrespective of the heavy expense to them which every damage suit involves them, like all other good citizens, will welcome anything which lessens human sorrow and suffering. It is a foregone conclusion that they favor any and all such legislation.

Even more deeply than the railroad officials, the engineers, the men who stand at the throttle of the locomotive, will welcome any added safeguards for the highway traffic which crosses their path. It is, in fact, largely as a result of the accumulating frightfulness which these locomotive engineers witness as their trains plow through automobile loads of women and children that the bill was written and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has already placed its indorsement upon it.

How much more eagerly should the users of the highways themselves, the fathers and husbands of children and women who may, any day, be the innocent victims of some reckless autocrat's criminal folly, seek for the passage of such legislation as this!

The bill may easily be amended so as not to lessen the responsibility of the roads for loss of life or injury to property, even if it does not sufficiently safeguard this point at present. But, regardless of the money damages which may be involved in case of accident, no right-feeling man should allow any other consideration than the public safety to influence him in voting on this measure.

NEW YORK WON.

New York always does things well. Being the great American metropolis with unbounded resources, it is but natural that New York should proceed officially on a broad and winning scale, especially when no real issue but hospitality is involved.

The cordiality of New York's welcome to the delegates to the national democratic convention was marked. The individuality of the various state delegations' welcome was particularly distinguished. The reason, of course, is the fact that the great cosmopolitan city of New York has thousands of native sons and daughters from every state in the union living within her boundaries. On a great national occasion like the one that New York particularly excels in these people native of other states take a pride in showing a doubly warm welcome to their own. There are strong ties between people of the same native state when they come together on some other state's soil. It is always noticeable. It is one of the beautiful characteristics of American loyalty and love of home.

The Madison Square Garden made an ideal convention auditorium. With plenty of entrances and exits, amplifiers and radio to every gallery and to every floor and section, the proceedings of the convention were in close touch with every delegate, alternate and visitor. If one should be in the club rooms in the basement, or in the topmost loft, the voices from the platform and from the pit were as clear and distinct as if spoken in close proximity and in a small auditorium.

Mayor Hylan and many other city officials gave liberally of their time to the convention, and to seeing that the different social and entertainment activities were in keeping with the New York reception spirit.

New York did her part well.

THE FARM OUTLOOK.

The Georgia farm is coming back. In fact it has already come back to a great extent, and is fast bringing back to normalcy the rural village, the country town and all the varied interests represented in them, and through them will produce a far-reaching effect on the prosperity of the cities and commercial centers.

Georgia is preeminently a farming state.

Despite the losses occasioned by the ravages of the boll weevil and other pests—despite adverse weather conditions, discouraging markets and numerous other drawbacks which have beset the farmer since 1920—the great fact remains that the basis of this state's prosperity lies in its soil.

No thinking person will for a moment discredit the valuable contributions made to the wealth and progress of the state by the manufacturer, banker, merchant and professional man, but after due regard has been given to all the sources of strength and achievement it must be recognized that Georgia's chief asset—its one enduring and indestructible asset—is the farm. This being true it is cheering to note the numerous unmistakable indications of returning prosperity to agriculture in various parts of the state.

The farmers this year took up the task of making a crop in a more hopeful and determined spirit than had been exhibited since the melancholy autumn of 1920. Since that time we have passed through a rather exacting course of schooling—economy, self-denial, restriction of wants, searching for new roads out of the wilderness—and this experience, unpleasant as it may have been, has pro of inestimable value to us. We have ceased to dream of inviting Utopias in other states; we have concentrated our attention and efforts on our own farms; we can see our way out now and we are driving ahead.

It is the time for the small farmer—the man who wants to own his home and rear his family under the independent conditions which such ownership brings—to acquire land if he ever expects to own any. Today farms of all sizes and in all conditions can be bought at low prices and on easy terms. This condition cannot—it will not—last.

For the young farmer whose career lies in the future; for the town and city dweller who expects to retire to the quietude of the country; for everyone who loves the soil or expects to own any land, a highly inviting opportunity is wide open and the time to act is NOW.

(From The Washington (Ga.) Reporter.)

We love to see the Georgia weekly holding the stride of 1919 and 1920. The majority of them, however, have had hard sleighing; but The News-Reporter believes the worst of it is over. There is ground to believe that here in Wilkes county this fall will see the majority of the people in better shape than they have since 1919. General prosperity will mean better things for the newsman, many of them will be able to serve all they get and more, for they have fought all the way during the trying days of the past years for their community.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A STATE OF MIND.

After all, these minds of ours dominate everything in connection with us.

Let a dark, gloomy day appear and we say out ourselves, "Well, had day" and so we get what we think we will get.

If enough people tell a happy, dense tree that he looks badly and ill, he will be ill without any other urge.

Health, happiness, success are all largely products of "a state of mind."

The world actually is against every man who thinks that the world is against him. And every man who thinks he owes something to the world and that it expects great things from him, gives large achievements to the world.

Think beautiful thoughts and you will be beautiful—no matter what sort of a face nature has given you.

Many times when life does seem dull and quite a good deal uninteresting, I like to walk out into the woods behind my home and sit in a sheltered seat on one of the high rocks overlooking a mass of wild shrubbery and trees that have been standing and growing for more than a century.

What calmness comes to me. What an appreciation of the beauties of nature arise within me as I smell the fresh odors of the woods and hear the happy songs of the birds that sit about! Life looks sweet to me then. A new state of mind is brought about and I go to my reading hour before the night, all with a finer sense of freedom in my heart and a greater desire to serve, while I may.

I often think of the talks that Jesus used to have with His friends. He said: "Consider the lilies of the field, they toil not, neither do they spin, yet I say unto you that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Nothing would matter if we could always have a state of mind where love and beauty and a desire for service ruled supreme.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. Q. MINTYRE

New York, June 27.—Among the most curious women in Manhattan are the "sandhogs." They are men who daily risk their lives under the Hudson river. They are encased in a shield that worms its way through the mud of the river's bottom.

In case of a break in the shield they are doomed to suffocate in the inflow of mud. The bravery of the sandhogs is really responsible for the tunnels that span the river. Hundreds have had narrow escapes and a large number have been trapped.

The "sandhogs" are sturdy, hair-chested men with booming voices. They are as husky as the toughest lumber jack. And they live to themselves in the water-proof, boarding the tunnels that span the river. They are married.

They dress in corduroy trousers and blue flannel shirts and are inveterate chewers of tobacco. The pay for the sandhogs is somewhere between $20 and $30 a day. They must accustom himself to darkness down in the subterranean depths.

His chief physical danger outside the tunnel is the bottom of the river, known as "the bends." This is a form of body cramp that contracts the body in the agony of terrible suffering. Unless the victim is brought hurriedly to the surface he dies in a frightful seizure.

Several years ago 22 "sandhogs" were seized with "the bends." They agitated each other and for a while the sandhogs were in a state of panic, kicking and clawing. All were unconscious when they reached the fresh air.

"Sandhogs" are men with unusual taciturnity. Even among themselves they speak only in monosyllables. Their attitude in life seems to be that as all are playing the most dangerous game in a crisis it is each man for himself.

Oscar, the famous chef of the Waldorf, eats only one meal a day.

Columbus Circle, in Manhattan's midtown, is the busiest intersection in the city. It is the fashion in New York to hallyhoo food with floss and glitter. An order of bacon and eggs is brought on a huge silver platter with shining half circular top. There is the useless waterless decoration and other faldor. For a cup of coffee one must watch the bubbling percolator at the side of the plate, wondering any moment whether or not it will explode.

By means of the figures of the race, who broke the world's record, had a normal amount of sugar in his blood at the finish and was in excellent condition, whereas the runner who became exhausted and were unable to finish the race were found to have a diminished blood sugar content, one, particularly, who became so severely exhausted that he lost consciousness and was brought in by the police, showed a very low sugar content. The physicians who made these observations are endeavoring to prevent or at least ameliorate if the athlete will take a larger supply of carbohydrate in the diet the night before or the morning of the race. They advise that the runner take candy during the race, say in the form of lime drops, to replenish the blood sugar reserve which is so heavily drawn on in any severe prolonged muscular effort.

The fame of milk chocolate as an endurance food was fully established by the experience of thousands of soldiers in the great war.

Mountain climbers have added testimony to the value of sugar, in one form or another, as a sustaining food.

Although I fear I utter a medical heresy, at least from the point of view of the old timers, still I think it is a fact sufficiently supported by modern physiological and dietetic knowledge, that sugar is good body food and candy is a thoroughly wholesome and healthful food for live boys and girls—good for the teeth and all.

Maybe you and I consume more carbohydrate than our metabolism has any use for, and of course it is bad for our health—but we need not fall into the error of assuming that because too much of it injures us a reasonable amount of it will be good for the children. As for the old timers, they are really foolish to imagine candy injures the teeth than it is to imagine candy causes children to have "caries."

Some of the old fogies really insist that all such things—and though they blushing deny it now, still they just feel somehow that the kiddies shouldn't have any; they generally think the kiddies should have plenty of castor oil, however.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

One Month to Long Beach.

What is your opinion of taking a baby one month old down to Long Beach for the summer?—(D. J.)

Answer: All right if the baby will have as good and careful feeding as there is at home.

Upsetting the Neighborhood.

I am 70 years old and take my dozen rolls daily and stand on my feet for an hour or so at each session, besides walking six miles a day and doing my work as janitor in a mill. I have not missed a meal or a day's work in six years.

I have tried to try the somersaults, if you will be good enough to send me a copy of the "Somersaults" in the stamp and address enclosed.—(S. E. E.)

Answer: All right, but be sure to have the cooperation of the lady's husband if there is a person in the picture. It is fine to try the somersaults, but you know a fellow has got to use some caution about sweeping a lady clear off her feet.

Bareheaded.

It is safe to go about out of doors in the hot summer months with head unprotected? I wear an eye-shade only. Is such practice beneficial to the head by easy stages, to accumulate a protective coat of tan and avoid sunburn. The process of tanning greatly improves the complexion and makes it softer and smoother. It is equally beneficial to the hair.

MISTAH SPEAKAH

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Mistah Speakah—
I ask unanimous consent—

To repeal the law of supply and demand, the law of nature, and all other ancient and modern enactments, with particular reference to the law of common sense.

That was a mean remark someone flung into the arena of parliamentary battle Friday, about water and windmills. Remember? A well-known member of the opposition—that is, opposition to most all things—had been talking for twenty minutes. Then he paused and asked a peer to bring him a glass of water. And the heckler yelled, "A windmill can run by water."

Another touch of satire was suspected in the reference made by Representative Cullpepper, of Fayette, to Representative Wimberly, of Laurens. He referred to the gentleman from Laurens as "an astute lawyer." Mr. Wimberly said he was doubtful of the meaning, but if it was what he thought, he would have to fight.

Miss Bessie Kempton, of Fulton, one of the two lady members, won the thanks of the entire assembly on Friday when she produced a series of cards admitting the legislators to two of Atlanta's picture theaters, the Howard and Rialto, free of charge, all through the session. Maybe the solving will remember this when Miss Fulton asks him to vote as she wants on some pending measure.

It is also rumored that one of Atlanta's leading playhouses is planning a special theater party in the near future for the members and their families. And, maybe, Representative Wood, of Fulton, will put on a special performance of "The Torch Benders," in which he starred in a recent amateur production.

Representative Pope, of Walker, "was seen" to make a speech Friday. It is one of the sights of modern times, to see Pope speak. It is almost as good fun as hearing certain members drink soup.

However, as there is a two-day vacation now with us.

Mistah Speakah—
Move we go home.

NEW GASOLINE BIDS ARE ASKED BY CITY

Bidding a flat rate of 19 cents a gallon for all gasoline to be consumed by the city of Atlanta during the next three months, the Standard Oil company threw the purchasing committee of council into a turmoil Friday which resulted in a decision to advertise for new bids, which are to be opened Monday.

All other companies submitted bids at "tank-wagon prices," the basis on which the contract has been let in the past and which would amount to about 20 cents a gallon. Their representatives protested against award of the contract to Standard Oil until they were permitted to enter bids on the flat-rate basis.

The Standard's price was the lowest at which gasoline has been offered to the city this year.

ADAMSON URGES GEORGIA TO LIFT INHERITANCE TAX

Governor Walker has received letters from Charles A. Adamson, of Cedarburg, Wis., urging abolition of the inheritance tax in Georgia and erection of permanent memorials to Miss Martha Berry, of Rome, founder of the Berry schools near that city, and Mrs. Rebecca Lattimer Felton, the only woman senator ever to be sworn in as a member of the United States senate.

Mr. Adamson declares that persons of wealth take up their residence in Florida in order to escape payment of the inheritance tax, that state having none on its statute books. Georgia, by retaining an inheritance tax, thus loses large revenues, declares Mr. Adamson.

COURTS ASKED TO BAR ATTENTIONS OF 'OTHER WOMAN'

Asserting that she had no other remedy to and the attention of the courts, Miss Agnes Harrell, 213 Stewart avenue, to her husband, Mrs. John A. McKown Friday asked the superior court for an injunction. Judge E. D. Thomas issued a temporary restraining order against Miss Harrell from associating or communicating with McKown, until further order of the court.

The hearing was set for today, when Miss Harrell is to show cause why she should not be permanently enjoined.

Mrs. McKown claims that she tried to keep her husband's love by buying an automobile. When she wanted to go out riding on Sundays he was "too tired to go with her," but she says, she learned that he had used her name for a state agricultural board of 15 members, to be appointed by the governor, designating their qualifications, fixing terms of six years. Board to employ a commissioner of agriculture and heads of all departments in that branch.

Andy Gump Joins Dark-Horse Ranks; Gets Big Ovation

Andy Gump joined the swelling ranks of presidential dark horses Friday, when the Franklin County association launched a boom for the wearer of "no man's collar" on the occasion of the annual Franklin county picnic Friday afternoon at Grant park.

Mr. Gump's name was submitted to the citizens of Franklin county by Dixon Hall, president of the association, who paid glowing tribute to his ability and declared Gump is the only logical standard-bearer whose name has been mentioned for the presidential nomination.

The demonstration which followed was spontaneous in its enthusiasm, and various spectators estimated that it lasted twice as long as the combined demonstrations for W. G. McAdoo and Al Smith in the New York democratic convention.

Senator W. R. Lister, of the 31st district, and G. A. Adams, representative from Franklin, were principal speakers of the occasion. Other speakers were J. R. Speck, Dr. W. H. Hunsicker and Ford McQuirter.

Special entertainment features were provided including contests and games.

ATTENDANCE REACHES 240 AT BIBLE SCHOOL

The Pittsburg colored daily vacation Bible school, run by the Presbyterian church, has entered its second week, with the attendance steadily increasing until there is practically no more room for new scholars. About half of those who started have not missed a day from school and several classes have had days with no pupils absent. The enrollment has reached 240.

Periods of Work.

The first period is devotional; then there is a musical period; then olden times is reviewed. An intermission of caelesthenics is followed by a talk by some one of the workers or visitors. They then go to classes, where they study from memory work and have the industrial period.

In this period the boys are caning chairs, making door mats, and doing crafts. The girls are making baskets, sewing and making paper flowers. This will be varied as the work is finished and the pupils go from one chapter to another. Already some articles have been completed.

Some chapters in the Bible have been memorized and the school promises to be not only the best, but the largest that has been conducted in the city since the colored people have been in the city.

At least one other school is planned by the Presbyterians for the colored season is over.

Have New Building.

One of the joys of the work this year is the new building just finished. It is a durable brick veneer, plastered inside and has a spacious basement where there will be put a kitchen and workshop for the boys as soon as funds are available. The building is open to people of all denominations and is the only evangelizing center in the city where there are about 4,000 colored people. The work here was started in September, 1920, and a daily vacation Bible school has been run each summer since the start. During the winter months a kindergarten, sewing classes and various clubs are running as well as Sunday school in the afternoon and preaching services at night.

RAINWATER, COOK, PRESLEY, RIDLEY WIN MATCHES

Atlantans Play Semi-Final Round Today at East Lake; Cook To Enter U.S. Amateur

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Four men, one scarcely more than a boy, were left last night to battle today over the East Lake course for the Georgia golf championship. All are Atlantans, Vezey Rainwater, Tom Prescott, Chick Ridley, three veterans, and Gene Cook, the West End flash, a new figure in southern tournament play.

Turn your eyes toward Rainwater and Cook to cup the title. Their game in two rounds yesterday was unbeatable. Bearing witness to this is the fact that their opponents were Clarence Knowles, vanquished by Rainwater, and Charlie Black, Jr., who fell before Cook.

This morning Rainwater will play Prescott at 9:30 o'clock and Cook will play Ridley at 9:45 o'clock for places in the finals, scheduled for this afternoon.

Cook Going to Amateur. Incidentally, the game Cook played yesterday to beat last little Ben Jones, his first opponent, and Black, since his first one more entrant in the national amateur tournament to be played at the Merion Cricket club in Philadelphia in September.

"I'm going to send that boy to the national amateur if it's the last thing I do," declared Cook, fated after Gene's match with Black. "He may not make much of a showing, but it will give him more experience. All I know about what Gene did this afternoon is what the gallery said. I couldn't follow him. I wish I had, but I just couldn't."

Just then Charlie Black's father stepped up and shook hands with Mr. Cook. "It was fair all around," he told the winner's father. "Gene played a wonderful game."

The results in the first round in the first flight were as follows: Rainwater defeated John Bachman, home six up and four to play; Clarence Knowles defeated Keith Conway, Atlanta, two up and one to play; George R. Raines, Atlanta, beat Gilbert Ashe, also of Atlanta, two up; Tom Prescott won from J. R. Brannon, home, five up and four to play; Gene Cook beat Ben Jones, five up and four to play; Charlie Black, Jr. up and one to play; Chick Ridley defeated M. L. McNeel, Jr., of Marietta, three up and two to play, and Richard Hickey beat Frank McNeel, Marietta, five up and three to play.

Second Round. In the second round of the first flight the following took place: Rainwater defeated Knowles six up and five to play after three holes; Prescott defeated Brannon seven up and five to play; Cook beat Black three up and two, and Ridley beat Hickey four up and two to play after turning four up.

Rainwater was playing championship game all of yesterday. In both rounds he shot the first nine in par and followed through with only slightly higher scores on the second nine.

Cook obtained his lead over Black by playing a steady, consistent game. His drives were long and true, while Black was shooting a bit wild from the tees and lost several holes because of out of bounds drives.

The trophy for which Rainwater, Cook, Ridley and Prescott will play is a set of six silver goblets and a service tray. Members of the East Lake team, which won the team trophy, will receive individually silver penskins for winning the team trophy, and the cup to East Lake as an adornment of the Druid Hills club for two consecutive years. Other trophies will be awarded the winners and runners-up in ten flights.

Results in the first round of the first flight were as follows: Rainwater defeated John Bachman, home three up and one to play; Gilbert Ashe defeated J. R. Brannon, five up and four to play; Prescott defeated Ben Jones one up and Frank McNeel defeated M. L. McNeel by default.

Davis Lauded as Combining Cleveland and Wilson Traits

West Virginian Would Be Platform Within Himself, if Nominated, As-sets Nominator.

New York, June 27.—The democratic convention has met not to choose a candidate, but to name a president and "the character of the man we name," declared John H. Holt, of the West Virginia delegation, today in placing the name of John W. Davis, of that state before the convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

"During the coming election," he continued, "the American people will not vote their personal or party prejudices, but their citizenship, and in the hope of safeguarding and perpetuating institutions that have meant so much to them and will mean more to their children and to the world, Davis and his associates will be forgotten and triumphant democracy take up its march to victory."

Mr. Holt denounced the republican party for its failure to lower taxes, declaring the administration needed as much money in a time of "profound peace as Woodrow Wilson required to wage a world war" for petty politics. In the department of justice, and for its efforts to "destroy or weaken the American navy, our only hope of security and best hope of peace."

Must Understand Institutions.
"In this country, of all others, and at this time most of all, the people will demand, and the democratic party must find, a candidate who stands for America and understands her institutions, who along the lines of true progressiveness will strike the chains from industry and lift the leadership from off the breast of individual enterprise, to the end that the young men and young women may go forth and forward with untrammelled hands in the development of this great country and the betterment of its people, with the just expectation of a proper reward for their personal initiative."

The democratic candidate must stand "flat-footed on the constitution in all its parts and amendments," Mr. Holt declared. In his administration, he continued, there must be no "room for hiding place for crooks. He must stand for a navy that will uphold the Monroe doctrine and command the peace of the world."

"Give us a man who will rescue the department of justice from the scorn of an indignant people, protect the public domain with the flaming sword of common honesty, relieve the people from unnecessary taxation, and, in heaven's name, simplify the machinery by which these taxes are levied and collected. If the rules and regulations now in vogue emanate from the so-called best minds of the present administration, let us in the future have a little less genius and a little more common sense."

Strike Shackles Off Business.
"Our candidate must strike the shackles from business and hold the scales at equipoise between capital and labor."

I present you a man who represents these principles and comes from a country upon whose people Washington relied in the darkest hours of Valley Forge, when a continental congress had all but given up the fight, a man who has the courage of a Grover Cleveland and the progressiveness of a Woodrow Wilson, a man who, if nominated, would become a chief executive of whom every American could be proud—John W. Davis, of West Virginia, the West Augusta of the revolution."

New York, June 27.—Martin L. Lueck, of Wisconsin, seconding the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith, declared Wisconsin was for Smith because the country needs in Washington a style of virile leadership now sadly lacking. He said, "because more than twenty years of public service he has given constant assurance of an unflinching duty and of a complete subordination of private to public interests."

"We are for him because he has convictions on his conscience, a public question which he has the courage to express and defend without regard to the effect upon his personal fortune. We are for him because he represents a quarter of a century the searchlight of publicity has been thrown upon his public and private career."

CHATTANOOGA WOMAN

SECONDS MADDOO'S NAME.

New York, June 27.—William G. McAdoo is "the only candidate who can win the women's votes of the nation, because he is the one man who recognizes the principles in which women believe," Mrs. George F. Milton, of Tennessee, declared today in a speech at the democratic national convention, seconding the Californian's nomination.

"He is the man who can win," she continued, "a man who has done things; a man of noble judgment, a great executive genius; a man to rank with Washington and Jackson and Lincoln; the logical successor of Woodrow Wilson, the man for whom the world is waiting."

"In every great crisis of world affairs, God raises up a leader who is instinctively chosen by the people. Today the voice of the people is heard from California to the Carolinas; from Texas to Alaska; from Florida to the Philippines, calling for one man for president of the United States."

SMITH'S RELIGION INTRODUCED BY DELEGATE.

New York, June 27.—Governor Smith was urged for the democratic presidential nomination as "one who has completely built his life upon the teachings of our Lord and Master," Mrs. Carroll Miller, of Pennsylvania, in an address at the democratic national convention today, seconding the nomination of the New York executive.

"Because of his tenderness to his mother, of his devotion to his wife and children, of the consecration of his public life to the welfare of his fellow man, of his untarnished honesty and courage, I know this man to be one who has completely built his life upon the teachings of our Lord and Master," Mrs. Miller said with reference to Governor Smith.

"I spring from English Quaker and Scotch Protestant ancestors, who came to this country in colonial days seeking civil and religious liberty. They fought for their country's independence and later saw the results of their sacrifice made sure by constitutional guarantee. My father's family was Methodist; my mother was a Presbyterian, and my married friends are Episcopalian; some of my best friends are Jews, and my oldest son was born in Japan, in the shadow of a Buddhist temple; and here in New York I have the privilege in second place of a nomination of a man who worships God by still another form."

SILZER CALLED LEADER OF INCOMPARABLE VALUE.

New York, June 26.—Governor George S. Silzer, of New Jersey, was placed in nomination today for the presidency of the United States by John A. Matthews, of Newark, in an address before the democratic national convention.

Mr. Matthews told the convention delegates Governor Silzer had proved a "leader of incomparable value" and declared that if "we had such virile leadership at Washington, the thieves of our national resources were discovered in the very household of the government, there would have been no platitudinous pronouncement that guilt would be punished regardless of party; there would have been 'help wanted' signs on the doors of the cabinet."

The "hoil situation at Washington" also was mentioned by Mr. Matthews to further illustrate Governor Silzer's type of statesmanship.

"Translate such statesmanship," he said, after describing the New Jersey governor's record in office, "into the oil situation at Washington. I could not, of course, have even remotely imagined our governor sitting idly by while the very bowels of our national domain were barked away. But were he only to have learned of the situation when he came into executive power, instead of code telegrams and secret secretarial pilgrimages, we would have had summary removals; instead of cowardly fence building, ture. Our task is to search out the opportunity, state the cause and choose a leader. The leader must fit the cause."

"Nationalist aspirants have been nursed as promising a relief from internal hardship as the only safe defense against aggressions, European cynics and reactionaries have conjured, with the fears and miseries of peoples and counseled that imperative armed readiness, which all history touches as apt to be provocative of the very disaster which it pretends to avert."

"On the other hand, even in such a world, the first great experiment in international cooperation has been making and succeeding. The league of nations has gathered to it the great liberals of the old world. It has yielded nothing to force, it has defied skepticism and dared to believe, as liberals always believe, in the power of good-will. It has fought disease and vice, lifted Austria and Hungary back into the possibility of orderly national life, repatriated the war prisoners, established a world court, and in the next four years of good will which, in the hour of crisis, would enable the conscience of the world to compose threatened conflict."

Cox Is Ideal Man.
"Between these two sets of forces the conflict is on. There the battle rests now. Throughout the world the forces of militarism and imperialism are arrayed against the forces of liberalism. The next four years will decide one or the other of these philosophies will prevail—which, we are probably determining here today."

"The present administration has transferred our sympathy to the right to the wrong side. Under the inspired guidance of Woodrow Wilson, America won the faith of the world to submit understanding for the sake of peace, and by engaging together in great constructive work for the common good, to build up an asset of good will which, in the hour of crisis, would enable the conscience of the world to compose threatened conflict."

BAKER PRESENTS COX
AS PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE.

New York, June 27.—Declaring that former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, "became a national figure at that moment in 1920 when only a few had the vision to see or the courage to follow the new faith—the new political religion of Woodrow Wilson," Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet, today again placed Cox's name in nomination for the presidency before the democratic national convention.

"Without hesitation or wavering, he fought the long 1920 campaign, debating without doubt, appealing to higher emotions, battling back the tide of selfishness, rising out of the chaos of the world, finally included us with the peoples of Europe as the children of despair," Mr. Baker told the convention.

"Since that campaign, his dedication to the cause has remained complete," Mr. Baker said. "He has devoted the intervening years to serious study of the old world and this. He has sought for those reasons, historic, traditional, permanent or temporary, which brought about our act of disengagement at the moment of our victory. With pen and voice, with growing power of enthusiasm and knowledge, he has, as a private citizen, sought to inspire us to better and higher thinking, and juster and more enduring policies. Thus Ohio feels that her son, once her hero and favorite, has become the nation's favorite."

PRESENTS NAME EARLY.
"In her name I present to you Ohio's three-time governor, her successful executive, her constructive leader, her son who bore the banner of our principles bravely and blamelessly in a national contest, her son who has had the vision to see where America's opportunity now is and has the courage and capacity to lead us to that realization."

"I present to you the name of James M. Cox."

"For three terms as her governor, this son of Ohio demonstrated his capacity as an executive. Without turmoil or confusion, the business of a great state was dispatched. He was our war governor. Under his eager, patriotic leadership the people of Ohio gave their quota in men and money to the national effort, and gained the national cause with sacrificial fervor. The constitution of the state was remodeled under his leadership, engraving modern and liberal principles and political agencies in response to new conditions. A great body of wholesome legislation was enacted by his cooperation with legislators not always of his own political faith until, in many of those new problems, which have come with increasing congestion and the development of an industrial society, men search the Ohio statute books for the laws which he caused to be enacted as examples of sane solutions which, in practice, have proved wholesome and helpful."

LABOR USES CLUB TO HELP M'ADOO

New York, June 27.—The rivalries of William G. McAdoo and Governor Alfred E. Smith in the democratic presidential race tonight brought forth a dispute among labor leaders as to which of the two best represented the interests of organized labor.

Six labor chiefs, mostly representing railroad workers, issued a declaration that Mr. McAdoo must be nominated or organized labor would support the third party movement expected to be inaugurated next week at Cleveland.

The declaration, made in a formal statement issued through the McAdoo headquarters, hardly had time to be distributed before James A. Holland, president of the New York state federation of labor, came out with an assertion that "between Mr. McAdoo and Governor Smith those labor men who know the labor records of both prefer Governor Smith."

No Other Candidates.
The manifesto was signed by Timothy Shea, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; B. M. Jewell, head of the Railway division of the American Federation of Labor; A. O. Wharton, labor member of the railway labor body; Frank J. Franklin, president of the Boiler Makers and Iron Ship Builders' union; J. G. Johnson, president of the American Train Dispatchers and Railway Telegraphers; and E. E. Milliken, of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees.

"There is no other available candidate to whom the workingman will give the same unqualified support," the statement said. "Neither the republican party nominee, nor the platform adopted by the republican convention is acceptable to the organized workers affiliated with the conference for progressive political action."

Uses Threat as Club.
"The sentiment among the great mass of the organized wage-earners is overwhelming for Mr. McAdoo, in the judgment of these leaders he must be the nominee if these leaders are to go to the convention of the conference for progressive political action on July 4 at Cleveland and vote against the placing of an independent candidate in the field. They have the necessary votes to prevent the successful launching of the republican workers affiliated with the conference for progressive political action."

"If Wall street, the democratic bosses and the representatives of big business wish to divorce these workers from the democratic party in the present campaign, they will continue their opposition to Mr. McAdoo. They do not realize the state of mind of the laboring man. He is not a people for a truly progressive candidate. The present activities of some of the democratic bosses can be likened to nothing more clearly than the fiddling of a white knight burned."

Violate Labor Rules.
Mr. Holland, in his statement, contended that the declaration of the railroad chiefs represented "nothing but the sentiment of the signers and those with whom they are associated," and added:

"In issuing the declaration, Mr. McAdoo's friends violate the rules of the labor movement exactly as they violate the rules of politics by threatening to bolt after their candidate is defeated. They violate the rules of the labor movement by indorsing the action by the American Federation of Labor of endorsing a candidate who is opposed to the federation on an essential point and whose position is doubtful on another."

"The violation is for liberating the Volstead law, Mr. McAdoo is for the Volstead act as it stands. 'The federation is unalterably and unequivocally opposed to the Ku Klux Klan,' Mr. McAdoo has yet to define his position on that organization and is the hero of every klansman in the convention."

"Between Mr. McAdoo and Governor Smith, those labor men who know the labor records of both prefer Governor Smith. They stand on the record of his lifetime of accomplishment and omit neither chapter nor chapter."

To Support Nominee.
"Furthermore, as democrats and labor men we propose to abide by the decision of the convention and support its nominee. We expect and demand that nominees who have been for office has been indorsed by the State Federation of Labor. Its most recent indorsement of him was for president. That indorsement represents the organized workers of the state, including the railroad workers."

David L. Rockwell, campaign manager for McAdoo, told newspapermen tonight: "There wasn't anything that occurred today that was disconcerting to the McAdoo forces."

Rockwell said he believed the platform would be decided tomorrow and that balloting would begin tomorrow afternoon or evening.

"There is a very strong effort being made now to bring out a platform that all can support," he said. "Asked if in his opinion there was any situation in any state that might lead to a bolt if the convention adopts a plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan, Mr. Rockwell replied:

"I do not know anything about that."

The McAdoo manager declared that the candidate would poll under 500, but more than 350 votes on the first ballot.

By the Calendar.
"Now, Bobby," said the teacher, "tell me which month has 29 days in it this year."

"They all have," answered Bobby. "The Progressive Grocer."

Convention Sidelights

BY OTIS PEABODY SWIFT.

Waldorf Hotel, New York, June 27.

This convention has reached the giggling stage. It is frankly hysterical. The saturation point of oratory has been passed.

That, as the experts say, is the outstanding feature of the fourth day of this verbal endurance contest, viewed from the psychopathic angle.

New York slushed through muck and puddles Friday, under gray rain. Yes, the sidewalks of New York were wet. The huge Japanese lanterns that hang like blazing suns over the convention pit cast a lurid, pinkish-red glow upon the bedlam beneath.

Mention of St. Patrick's day by a man seconding McAdoo raised the roof. Any drab jolt or moderately well made point threw the house into tumult. A committee man who had helped frame the rule that no speech should exceed five minutes droned on and on.

It grew late. The humid thousands were on edge. From the seats of the gallery gods a shrill voice "razed" a speaker. Something cracked. Up-roar swept the hall. On the platform the speaker still shouted, his battling voice coming through gusts of mock applause from the seething front.

It was the temper of the East Side theater crowd when, on amateur's night, someone shouts "get the heck out!" It was also the temper of the school room when, on a hot June afternoon, Jimmy Casey throws a spit-bill at the substitute teacher.

But there was something else in the roar of that gathering. It came in the deep throat, raring, cheering of tired men who wanted to stop the talk and get something done.

One of the operators who waggle telegraph bugs endlessly under the platform estimates that his particular colleagues are sending 100,000 news words a day from the garden. He just sends the words, he says, and doesn't read them.

"Gosh, anybody who read all that stuff would go nuts!" he commented.

RALSTON'S BOOM
OF CONVENTION

New York, June 27.—The Ralston boom hit the floor today. Taking advantage of an hour's delay in starting the proceedings, Thomas Taggart, pilot of the Indiana senator's candidacy, went into action personally and with great vigor.

Taggart visited about a dozen delegations and talked Ralston with leaders. As the convention started, he took his seat, smiled broadly and said he was "greatly pleased."

Because he does not want Ralston to record an early large vote, Taggart's friends declared he had asked a score or more of delegates, who wished to vote for the Indiana senator after the first ballot, to refrain from doing so.

"Wait until I give you the word," he counseled.

Persistent reports spread around the hall by McAdoo supporters to the effect that Taggart was ready to jump to their candidate were denied by him.

"Gone over?" he said. "Sure I've gone over to Samuel M. Ralston, and there I'll remain."

Close observers of Taggart's strategy think they see great significance in the close contact existing between Taggart and James M. Cox, of Ohio, who made the race in 1920. They have been in consultation by long distance telephone between here and Dayton, and Edmund Moore, Cox's manager, has met Taggart frequently here.

UNDERWOOD STAKING
ALL UPON KLAN ISSUE

New York, June 27.—Struggles of the convention platform architects with the Ku Klux Klan issue were of absorbing interest to supporters of Senator Oscar W. Underwood's campaign for the democratic presidential nomination. The demand that the Klan be named in a platform denunciation of the Klan activities came direct from the Alabama senator at the first shock of battle on the convention floor, and developments in the resolutions committee's prolonged deliberations have been held by the Underwood men to have great significance for them.

The Underwood headquarters were in full swing, as usual, tonight with an ever shifting throng of convention visitors. There was a steady uppour of conversation in the rooms all evening, but it was just general gossip and exchanges of greetings, an essential part of the groundwork of any political boom in the effort to cultivate friendship among the mass of delegates and their wives and daughters, who find their chief diversion in rambling around from headquarters to headquarters in the evening stroll through hotel lobbies.

Conference of a more important nature were in progress behind the scenes, however, and as a result of

NONPARTISAN LEAGUE ENTRY GOES IN LEAD

Fargo, N. D., June 27.—A. G. Sorlie, Nonpartisan league candidate for the republican gubernatorial nomination in Wednesday's primary election, swung into the lead over Governor R. A. Nestos, when 88 additional precincts had reported tonight. Nestos has conceded his defeat.

The latest figures gave Sorlie a lead of 168 over Nestos. Returns from 2,013 precincts out of 2,108 in the state gave Sorlie 67,914; Nestos, 67,746 and L. J. Moe, 5,784.

these the Underwood leaders, arguing that neither McAdoo nor Smith could be nominated, were putting forward that they felt assured the bulk of the Smith vote, because of its anti-Klan feeling, would swing to the Underwood supporters' column at some time during the balloting. They are counting on that to win.

Club Cooking School Closes

The last day of the cooking school at the Atlanta Woman's club proved the most interesting of the three days, when different kinds of cakes were demonstrated by Mrs. Inez B. Miller, food expert from Chicago, who was the guest of honor.

Left the auditorium prepared to enter the cake contest on Saturday, by taking Friday to bake their cakes. It is predicted that the largest variety of cakes ever baked in Atlanta before will be on exhibition Saturday morning when the prizes will be awarded for the three best cakes.

The contest was won by Mrs. D. L. MacIntyre, who baked a chocolate cake for the first prize and $25 each for the second and third prizes. Mrs. Miller, the demonstrator, has been untiring in her effort to give all the instruction possible, that was solicited from the clubwomen and their friends.

Williamson.

Mrs. J. A. Carlisle, chairman of the cake-baking contest, urged the women to have their cakes in their own homes. She said that the contest was not only a social event but a practical one in that it gave the women an opportunity to test their own cooking skills.

A wedding of much interest was that of Miss Terah Cowart and Lynn H. Smith, which was solemnized Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride on Fifth street. The occasion was characterized by simplicity and beauty.

The rooms were artistically decorated with summer flowers. In the living room an improvised altar was banked with palms, ferns and baskets of white gladioli with tall candles on either side, holding white burning tapers which shed a soft glow over the scene.

The musical program was in charge of John Waters. As a prelude, Rubenstein's "Kammer-Ostrov" was rendered. J. Harvey Trice sang "Until." At the first strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, Miss Mary Amos, of Forsyth, the bride's only attendant, accompanied by Dr. Ray Cowart, groomsmen, entered. Miss Amos wore a beautiful creation of canary colored georgette crepe and embroidered lace. Her hat was of rose straw, with garden flower trimmings. She wore a corsage of Russian roses.

During the reception the bride and groom left for an extended trip to Cincinnati, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other points, stopping finally at "Keewanaka," the summer home of the groom in the Adirondacks, where they will spend several days before going to Birmingham, N. Y., to reside.

HAD TO LET HOUSEWORK GO

So My Husband had to do the Work. Completely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

South Bend, Indiana.—"I was all run-down, tired out, and had pains in my back and bearing-down pains. I was so sore I could hardly drag myself around and was not able to do a bit of housework. My husband worked all day in the shop, and then came home and helped me at night. The doctor said I had female weakness, and there was no help but to be operated upon, and of course that would cost us a great deal. My husband heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the factory and one night he stopped at the drug store and bought me a bottle of it. I had begun to think there was no help for me, but I took three bottles of it and now I feel like myself once more. The price for three bottles wasn't so much as the doctor had charged. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough."—Mrs. DORA OSBORNE, 430 Sherman Ave., South Bend, Indiana.

Women troubled with female weakness should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

Little Ethel had received a teddy bear for her birthday, and had great difficulty in finding a suitable name for it. An error in manufacture had given the bear a cross-eyed appearance, which complicated matters still further. Finally Ethel decided to call it "Gladly."

"But Ethel," said her mother, "wherever did you get a name like that for your teddy bear?"
"Sun's school teacher told me that name," confided Ethel. She taught us 'bout a song which said sompin 'bout 'Gladly the cross I'd bear.'"

The Flapper and Her Brother.
(By Mrs. W. P. Emmett.)
We've heard of the flapper—today's leading feature;
Lacking modest virtues—a horrible creature;
Her fond parents, ah me! they are heartbroken quite,
At the provoking offspring of theirs—it's not right.

But son—he's as good as any boy needs to be;
He must "sow his wild oats." All "big" men do that, you see!

Now this had, both-headed flapper,
'Tis strange to relate,
Has a heart and a head that work early and late.
Though she sits in a street car that's crowded, she sees
The old lady standing: "Won't you take this seat, please?"
And son? He's so engrossed in his newspaper then,
And can see nothing else—it's a way with most men.

Let them avoid the flappers and groan at their clothing.
(The designers are men 'spite of all their loathing.)
For the good and the bad girls will ever be here
And the good for outnumber the bad—never fear!
And son? Though mother's joy an: dad's pride he may be Let them pick out a good little f.o.p. for me!

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

THE SECOND ENCOUNTER.

In a little while, the household at Soundview accustomed itself to the new regime. Julie was installed in the suite of rooms that she had occupied before her marriage to Norris Barclay.

Norris himself had gone west, looking for an opening in new fields. Before he left, he did two things, which proved his mettle. He declined Marjorie's generous offer to assist him, and he made such arrangements as were necessary to give his wife a speedy divorce.

Leila was still away with Ivan on concert tour. She wrote a tearful letter condoling with Julie, but not mentioning that she was particularly shocked by this off-with-the-old-on-with-the-new husband arrangement. Mrs. Boice-Nevis herself took the situation very philosophically; indeed, after she had heard the name of the new aspirant to the post of son-in-law, she beamed graciously.

Marjorie alone was suffering. She had broken the news to Tom Grosvenor, news of the fact that she couldn't marry him, and he had taken it badly. He couldn't understand, naturally, why, if she loved him, she refused to free herself from Reed Hollister, and she couldn't tell him. Cora Forester understood; but it was not her affair, and she could only look on with compassionate eyes.

Marjorie decided that it would be easier for her and Tom if they didn't see each other, and he agreed sulkily. He ran down to Pinehurst for awhile and she wandered drearily around the house, feeling incredibly lonely and missing his companionship keenly.

It was snowing a great deal and the wind howled through the bare-branched trees day and night. Curiously, the thought would often come to her of Hollister's mountain paradise. She would try to picture it gripped in the clutch of winter. She wondered how that vast pine-filled valley would look under its blanket of snow. She could picture the warm, cheery rooms with their crackling fires and bright rugs and deep, pillowed couches. There was a homey atmosphere even in her memory of them.

Why she should care to recall the scene of the darkest episode in her life she couldn't for the life of her fathom, especially why she should remember it without a shudder and with even a bit of pleasure. She supposed it was because her life was so dreary, so uneventful, with Tom away.

She went the weary social round that winter, driven to it by Mrs.

Boice-Nevis' insistence. Julie, too, lashed her to activity by her nervous, restless desire to be always going somewhere.

One afternoon Julie dragged her off to town to a charity bazaar, which was the culminating effort of a drive for some orphan asylum or other. Julie wasn't at all interested in orphans, but the bazaar had some of the most prominent names in America on its list of patronesses and all the fashionable world had promised its attendance.

"We'll have to buy a lot of useless things like back scratchers and knitted washcloths and sachet bags, but we can have tea anyway, and there isn't any place else to go this afternoon," thus Julie summed it up. The bazaar was crowded to suffocation when they arrived at the fashionable hour. The air was stifling and the noise deafening. A jazz orchestra blared dance music on a balcony. Laughter and chatter rose and fell like the waves on a noisy shore.

Marjorie was soon lost from Julie in the crush. She wandered about uninterestedly, buying something at this booth or that for the sake of charity.

A gushing lady in charge of a booth urged her to buy a chance on an awesome oil painting that might have been a grain elevator or a cross section of the Brooklyn bridge. Marjorie didn't know which and the lady couldn't tell her; but she handed out the desired amount and gave merely the name of Mrs. Hollister, when it was asked. She had grown shy of using Reed Hollister's name; it was too well known; it invariably let her in for embarrassing scrutiny, and sotto voce remarks accompanied by significantly raised brows, when she had passed on.

The gushing lady, busy scribbling her name on a card with the number she had purchased against the drawing which should take place later, remarked pleasantly:

"No relation to our splendid patron, Mr. Reed Hollister, I suppose." She took Marjorie's startled silence for negation and went on enthusiastically:

"Such a wonderful man, so kind and generous, giving us not only thousands of dollars for our worthy cause, but his personal support as well. He comes to the orphanage often and brings regular carloads of toys for the kiddies. They all love him. And I hear he's just as generous with other charities. A wonderful man!"

She glanced up from her writing and her eyes widened with delight. "Speaking of angels—" she gushed over Marjorie's shoulder. "Why, Mr. Hollister, how delightful! I was just talking about you to this lady. Her name is Hollister, too—"

Flushing furiously, Marjorie swung around to confront the grave, handsome face, the dark, inscrutable eyes of her husband.

A Blank Vacation.

"Hallo, there! And where are you off to? Not out of work, I hope?"
"No! I'm not out of work, I'm workin' at a domino factory."
"What department?" asked his friend. "Do you make boxes, or the dominoes, or what?"
"I make the spots on 'em."
"And why?" you making spots on 'em today, then?"
"Why," replied the other, "I've got a holiday today; they're making double blanks!"—The Progressive Grocer.

$50,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE

Flames destroyed the entire stock of groceries and feed in the store of the Gordon Grocery company, 101 Peters street, and damaged the four-story building Friday night.

In addition to the damage to the building occupied by the Gordon Grocery company, considerable loss from smoke and water was caused at the store adjoining, 180 Peters street.

Miss Smith will be night superintendent of nurses, while Miss Brown will have charge during the day.

WHITE MAN SLAYS NEGRO IN COURT

Columbia, Tenn., June 27.—Dorothy Twomey, apparently unable to reconcile the proceedings of the trial of Robert Wilson, negro, on the charge of attempted criminal assault upon the white man's sister, took the law in his own hands and emptied the contents of an automatic into the body of the negro. Wilson died instantly.

The shooting occurred late Friday afternoon in the circuit court room. Judge Thomas B. Lytle had just declared that the evidence in the case did not sustain the verdict of guilty returned by the jury and fixed sentence at two years in the penitentiary. He had ordered the verdict set aside and Wilson's bond fixed at $500.

At this point Twomey rose, confronted the negro with the weapon and fired the fatal shots, making it one of the most sensational killings in the history of this section.

ACTORS ARE UPHELD BY APPELLATE COURT

New York, June 27.—The appellate division of the supreme court today unanimously affirmed the order of Supreme Court Justice McCook denying an injunction to the Producing Managers' association against the Actors' Equity association and the Managers' Protective association.

The injunction was sought to restrain the contract providing for the employment of at least 80 per cent of equity members in theatrical casts presented by members of the Managers' Protective association. The contract also provides for the same proportion of equity members for vaudeville performances.

PEACHTREE ARCADE
ATLANTA, GA.CRITICISE TACTICS
OF SMITH BACKERSPressure Upon Delegates To Support Governor Proves Embarrassing
and To Some Revolving.BY THADDEUS H. CARAWAY, (United States Senator from Arkansas.)Madison Square Garden, New York, June 27.—Whether or not the democratic party is to be allowed to make a sane and considered selection of a presidential nominee or of a platform upon which that nominee can go-for the people is a question that trembles on the partisan scales in a city gone mad with selfish propaganda in favor of a local candidate.So far, this convention has demonstrated little except that to hold such a meeting in a city universally and pugnaciously prejudiced in the inter-ests of a single candidate is almost futile. Despite the presence here of 16 candidates of graduated prominence, there has been effected a single cleavage which divides this convention into but two factions.There are those who are for Al Smith and those who are not, and the Smith workers are battering down every other differentiating barrier in their mad efforts to seek out and convince men and women who came here to see for themselves and to determine their own choices.
Each of them, who maintains the heretofore unquestioned privilege of at least treading the path of personal conscience until the balloting has proceeded a bit, is the focal point of an organized mass of influence.This campaign of force and pressure is intended to win to the Smith candidate the two-thirds majority which it never can win, but the purpose actually serves to harass and hurry to the point of distraction.Revulsion at these blatant, untasteful methods of vote seeking is spreading throughout the delegation, and the harm it already has accomplished for the candidacy of the New York governor is as nothing to the hurt it may do the convention.MACCABEES RETAIN SILVER LOVING CUP
IN BIG CONTESTFor the second consecutive time Georgia Maccabees have won the silver loving cup offered by national headquarters of the organization in the international membership campaign. The trophy was reached at Atlanta late Friday night and plans are under way already to celebrate the event early in July.Under the rules of the campaign the state secured the greatest number of new members over a three-months' period is presented with a large loving cup, the name of winning state and date being inscribed on the cup. Georgia won the cup for the first three months of 1924, with one of the highest marks in the history of Maccabees and, therefore, was entitled to possession of the cup for a period of three months.Accordingly the cup arrived and was placed on display at Franklin & Cox's drug store, corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets. On Monday the cup, which was won by the state of Georgia, will be moved to the Weinstock's, in the Peachtree Arcade.The contest between the states has been close and hard-fought throughout Georgia emerging winner only after a strenuous campaign in which leading officials of Maccabees have taken prominent part.The report received from headquarters disclosed that Atlanta Maccabees, with the aid of Dalton, Rome, Macon, Columbus and other tents in the six-month average.In the past 13 weeks Georgia has led on 11 week-ends, according to official figures, standing out among other states in the great national campaign.

Taggart Compares
Senator Ralston
To His RacehorseNew York, June 27.—Out in Indiana, Thomas Taggart, the Indiana democratic leader, has a race horse named "Senator" in honor of Senator Ralston, which used to win a lot of races. And tonight, after a busy day trying to pledge delegations to Ralston as their second choice, Taggart said he visualized Ralston winning the presidential nomination here just as "Senator" used to win his races."Senator" laid back for seven-eighths of a mile and finished first in the stretch, regardless of his position early in the race," Taggart said.
"Other horses used to run away from Senator" during the first part of the race, and throw a lot of dirt on him as they went by, but he always brought home the bacon.There isn't another candidate, perhaps, who isn't closer to the rail.
Naturally, to the casual observer, that looks bad for my horse. But I am not worried. All will come out well.

Predicts Strong Finish.

"I've owned a number of race horses and seen a lot of races, and it has been my observation that the horses which travel fastest in the first part of the race, seldom win. As in horse races, we have two leading candidates in this race. I wouldn't say that either is going to win, but I do cite my observations on past horse races for your consideration."When this race starts, Ralston will be on the outside, just as he is now. He will still trail at the half.
But the leaders will be tiring, perhaps. He may trail at the seven-eighths. I suspect he will. But he will finish strong. He will come home in front regardless of how far he may be back earlier in the race, or how much dust is thrown in our eyes by the other horses."Asked how the other "horses" would finish, Taggart refused to comment."When Senator took first money, I never worried about how second and third money was divided," he said.

Divides Time in Camps.

Taggart divided his time about equally today between talking to delegates about votes when he wants them, and denying rumors that he has made deals with various camps. Because he is trying to maintain friendly relations with all candidates, some of the more enthusiastic followers of certain candidates have reported he has gotten behind their men.

One story, which gained wide currency today, was that Taggart had agreed to go to William G. McAdoo if the Californian could "come within Indiana's 30 votes of nomination." Taggart vigorously denied this. He said that he had refused to talk about any candidate but Ralston with the McAdoo people, but had added that if they got within 30 votes of the nomination, they might then begin talking McAdoo to him. But he insisted that was distinctly not a promise to support McAdoo, and that he had no intention of doing anything except "staying with Ralston."

Responsible for Adjournment.

Indicative of the role of everybody's friend which Taggart is endeavoring to play, he was responsible today for obtaining the adjournment

PLANK NAMING KLAN IS LOST BY SINGLE VOTE; CONVENTION VETOES WILSON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

NEWTON D. BAKER STIRS CONVENTION IN GREAT SPEECH

Despite Appeal in Name of Woodrow Wilson, Plank Is Beaten More Than 2 to 1 on Floor.

OFTEN INTERRUPTED
BY ROUND OF CHEERS

Many of Delegates Openly Weep—Rabbi Wise Backs Up Baker's Plea for League.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 28.—Rejecting Newton D. Baker's substitute plank on the league of nations for the party platform, the democratic national convention tonight, in the first round of its platform fight, voted by a substantial majority to stand by its resolutions committee.

The vote on the first of the contested planks in the platform came after a most dramatic appeal to the convention by Mr. Baker to consider the memory of Woodrow Wilson and put in an out-and-out Wilsonian plank for the league of nations.

Other party leaders argued that the majority plank proposed a more practical way to accomplish the object of getting the United States into the league and the convention sustained them.

The vote was 353 1-2 for adoption of the Baker plank and overturning the resolutions committee, and 742 1-2 votes for adopting the majority report of the resolutions committee and adopting the plank it presented. There were two votes absent.

"You will repudiate Woodrow Wilson if you do this," Mr. Baker had told the convention before it voted.

Scoring the majority plank in detail as being composed of provisions which would lead to nothing, Mr. Baker exclaimed:

"My boy will be dead on a battlefield and a tombstone will be placed over his grave before the senate gets to full and due consideration of this question in the way proposed here," exclaimed Mr. Baker, as, in his emotion, he almost climbed up over the speaker's desk with gestures to his audience.

The former war secretary, as he went on to state his case with great emphasis and feeling, was cheered repeatedly. He declared the majority plank "revolutionary" in its proposal for a referendum, and inconsistent in that it praised the league and then failed to endorse American membership in it.

"After all those honeyed phrases of praise for the league," he said, "there is not a syllable in this plank that asks we should go into the league until after an illegal, preposterous, revolutionary referendum."

"What they propose is that the league be lifted out of party politics and deposited nowhere. They place us in a position where the republicans can say, 'Four years ago the democratic party was for the league; now they are not for it or against it; they are affectionately disposed, but not disposed to matrimony.'"

Ridicules Procedure.
Detailing the steps that must be taken under the referendum plank, the speaker called attention to the provision that the vote should be taken "after full consideration" by the president, congress and the people at the polls.

"And then when all of that is over," he said, "and my son is dead on a battlefield from which I am trying to keep him, perhaps we shall join the league—after full consideration."

"I am not speaking to democrats. I am speaking to humanity. I have sat over in that room in the hotel across the street, listening to talk about party expediency until I am sick, and I'm speaking now about matters, not of politics, but of life and death."

There was another loud outburst of cheering when the former secretary declared the committee majority

GREENBERG DENIES BIG MAIL ROBBERY

Alleged "Master Mind" Asserts Charge Against Him Is "Conspiracy" To Injure His Character.

East St. Louis, June 28.—Max Greenberg, alleged master mind in the $200,000 mail robbery at Chicago, June 12, in a statement made public by his attorney, Charles A. Karch, former United States district attorney here, denies taking part in the robbery and asserts the charge against him is a "conspiracy" to injure his character.

In his statement, which Mr. Karch said was dictated to him over the telephone from New York by the alleged fugitive, Greenberg asserts that with- in an hour after he was apprised of the alleged confession of Willie Newton, now under arrest in Chicago, in connection with the holdup implicating him in the robbery, he called the headquarters of the United States department of justice and postoffice inspectors in New York and requested an immediate investigation.

"It is now a matter of record in these departments that I am entirely innocent of this crime, and that I had absolutely no connection, directly, indirectly, immediately or immediately with its perpetration."

Greenberg has been named as the leader of the gang that plotted the holdup of the mail train. It is alleged that the details of the robbery were planned in a saloon in East St. Louis.

BROADWAY BOOM ENDS AS THEATERS
DOUSE BIG LIGHTS

New York, June 28.—Broadway's convention boom exploded tonight. Ten plays, whose managers had counted on delegates' patronage to carry them on for a week or so beyond the season's deadline, closed their doors.

"It wasn't so much that the convention people didn't go to the theaters," said one producer, "but they actually kept other people from going."

Another said that the rush the theatrical folk had counted on did not materialize.

"Why, the convention's a show in itself," he added.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
New York, June 28.—(Special.)—In the beginning party leaders were practically unanimous on the Ku Klux Klan. Everybody believed that the principles and practices commonly associated with the klan should be condemned. The only difference of opinion, in those early stages of the convention, was about the language, and that difference was not, at that stage, serious.

Some wanted to merely reaffirm the constitutional guarantees about religious freedom. Some wanted to keep the essence of the plank in the Virginia state platform. Some wanted to keep a portion of the ancient democratic platform on the "Know-Nothings."

After some discussion, it was agreed that the plank should not stop with the mere repetition of constitutional guarantees, but should meet the situation that actually exists. It was agreed that the plank should affirm belief in religious liberty and denounce all organized effort to proscribe any man because of his race or religion.

Did Not Want Name Used.
With equal unanimity, in this early stage of the convention, it was agreed not to mention the klan by name. This was satisfactory to the Catholics and Jews among the party leaders, and to Catholics and Jews eminent in public life outside of politics; not only was it satisfactory to them, it was what they preferred. The leading Catholics and Jews in the convention and out of it did not want to mention the klan by name. They believed that to do so would merely increase intolerance and prolong it rather than soften its rancor, or shorten its life.

They believed that the mention of the klan in the platform would give the exploiters of the klan the opportunity to enlist hundreds of thousands more members. The leading Catholics and Jews whose voices had weight in the convention were in favor of mildness, on the ground that the best way to meet intolerance is with tolerance. They believed that the principles and practices associated with the klan

3 PERSONS DEAD IN IOWA TORNADO

Sandusky, Ohio, Also Hit by Heavy Storm—Property Damage Mounts
High.

Boone, Iowa, June 28.—Three persons are reported to have been killed at Fort Dodge, Iowa, by the storm which swept that city last night. The report has not been verified.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 28.—A tornado hit Sandusky late this afternoon, doing thousands of dollars of damage, and possibly causing some loss of life. The city is left without telephone service or electric lights. Fears are held that lake boats have been caught in the storm. Business buildings and houses have been unroofed. Several persons were swept into the bay from local docks.

350 Persons Dead, 2,000 Are Injured Along Lake Erie

Terrific Hurricane Sweeps Lorain, Sandusky and Other Towns in 50-Mile Swath, Causing Millions of Loss, in Addition to Dead and Injured—Greatest Catastrophe Occurs in Theater at Lorain.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Chicago, June 28.—A terrific hurricane late today struck along the south shore of Lake Erie, devastating several towns and cities and taking a toll of 350 lives. Buildings, bridges and trees were levelled, and probably 2,000 persons were injured during the brief but destructive storm.

The wind swept a path nearly 50 miles wide from Sandusky bay to a point between Lorain and Cleveland. The most extensive damage thus far reported was at Lorain, where rows of buildings were blown over and a theater was partly caved in on a Saturday afternoon audience.

The storm descended almost without warning, overturned automobiles, unroofed houses and swept by so rapidly that beds and other furniture were left almost untouched. The property damage will amount to many millions of dollars and reports have not begun to come from the other regions.

Most Casualties in Lorain.
The curious wind wrecked a large part of Lorain and killed perhaps 200 of the 4,000 inhabitants. No count has been made of the injured, but estimates run as high as 1,500. For several hours after the storm abated, the uninjured citizens labored alone to rescue the injured and dying from the wrecked theater. It was in this building that most of the casualties occurred. The storm seemed to concentrate on the theater after knocking down other buildings and shook it so severely that part of the building was tumbled down on imprisoned spectators.

A large portion of the city fared little better, for in places almost entire blocks were devastated and reports tonight said that upwards of 50 persons were lying in the debris of what was once their homes.

Sandusky Hard Hit.
Sandusky, perched on a hill open to the wide-spread bay, was hit a terrific blow by the mad wind and the streets were soon filled with wreckage, hurtling about the heads of frantic residents seeking protection from the elements.

Upwards of 100 persons were reported to have been killed in and near Sandusky, but one railroad report said that only five were known to be dead, although many were injured and buildings along the water front were wrecked.

In Sandusky harbor, ferry boats were capsized, larger craft were torn from their moorings and swept out into the bay, and two boats belonging to Henry Ford were reported in distress. There also were reports that several small passenger steamers plying between Sandusky and near-by islands had been wrecked.

The Sandusky water pumping station was put out of commission and several fires were reported, while the city was without protection from flames. The sporadic fires were overcome, however, by hard work and the citizens at once set about on the task of clearing up the wreckage.

Passenger Boats Caught.
Passenger boats reported to have been caught in the storm included the G. A. Boeckling, excursion steamer running from Sandusky to Cedar

BY THE UNITED NEWS.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 28.—Andrew C. Erwin, Athens, Ga., almost threw the convention into a stampede here this evening when he stepped out from the Georgia delegation and from the speaker's platform denounced the Ku Klux Klan.

He was speaking in support of the minority report of the resolutions committee, which definitely mentioned the klan as a secret society not in keeping with the constitutional provision guaranteeing religious and racial equality to all citizens of the United States.

"Meet the klan issue squarely and victory will be yours," Erwin said. "I come from Georgia and we've been trying for five years to get you Yankees to talk about this subject."

Erwin intimated that klan agents were traveling from one state convention to another trying to control political conventions.

Georgia Delegates Sit.
In behalf of Georgians Erwin said he urged acceptance of the minority report, condemning the klan.

Erwin protested against the stigma which had been raised against his state on account of the klan issue. A generous demonstration greeted Erwin when he finished and increased when the Georgia delegation refused to stand and join in the applause. The Georgians persisted in sticking to their seats as the crowd taunted them and cheered Erwin, who received a reception from delegates along the line on his return to the floor.

The cheering grew and a procession of state standards started to the neighborhood of the Georgia delegation.

Rhode Island and New Jersey led the parade, Massachusetts joined and then some New Yorkers grabbed his state standard and started for the Georgia crowd.

Yells Rip Garden Air.
The yells mounted to a constantly rising crescendo. Other states represented in the march toward the Georgia delegation included Wisconsin, Illinois, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Iowa, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine.

As the band struck up "Marching Through Georgia" the demonstration reached a festive, cheering stage which culminated in several delegates hoisting Erwin on their shoulders and with him at the head, began a parade around the garden.

The contagion spread. Delaware and Utah joined. Order was restored when the band struck up the "Star-Spangled Banner," the surest device to quell political demonstrations.

Vernon West, 14, of 969 South Moreland avenue, Saturday afternoon suffered two bad gashes on the head when he dove into shallow water in the Grant park swimming pool, striking his head on the concrete bottom. He was taken to Grady hospital, where his injuries were dressed.

The boy told hospital attendants that he was unfamiliar with the pool, and thought that he was diving into the deep end.

Issue of Klan Overshadows All

"Boom Row" Stilled by Absence of Delegates,
All of Whom Were on Convention Floor.

New York, June 28.—The klan issue overshadowed all else today at the democratic national convention and "boom row"—the candidates' headquarters—was almost deserted, and the campaign managers virtually ceased to campaign.

Disposition of the klan question in the platform fight waged in the platform committee and in the full convention touched so directly on the candidacies of several aspirants for the party's highest honor that the forces behind these men packed up and went to Madison Square Garden. Besides, all of their working materials—the delegates—were down there.

Most of the emanations from the headquarters, as it was, revolved about the klan question.

Smith Withdrawal Denied.
Franklin D. Roosevelt, campaign manager for Governor Alfred E. Smith, denied that his candidate would withdraw if the convention voted down the Smith-supported plank for specific condemnation of the klan.

David L. Rockwell, leader of the forces behind William G. McAdoo, also touched on the klan question in a public statement, declaring that a would an anti-klan plank be voted into the platform, Mr. McAdoo would in no way consider himself eliminated by his chances adversely affected.

Thomas Taggart, the Indiana leader, like Brer Rabbit, "he lay low" while the klan battle was the hottest, but even he had been forced out early in the day when an attempt was made in some quarters to fasten the klan label on his candidate, Senator Samuel M. Ralston. Taggart denied it vigorously, meeting the stories with a smile, but declaring Ralston would welcome anti-klan, klan and any other kind of support he could get, as he was "the candidate of all factions and people," even though he was not a klanman.

These declarations by three of the leading campaign managers were interpreted as a move to set the sails

Plank Decry Hooded Order—Convention Adjourns to Monday.

The Anti-Klan Plank.
Madison Square Garden, New York, June 28.—The substitute plank on the Ku Klux Klan submitted by the minority headed by William R. Pattingall, of Maine, and rejected by the convention, proposed to add to the language of the majority plank the following language:

"We condemn secret political societies of all kinds, as opposed to the exercise of free government, contrary to the spirit of the Declaration of Independence and the constitution of the United States. We pledge the democratic party to oppose any effort on the part of the Ku Klux Klan or any organization to interfere with the religious liberty or political freedom of any citizen or to limit the civil rights of any citizen or body of citizens because of religion, birthplace, or racial origin."

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Madison Square Garden, New York, June 28.—The democratic platform will not single out the Ku Klux Klan by name.

The decision came early Sunday morning after a 10-hour continuous session in which some of the most disorderly scenes in convention history were enacted.

The vote on the klan was very close and its taking was surrounded with scenes of acrimony and dispute such as have not been witnessed in years on the floor of a national convention.

Challenges Frequent.
When, after repeated challenges and changes of votes in the various delegations the result was announced, it was 542 3-20 votes in favor of the plank as the committee recommended and 641 3-20 in favor of the minority plank, which would have singled out the Ku Klux Klan by name.

Then a roll call was demanded on the adoption of the platform as a whole and as submitted by the platform committee.

There was more disorder with a hundred delegates calling for recognition and the chairman shouting at the top of his voice and scarcely able to make himself heard. When a roll call was demanded on the platform the chair announced that the required number of seconds were not presented.

The platform as a whole was adopted by a viva voce vote in which the eyes and the nose were mixed in a mighty chorus, but Chairman Walsh, bringing down the gavel, declared the motion to adopt the platform carried.

Roosevelt Gets Adjournment.
Then while all the members were at its height, Franklin D. Roosevelt, rising himself to his feet on his crutches, made himself heard above the riot and shouted: "We have now proceeded to the morning of the Sabbath day. I move that the convention adjourn until 9:30 o'clock Monday morning."

There was a rolling chorus of ayes and a rolling chorus of noes but Chairman Walsh, evidently exhausted, brought down the gavel with a wallop and declared the motion to adjourn carried.

The convention piled out into the streets in the same disorder which had characterized ten hours of continuous session.

Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, opened the discussion of the plank dealing with the Klan. He was speaking for the majority report which does not name the Klan.

It appears before you now in a position in which I am entirely free to express my opinion as well as to defend the majority resolution now before you," said the senator in beginning, explaining that he was about to retire from public life.

"This is a most critical question," said Senator Owen. "This is not a question as to the Ku Klux Klan winning or losing. This is a difference of judgment between the large majority of the members of your committee and a minority of the same committee."

Majority Plank Liberal.
The majority members present with a plank declaring in strong terms freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of the right of every individual to the protection of the laws. The only difference between the minority and the majority is whether the national constitution shall stipulate that the Klan is containing sometimes the vilest and basest of criminals who have worn the mask to indulge themselves in some criminal act.

"That is probably true. It is also true that there are other lunatics in the country, who don't wear this shroud. It is also true that there are other criminals in the country who do not wear this hood. I have been amazed to see this controversy between Democrats as to what is the party policy represented by the press as being that of a victory for the Ku Klux Klan. It is neither one nor the other.

"As for myself, I would not knowingly deprive any American citizen, however humble, of his right to worship God in his own way.

"I have been taken care of by negroes all my life and I should despise myself if I wounded the feelings of the humblest negro in the land. When Justice Brandeis made a justice of the supreme court of the United States, I admired his great brain and character. I did not care that he was a Jew. From the Jews, we received the blessing of the Bible. Our Christian doctrine is in the teachings of a Jew. When our sons went to war in America's great battle, we did not ask their race, or creed, or color.

Cries of "No" by Audience.
"Shall we now allow the democratic party with the greatest opportunity in all history to be Gentile?"

There were cries of "no" from the audience. "Shall we use this question in any way directly or indirectly to promote or demote any candidates whatever? My fellow democrats, let us be careful. This is a question of principle as a member of the committee said we didn't have the courage to name the K. K. K. Well, I've got the courage to name the K. K. K. I'm not afraid of a Ku Klux Klan, living or dead. There wasn't any Ku Klux Klan in Louisiana, the K. K. K. was charged with killing some people at Mer Rouge. It never was proven, and Louisiana passed a law declaring that no man without permission should wear a mask. They didn't want to stop the Mardi Gras.

Have Laws to Control.
"We have laws in this country to control the Ku Klux Klan. We have those laws in Oklahoma. We can tear the mask off of them. They tried to nominate a man there for governor, and the good democrats and Protestants and Catholics liked the stuff out of them. We're not afraid of them politically or any other way. The only issue is, will you say by voice of this convention that the membership of the Ku Klux Klan are guilty of violating the constitutional provisions? They were not indicted presented before us to that effect. I don't defend the Ku Klux. I think there are some brilliant rascals among them. But I know too, there's a large number of good citizens among them who believed in joining the order that was committed to obey and preserve and protect the constitution and the laws of the country."

At that there was a mixture of applause and boos and hisses from the galleries.

Senator Owen concluded his address at that point and was succeeded on the rostrum by Mr. Pattangall.

Paragraph Is Issue.
"It was suggested by the senator from Oklahoma that there was a difference between the propositions before you," began Mr. Pattangall. "We approved and accepted every single word that was put in the platform by the majority, but we added to it a supplementary declaration. If you had an opportunity to examine the report of the majority you would find that the plan merely reiterated the rights preserved to American citizens under the bill of rights and the constitution. We have done nothing more than add a paragraph which applies those abstract principles to a concrete case."

Here Mr. Pattangall read the minority addition to the platform which mentions the name of the Ku Klux Klan.

"We condemn political secret societies," read Mr. Pattangall from the platform. "Does anybody object to that?" There were a chorus of "noes."

Then he went on to finish the reading of the plank, including the name of the Ku Klux Klan and a wave of applause swept the hall.

He Questions Convention.
"Now, is there anybody," he asked, "who is so ignorant of what is going on in American life today that he does not know that the secret society we name lays down as part of its principle that no man who is a Jew or a foreign-born is eligible to office?"

"Is there any denial of that?" he demanded. There were noes.

Then Mr. Pattangall read the remainder of the declaration and continued:

"Senator Owen says he is willing to name the Klan. On the platform of this convention in New York city, I want to name it all over the United States in this platform. I want to name it wherever the gospel of democracy is preached at all. Every man on that committee approached the subject with the desire to do what was right and we all agreed that something had to go into the platform on this situation."

Difference In Frankness.
"The principal difference of thought was whether the platform would be absolutely frank or not. It is unwise to name the Klan. It is unwise to put something in the platform that means the Klan. There is something more here than the mere name. There has crept into American life so strong an influence in certain states that certain senators told me last night that if they opposed the Klan they could not be re-elected. There has crept into the life of the United States an influence so strong that it needs examination. And when we find it approaching the principles of religious freedom it is proper that some great party should stand for the things that we all believe in."

"This organization couldn't discriminate against me—I have all the qualifications of membership. I wonder when Senator Owen voted for a draft in 1917 if he only voted to draft the boys who were white, Protestant and native-born. When society said to me that a man born of Jewish parents or in the Catholic faith can't be called to serve his country in civil life but can be called to serve his country in military life when it needs them, I'll condemn them wherever I meet them."

Convention Roars Approval.
At that the convention went into an uproar of demonstration.

"I am a democrat because I was taught to believe that the fundamental creed of the party was that Americans of every section were equal on a democratic platform. There needs to be sent out over the whole United States a message from democracy that our party hates bigotry, hates intolerance and opposes them because it hates them. It hates hypocrisy and therefore calls bigotry and intolerance by their right names when it speaks of them."

There was a great deal of favorable demonstration on the floor when the senator concluded, but most of the noisy demonstration came from the galleries.

Mrs. Carroll Miller, of Pittsburgh, who seconded the nomination of Governor Smith, also spoke for the minority plank proposed by Mr. Pattangall.

"What would you think of a home in America where the children should be taught in fear of the Ku Klux Klan?"

Names Places of Fear.
"There are such places where citizens guaranteed constitutional protection are denied the attributes of a free life. Places where the foreign born are discriminated against by the shopkeeper. Places where the foreign born wife waiting for a husband to return from his work is never sure that he will not be mobbed before he returns to his family. In the mountains of my own state this guerrilla organization recently terrorized a community and three persons were killed. Do you call that America? Do you call that Christianity? You say that political expediency demands our silence on the subject? Since when has the democratic party knelt before the God of political expediency?"

"I rather go down to defeat in 1924, than did in 1920, on a clear-cut moral issue than win on an issue you can't recognize. Let us democrats remember it is better to be a doorkeeper in the house of God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness forever."

"If we fight this demon without fear and in the open we leave our children a heritage of honor, integrity and peace, concluded Mrs. Miller while the convention gave her a roaring demonstration of approval, some of which came from the floor and a lot of which also came from the galleries."

Then the other side of the question came on again in an argument by Governor Morrison, of North Carolina.

Morrison Decides "Antis."
"I have not risen to speak in defense of the Ku Klux Klan," began the governor, "but I do desire to say something of the rights of the men who mistakenly belong to the Ku Klux Klan. Who are they? About one million men who profess the Protestant form of Christian religion which is not discriminatory to anyone in American life."

"Are we without trial or evidence in a political convention to try, condemn and execute men who are professed followers of the Lord? What do we mean by religious liberty? We mean there shall be no legal test for office, there shall be no discrimination in the land against any man on account of his religious feeling. But has any party ever pledged itself to prevent foolish religious intolerance and bigotry? We cannot do it. I love many Jews and I love many Catholics and I have appointed both to office and laughed at the Ku Klux Klan since becoming governor of North Carolina. These men who can't get into this order unless they profess to be Christians have organized this association into which they won't let a Catholic or a Jew. They want to be so foolish and isolate themselves how can we prevent it by the action of a convention? It is a case for the keepers of the Protestant cause in the United States. It is not a matter for governmental action until they violate the law and then the police power should act with the swiftness of lightning and the determination of a just God."

My American Minority Plan.
"My American brothers, let us deal with this matter in a high, just and wise way as becomes not the followers of political standards but the followers of the standards of the Lord Jesus Christ. We believe that when the great democratic party speaks to the American people in this majority resolution of the people of the country will kneel in front of the constitution. It will kill the Ku Klux Klan if we adopt it and the suggestion of the majority will make ten million Ku Klux in the next ten days, in my judgment."

Governor Morrison finished by launching a boom for Senator Walsh.

"I'd like to see this great Catholic made candidate for president or vice president of the United States," said the governor.

Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, then took the platform to speak for the adoption of the minority substitute.

"Both the resolutions are aimed at the Ku Klux Klan," said Colby. "One is singularly deft in avoiding the name of the Ku Klux Klan. The purpose of them said nothing about the Ku Klux Klan. What sort of a committee on resolutions is that?"

Klan Branded Un-American.
"This un-American, this poisonous, this alien thing in our midst, abhorrent to the principles of democracy, to our institutions, in the precepts of Americanism—I have no sympathy with a group of gentlemen who move only at the dead of night in the protection of pillow cases and shrouds. These are not the hallmarks of sportsmen or courageous men and thank God they are not the uniform of any Americanism with which I am familiar."

"I am opposed to the majority resolution report. It is an obviously stuttering and stammering and falling thing," said Colby. "I don't satisfy my manhood. It is no credit to the democratic party. It is a party that cares nothing if it knows it is right. I approve the minority report because it is simple, lucid and true and expresses the thought. The Ku Klux Klan is composed of either vicious or foolish people. It is one of those temporary things of history which manifests itself like a distemper."

Skulkers by Night.
"There isn't a man here who would not regard a membership in the Klan as a reflection on his character. That's why they move at night under cover and skulk away. They are ashamed. I venture to predict that in a short time you will not find K. K. members; you will not even find the man who remembers he was a member."

"It would be a retreat, a betrayal, a desertion of democracy to do less than adopt this minority report and put this simple and unmistakable declaration in our platform."

More cheers from the galleries greeted Mr. Colby's closing and then Senator Walsh, the chairman, introduced Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts.

He spoke for the adoption of the minority report also.

"If I followed my personal wishes I would remain silent," said he. "I would leave to those of other religious convictions than my own the advocacy of this platform."

"But it is an occasion where silence might be construed as timidity and therefore I rise as an American, a Christian and a democrat to speak from the home of Pilgrims and Puritans."

The silence of democrats of my religious convictions might be construed as a disposition on the part of my coreligionists to remain silent and to refuse to accept the verdict on this vital question. Let there be no mistake about those of us who vote for this amendment. We will accept the verdict and we expect the other side to accept the verdict. If our fight fails we go forth disappointed but we will not sulk, we will not waver, we will not desert. We take our posts of duty fighting with you in the front ranks against our common political enemy."

"If our cause fails our answer will be the reply of the school boys of Boston common who replied to the British General Gage that they were Americans."

Will Not Sulk In Defeat.
"The cause for which we stand will not be abandoned even though you hesitate to speak today. The democratic party has always been the friend of the immigrant. In our party Catholic and Jew and foreign born have found asylum and have enjoyed its place and leadership. It has been the party of the downtrodden and the poor on every great question. It has always been the party of those least able to speak for themselves. I speak for those who ask no favor of privilege in time of peace but only ask the privilege in time of war to die for their country. They demand no protective tariff, no special privileges, no favors. . . but who merely ask of their government and their party that they be protected in the enjoyment of their inalienable rights."

"This issue is not sectional. It is not the north against the south. It is Americans who love liberty everywhere against every Ku Klux in every corner of the United States. It is not a religious issue. This motion is opposed by those who believe in the principles of this organization. It is posed by Americans who denounce the Ku Klux Klan. This organization has no open public condemnation effect of an open public condemnation."

"If you can denounce bolshevism you can denounce Ku Kluxism. Deny any man here question that this organization seeks to deny the right of holding public office to Catholic, Jew or foreign born?"

Denies Klan Demonstration.
"The chairman said in his speech that our country needs a Paul Revere. Then in God's name inscribe on his banner as goes forth from this convention religious freedom for all." E. H. Moore, of Youngstown, Ohio, followed Senator Walsh. He said he had been informed that the imperial wizard and the grand dragon had been boasting he had secured twenty votes against the minority plank in the Ohio delegation.

"I don't believe it," said Mr. Moore. "If it's true, that's all right, but can we in here get us all in his vest pocket, I for one propose to crawl out."

"I will discuss with you the political aspect of this situation. If you think this minority plank will beat a candidate I wouldn't give a penny for the nomination in this convention. You all know that if we don't denounce the Ku Klux Klan then no politician in the south but who must go home and ally himself with the Klan."

"The middle class," he continued, "politician would not ally himself with the Klan, and he proceeded to analyze the political aspects of the situation."

Earns Demonstration.
Andrew C. Erwin, of Athens, Ga., who followed Mr. Moore, said the Ku Klux Klan was the most vital element of the party had to determine.

Erwin, who apparently was the only delegate in the Georgia delegation to favor the denunciation of the Klan, stirred up a demonstration that ended in an uproar. A big virile young fellow, he strode back to his seat in the delegation after he finished his denunciation of the Klan. A young woman rushed forward from another delegation and kissed him. Then a parade of the standards from other states to the Georgia space followed and soon the standards of Alabama, Wyoming, Arizona, Kentucky, Maryland, Iowa, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Louisiana, Rhode Island, District of Columbia, Maine, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Vermont, Illinois, South Dakota, Utah and Massachusetts and Delaware were grouped around them. Still the Georgia delegates remained in their seats and refused to rise. The men from other delegations carried Erwin around the hall. Then the band played the Star Spangled Banner, bringing everyone to attention and the convention went back to business again.

Taggart Stops Indiana.
During the demonstration Tom Taggart prevented the Indiana banner from going into the demonstration. Jared W. Sanders was the next speaker.

"In Louisiana," he said, "we already have gone through what democrats here are going through. We had the bigot and the zealot. We had the honest and the dishonest. We had in our campaign men who sought to capitalize the Klan and men who sought to capitalize anti-Klanism. But when a candidate took the field in Louisiana appealing to race and religion, backed by the city and state government, and practically every newspaper in Louisiana, there were those who thought that above anti-Klan there was true Americanism. And a candidate ran on the principles of religious freedom and liberty and drew the line on no order of any description, submitting his candidacy to the tolerant men and women of Louisiana."

"That man running on that platform with all these influences against him made such an appeal that he won by the greatest majority ever given a democratic candidate in our state."

democrats who have been my collaborators. I have spoken to you on many themes, but never on any more important than this one today. "They take your applause out of my time, so keep still and let me speak to you," said he.

"We'll do it," called back a voice in the gallery.

"Let's understand each other, let's eliminate the things that are not in this issue and come down to the three words that our friends would take out and exalt above any others in this campaign," said Mr. Bryan.

"We said to them, 'strike out three words of your report and there'll be no more objection.' But three words were more to them than the welfare of a party."

"We have read to you the best democratic platform ever written. "But I call you to witness that these men never took the standards of their states and marched when we appealed on great principles; it was only when the Ku Klux Klan came in."

At that point Bryan came in for a great deal of booing and howling from the galleries which stopped the proceedings altogether. In a minute the booing came so loud Bryan could not continue.

Chairman Walsh, in angry tones, shaking his gavel at the galleries, shouted that he would have them cleared if they did not desist interrupting the speakers.

"The laws protect every one," continued Bryan when quiet was restored. "The Catholic church does not need a great party to protect it from a million men. The Jews do not need the resolution. They have Moses and Elijah; they have Elisha, who was able to draw back the curtain and show on the mountain tops a host greater than the thousands of the Ku Klux Klan."

"The Ku Klux Klan doesn't deserve the advertising," continued Bryan. "Mr. Colby tells you this organization soon will die; if that be true, the slogan of the minority ought to be 'bury up if you would see George, he's nearly gone.' One of the reasons I oppose this minority report is that I am not willing to lift up the dying embers and start a prairie fire and carry this issue into every congressional district in the United States."

"We have no right to permit them to divert us from as great a mission as a party ever had. It requires more courage to fight the republican party than it does to fight the Ku Klux Klan."

"You may call me a coward if you will, but there's nothing in my life to justify the charge. But I'd rather have the anathemas of these misguided democrats than to have to answer on the judgment day for a trust disregarded. Anybody can fight the Ku Klux Klan, but only the democratic party can stand between the common people and their oppressors in this land. Beside that I'm not willing to bring discord into my party."

As usual Mr. Bryan talked about his gratitude to the party and the Christian religion. He paraphrased his feeling for the party on the lines of "woodman spare that tree." "Partisan spare that party," he paraphrased while the audience laughed.

"Religion is more important than politics," said Bryan, unable to resist the temptation to deliver a bit of a sermon. "What the country needs is to get back to God."

For several minutes Mr. Bryan treated the audience to some of the best portions of one of his celebrated lectures, to hear which one generally buys a ticket.

The first sermon preached in Atlanta was "Behold the Lamb of God Takedown Away the Sin of the World."

EXCHANGE CLUB MEET TO HEAR LEGISLATORS

Believing that state and national legislatures are passing hundreds of needless and harmful laws which can not possibly be enforced, the Exchange Club of Atlanta, with the Griffin Exchange club, and hundreds of other clubs of this organization, will devote its meeting Tuesday to discussion of this evil.

The Atlanta Exchange club will have as its guests the Griffin club and members of the Georgia legislature at the meeting Tuesday, which will be held at 8:30 o'clock at Verner lodge, on Peachtree road. Dr. J. W. Quinn, president of the local club, will act as toastmaster, and addresses will be delivered by Dr. O. L. Bricker, on behalf of the Atlanta club, and by L. P. Goodrich, of the Griffin club. Miss Bessie Kempton, representative from Fulton, and Colonel A. S. Bussey, of Cordele, a prominent member of the general assembly, will deliver addresses.

FULTON SUPPLY CO. AWARDED $8,849.78 CONSENT VERDICT

A consent verdict in favor of the Fulton Supply company for $8,849.78 together with interest accruing since 1918, aggregating $695.34, for taxes paid by error that year, was returned in federal district court Saturday morning against J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue for Georgia. Part of this amount returned was for income tax levied on the life insurance of W. N. McDonald, an officer of the company.

CITY EMPLOYEES TO SPEND 2 DAYS CELEBRATING 4TH

City employees will have two days' holiday next week, one day to celebrate the Fourth of July and one to get over it, Mayor Walter A. Sims announced Saturday.

Business will be adjourned Thursday night until Monday morning.

At least one person will be held in each city department to attend to any emergencies that may arise, the mayor said, but otherwise the week-end will be devoted to celebrating the nation's birthday anniversary.

Council committee meetings scheduled for Friday and Saturday are to be held either Thursday or Monday before council meets, subject to the call of the chairman.

PRIZE-WINNING MARE WILL BE SHOWN HERE

"Nun," a young mare from the stable of John M. Brown, is being brought to Atlanta for the military horse show to be given at Piedmont park on July 4, according to announcement yesterday.

"Nun" won the championship at the Westchester show at White Plains, N. Y., on June 14, and her performance here is being awaited with considerable interest. She will be ridden by her new owner, Holland B. Jenkins, vice president of the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

Mrs. Patterson To Attend Play for Mountain School

Mrs. Willard C. Patterson, editor of The Weekly Film Review, left Saturday night for Chicago, where she will join Mrs. Z. L. Fitzpatrick, of Madison, past president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. B. M. Boykin, corresponding secretary of the state organization, who are in Chicago for the benefit performance of "Sun Up" to be given in the interests of Tallulah Falls industrial school for mountain boys and girls on July 8 by Lucile LaVerne and her company.

This play, which has been showing for a year in New York city and has only recently opened in Chicago, is peculiarly appropriate vehicle with which to aid Tallulah school, owned and directed by Georgia club women and conducted in a highly specialized manner. The play was written by Lula Volmer, formerly a resident of Atlanta and remembered by club women as remarkably charming and brilliant, and visualizes with remarkable fidelity to facts the special attributes of southern mountain folk. Miss Lucile LaVerne, a southern woman and a possessor of complete understanding of the inhibitions of mountain life. In addition to these, she is a story for living generously to Tallulah, Miss LaVerne has recently adopted another through having adopted a protégé of the school, little Grace Taylor, one of whose sisters is now a pupil of the school and another is a teacher.

The group of Georgia club leaders now in Chicago to arrange the business details of the benefit will be augmented the first of the week by Mrs. T. T. Stevens, treasurer of the school, and indication of the overwhelming success in the undertaking. Through the generosity of Mrs. J. McGreggor Adams, of Highland Park, Ill., a close friend of Mrs. Fitzpatrick's, the financial outcome is assured, Mrs. Adams having already given her personal check to cover the price of the house. This splendid aid renders the entire proceeds of the seat sale net to the school.

Mrs. Otley Heads Campaign.

Mrs. John King Otley, president of the board of trustees of the school, is at the head of the committee of arrangements for the benefit and through her leadership practically every civic organization in Atlanta has enlisted the interest of its affiliated organization in Chicago. Elks, Civilians, Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary and the Atlanta press have parted the way in Chicago for the intensive campaign of publicity, which will be conducted by Mrs. Patterson for ten days preceding the benefit, and have aided Mrs. Boykin and Mrs. Fitzpatrick in disposing of seats on the evening of the benefit. Mayor Sims and many city officials have been helpful in gaining Chicago interest in the Tallulah school.

A crafts exhibit from Tallulah now on view at the LaSalle hotel, headquarters for the Tallulah committee, is reported as most effective in drawing attention to the school, and this is further beautified by a number of handsome posters made and given to the school by the Atlanta art school. This exhibit will be removed to the Great Northern theater just preceding the evening of the benefit.

The crafts work of the school is a distinguishing feature, this form of instruction being emphasized because it has proven of inestimable benefit to the students of the school upon their return to their homes.

Local Pride Engendered.

Mrs. Otley, president of the governing board, declares: "The prime object of our school is to equip the girls and boys who come to it with the ability to lead happier and more useful lives in the locality of their birth. We do not wish to take them away from the magnificent mountains and sturdy Anglo-Saxon neighbors of their infancy; instead we seek to awaken in them pride in the purity of their heritage and to give them facility in utilizing the resources immediately at hand. It is for this reason we lay stress upon the teaching of all domestic accomplishments and train our pupils in the beautiful loom and basket work which each and every one may continue to put forth without leaving their own doorsteps."

The demand for rugs, scarfs and bedspreads woven by Tallulah students while in the school and later on in their own homes always exceeds the supply, thus proving a steady source of helpful revenue. Artistic and beautiful fans and handwoven scarfs are other perfect products of the radiant young people who live at the school.

Miss Eliza Shirley, teacher of crafts, has been joined by Miss Nanette Davis, principal of the school, to Camp Dixie for two months, and many Atlanta girls and boys have already applied for admission to her classes.

Fifteenth Anniversary.

The month of July marks the fifteenth anniversary of the school's existence and the anniversary is being celebrated by a strong campaign for an enlarged plant and for financial permanence.

Greater Tallulah.

The accomplishment of the first objective is already assured; ground has been broken for a new classroom building that will double the capacity of the school, making it possible to receive 200 pupils. How urgent was the need of this greater capacity is represented in this single fact: That last year 50 children who applied for admission were sent back to their homes across the mountains because there was not room for them.

The movement for Greater Tallulah has gained momentum steadily since it was started in October of 1922, and it is hoped that with the far-reaching program that will be put into effect throughout the state, and in Chicago, during July the additional $20,000 necessary to complete the building fund will be raised.

The school has an endowment and scholarship fund bearing annual interest of $35,000, and 12 perpetual scholarships of $2,000 each, which are being paid by the year. The immediate and pressing need is money for buildings. To this end the aid of all friends of education is asked, whether in the patronage of the benefit performance of "Sun Up" in Chicago on July 8, or by money which may be sent at any time directly to the treasurer of the school, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, 620 West Peachtree street, Atlanta.

Present Site.

About 22 acres of picturesque hillsides, beautifully wooded and planted with native shrubs and brilliant flowers of every simple kind, and three buildings now constitute the school's physical possessions. The new building program which is going on this summer will double this number by adding a new school house, a crafts shop and a small guest house. The present school building will be remodeled into a second dormitory.

Tallulah Falls school carries its pupils through the ninth grade, and besides the usual academic work, gives them training in the manual and domestic arts and hand crafts. From it pupils go well prepared into higher instructions of learning of crafts work, or back into their own homes, which are soon transformed by what they have learned of what home can be.

DEPARTMENT STORE PLANS IMPROVEMENT

In line with the improvement of Broad street a permit was taken out Saturday for alterations on the Broad street side of Davison-Paxon Stokes building, which provides for a new frontage on both Broad and Hunter streets, it was announced Saturday.

The front will be of Indiana limestone, with cornices, spandrels, and a large marble or copper. Two entrances and six large modern plate glass show windows will be installed in the interior a large lobby with marble steps will lead to the basement and to the first floor. A mezzanine floor of fireproof construction will be erected across the entire Broad street end of the building.

The construction will be done by Bargo-Thompson company, after plans are prepared by Pringle & Smith, architects. Work will begin Monday.

RECESS OF TRIALS IN FIVE ATLANTA COURTS ANNOUNCED

Recess of all trials in the five divisions of the superior court and in the city court of Atlanta for the first Monday in July until the first Monday in September has been announced.

While judges will not be conducting trials in their respective courts, the two courts will be open, as there is never actual adjournment. A judge will be available in the superior court to grant injunctions and sign orders throughout the summer, though not the same judge each week.

Also excepted to the above recess are scheduled to the extent that the appearance docket, with assignment of cases, will be called Saturday, July 26; undefended divorces the week of July 28, and Judges G. H. Howard and E. D. Thompson will try certain criminal cases for one week, according to agreement between them. They will organize and control the grand jury for the term, which will convene on July 25, and Judge John R. Holliday has announced.

Kirkwood Baptists Lay Cornerstone Of Church Today

With leading Baptists of the city participating, the cornerstone of the new Kirkwood Baptist church, to be erected on North Howard and Hardee streets, will be laid at 8 o'clock tonight. The building, which is to be ready for occupancy by the first of next year, will cost about $50,000, exclusive of the Sunday school and other improvements planned.

Dr. M. J. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech and vice president of the Atlanta Baptist convention, will preside, and Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, will deliver the address. Rev. J. L. Jackson is pastor of the Kirkwood Baptist church.

GUINN IS DIRECTOR OF HOSPITAL WORK

Major R. J. Guinn, of Atlanta, has been appointed director of the Golden Cross order in charge of Methodist hospital work of Georgia. It was announced Saturday by Dr. C. C. Jarrell, secretary of the Methodist hospital board.

The Georgia commandery will devote its efforts to Wesley Memorial hospital, but the order's activities will extend throughout the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

GEORGIA DEPARTMENT PRAISED BY 'SURVEY'

A complimentary review of "An Analysis of Ninety-Five Georgia County Jails," recently published by the Georgia state department of public welfare, is a two-page feature of the latest issue of the Survey, well-known New York periodical.

The review is illustrated with cuts taken from the jail analysis and quotes from the analysis at length and with approval.

In speaking of the Georgia publication, The Survey says, "The Georgia state department of public welfare and its ninety-five volunteer jail visiting committees are to be congratulated most heartily on the energetic attack which they have made on this generally neglected part of our public service."

Conditions found by these committees in 95 jails tells on the one hand a story of almost unbelievably bad conditions in some of these institutions, and on the other, a truly inspiring story of accomplishment largely through the civic interest and the hard work of these volunteers.

"It will be recalled that two years ago 277 of Georgia's best citizens went to jail—armed with questionnaires. These were long and searching. The questioners were persistent. The result is perhaps the best complete revelation of the conditions within the county jail system of any state ever gathered or published."

CEMENT CONTRACT AND GASOLINE BIDS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Adjustment of a 1923 cement contract with the Fulton Lime and Cement company and award of contract for all gasoline to be used by the city during the rest of the year will be considered by the purchasing committee of council in special session Monday afternoon. Both matters were carried over from the meeting Friday.

Cooler Weather Promise Comes To Relieve City

Sweat! for the sun along its blistered flight
Has chased the comfort out of day
and night;
Its willing breath no earthly thing
withstands,
Not vassal's collar, nor, nor sultan's might!

Muttering the desert chant through dusty lips the fugitive staggered across the deserted viaduct, the sullen roar of the thwarted mob echoing from the distance.

His robes and words were Omar's, but the last surviving soda skeet, expiring gasped, "I seen that bird before."

This hooded figure, worn with fatigue, stumbled over the fresh corpses piled in frantic attitudes around the city hall drinking fountain, long run dry.

As he fell his turban came off, exposing his haggard features. A screech of hate resounded through the lifeless canyons of the stricken city's streets.

It was the weather man.
He resumed his flight toward Five Points, the corpses in full cry, and joined by the sullen mob.
"To the flagpole!" they roared.
Just as the halcyons were knotted and a thousand willing hands clutched the rope, the brassy skies darkened. Lurid lightning played upon the seething sea of faces.
Against the darkened sky it wrote:
"Thundershowers and cooler weather all next week."

PLAN TO EXTEND ATLANTA LIMITS DEAD FOR YEAR

No further effort to pass a city limits extension resolution through council will be made this year, it was stated by members of council Saturday. Alderman J. R. Bachman, who had prepared a measure looking toward annexation of a strip three miles long and one mile wide on the north side, said he would not introduce it this year because he considered it too late to get favorable consideration in the general assembly even if it were approved by city council.

The Horace Russell annexation plan was killed by council last week.

Shortly after the armistice he joined the officers' reserve corps and was commissioned a major. He is assigned to headquarters staff, 829 Division, located at Columbia, S. C.

NEW FORESTRY BILL INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

A measure of vital importance to reforestation in Georgia has been introduced in the house of representatives by J. Leonard Rountree, of Emanuel county, and is known as the "Forest Act." It is entitled an amendment to the act of August, 1921, which created the state board of forestry, and was endorsed by the Georgia Forestry association at its annual meeting in Atlanta last Monday.

The proposed act would amend the act of August, 1921, as to enable the state board of forestry to function properly through a fund provided by a privilege tax on forest products industries. It would cover the state aid and leadership in fire prevention.

Another proposed measure bearing on reforestation in Georgia, which is expected to be introduced in the legislature at an early date, is an act known as the "Forestry Contract Act." It is permissive in character and provides for contracts between the state and private owners for reforestation and the standardization of taxes on such contracted lands during a period of time required to mature the new timber crops.

This proposed new bill was also endorsed by the Georgia Forestry association at its annual meeting.

"AN INSTITUTION IS THE LENGTHENED SHADOW OF ONE MAN."

Quality for half a century

Half a century ago a man of high ideals, far-seeing vision, and rare courage dedicated his life to the work of making shoes fit better. That man was George E. Keith, and his lifework became an American institution, for George E. Keith created Walk-Over. He surrounded himself with men who believed in him, and who shared his high ideals. Together they worked and together they succeeded. Today, wherever shoes are worn, in every quarter of the earth, Walk-Over shoes are known for their high quality, their good style, and their comfortable, accurate fit.

On Tuesday, July 8, 1924, at the great Walk-Over factories in Campello, Brockton, Massachusetts, the Golden Anniversary of Walk-Over will be celebrated in a memorial to its founder. Five thousand loyal workers of the Walk-Over family will join with hundreds of Walk-Over dealers from all over the world, in a glorious memorial pageant.

In the pageant will be a special group of 160 men who worked with George E. Keith from twenty-five to fifty years. Leading the pageant will be Harold C. Keith, who, surrounded by able men of long experience, with the high ideals set before him by his father, is successfully carrying on to even greater heights of success the business bequeathed to him.

The Walk-Over institution—and "An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man"—is the realization of George E. Keith's ambition. Today the Geo. E. Keith Company is making more Walk-Overs, better Walk-Overs and better fitting Walk-Overs, than ever before.

350 PERSONS DEAD

Point; the Reliance, running from Marquette, and the Chippewa, plying between Sandusky and Put-in-Bay. Up to a late hour, word had been received from the Chippewa, which carried several hundred passengers, but word came that several persons had been swept overboard from both the Reliance and the Boeckling.

All Sandusky hospitals were filled with injured persons, many of whom needed only first aid, while rescue squads searched the ruins of a three-story building in which several persons were reported to have been buried in the collapse.

It was several hours after the storm struck before word of the disaster reached the outside world.

100 Houses Destroyed.
Every property owner was sworn in as a deputy sheriff.

More than 100 houses were destroyed and scores of others were moved from their foundations. Washington Park, a one-acre park in the center of the town, is completely leveled of trees.

The storm struck Lorain at Broadway, moved up Fifteenth street and passed inland. Broadway, the principal business street, and fashionable Erie street and Washington avenue were damaged for about 25 blocks, not a wooden building being left standing. Forty blocks in the business district were destroyed.

Among buildings destroyed are the First Methodist church, Washington and Fourth streets; the three-story Lorain block, and St. Mary's church. The top floor of the majestic block, a six-story brick building, was blown off, and the six-story Peoples' bank building was damaged.

The No. 1 ore bridge of the National Tube company collapsed and an 80-foot steel tower carrying high tension wires snapped off, carrying the wires into Black river.

State Theater Collapses.
The State theater collapsed when a building next to it struck by lightning, toppled over on it.

Ninety-eight bodies have been taken from the State theater and 36 have been recovered from the municipal bathing beach, Dr. H. C. Loran, of the Michigan hospital, reported.

Some reports placed the number of dead at the beach at 200.

The tug Michigan, owned by the National Tube company, the Lorain came here for assistance and returned loaded with doctors and supplies.

Cleveland-Akron bus company turned all its busses and drivers over to the police department, which used them in sending nurses. Sixty Cleveland firemen and 18 from the Lake Wood department were also sent to the stricken city.

The Michigan was in the harbor when the tornado struck.

"I saw between 300 and 400 people who were bathing rush into the big pavilion for protection," Captain J. F. Brown of the tug said. "It collapsed and I think many were killed."

The Michigan also took back a crew of men from the Willard Storage Battery company to install a temporary lighting system.

Doctors and Nurses Rush.
An hour after midnight, an accurate estimate of the number of dead was unobtainable because wires still were down and roads between here and Lorain are blocked with fallen trees and jammed with traffic.

Every relief agency here is functioning to send doctors, nurses, medical supplies, food and other assistance to Lorain.

Three hundred Cleveland physicians and at least 200 nurses were either in Lorain or on their way there at midnight, according to police reports.

Radio Helps Relief.
Radio played a part in getting relief to the stricken city. It was several hours after the disaster before the first reports came from the Nickel Plate railroad trainmen to the chief dispatcher here. Then the steamer Presque Isle, owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, docked in the Lorain harbor, got in communication with the Nickel Plate Radio Telegraph company here and messages were exchanged regularly.

Later station WTAM, at the Willard Storage Battery company here, at the request of Colonel Ralph H.

White, radioed the orders summoning the troops to mobilize.

Three automobiles were blown into Lake Erie between Sandusky and Lorain and all their occupants drowned, according to reports received from Fremont, Ohio, late tonight.

Seven persons were killed by the tornado in greater Cleveland. Of these, Joseph Decon, his wife and one-year-old infant were killed when Decon, blinded by rain, drove his automobile through a railroad crossing gate into a New York Central passenger train.

NORTHERN OHIO PROSTRATE UNDER FURY OF TORNADO.

Cleveland, June 28.—Northern Ohio lay prostrate tonight under the fury of winds of tornado violence that swept from Cleveland to Sandusky along the shores of Lake Erie, isolated Sandusky, and Lorain, killed possibly 400 persons, injured another 2,000, and caused property damage of possible millions.

The probable death list is augmented by the fact that lake steamers sank, and many boats were blown out of Sandusky are known to have been caught in the storm, and the reports have it that passengers were swept overboard from the deck of one of them, the Reliance.

The City of Erie hove into the Cleveland harbor safely, and her skipper said the storm produced some of the most spectacular electrical effects he had ever seen.

As the stricken cities began to try to establish communication, word began to trickle out which substantiated the early reports that the catastrophe may be one of the greatest in the history of the country.

Lorain alone, according to word obtained in circuitous fashion from there, will have 300 dead and 1,500 injured. Eighty dead, it was said, have been taken from the State theater there.

In Sandusky, estimates of the dead range to 25. Nothing has been obtained from Elyria, but it is not believed that city is as hard hit.

SIX ARE KNOWN DEAD AT SANDUSKY.

Columbus, Ohio, June 28.—The Associated Press reporter at Sandusky in a dispatch received here over a railroad wire, said there are six known dead in Sandusky from the storm and 50 are injured.

The telegrapher said that 25 large factories are wrecked. He added that the lake steamer C. A. Boeckling and the Chippewa, thought to have gone down in the storm are safe in Sandusky Bay, having ridden in without trouble.

The estimated loss, he said, is $2,000,000.

VIVID STORY OF STORM TOLD BY EYEWITNESS.

Cleveland, June 28.—(By United Press.) Jack Ambrose, of the Cleveland Press, who has just arrived here from Lorain after aiding in the rescue work, described the disaster:

"There were about 200 in the State theater when the tornado struck. A vaudeville and movie show was on. The roof of the theater fell in with a great crash, tons of plaster crushing the lives of nearly every one in the building."

"We had taken out 80 bodies when I became so sick I had to leave. The plaster and roof was covered with blood of the victims. We worked by candle light, as the city current was off."

85 More Bodies Removed.

"After I left the building and before I left town, 85 more bodies were removed," he said.

Many bathers were killed, he said. "More than 200 persons were at the municipal bathing beach when the storm struck."

"I have heard that many of them were killed as the tornado whipped up a veritable tidal wave which, with the terrific wind, reduced the bath house to kindling wood."

Eleven blocks in the main business district were destroyed, Ambrose said. "The buildings crashed down just after a big Saturday night crowd had taken refuge in many of them as the storm descended."

Darkness Descends.

"Darkness terrible darkness descended. The theater tested hundreds trapped along Broadway rushed into the streets as the buildings crumpled only to be struck down by falling debris."

"The cries of the injured and dying pierced the gloom as the electric lights, which had been flashed on for a moment at darkness, came and went out."

"The trapped victims fought madly to scramble to safety, but things were falling so fast most of them perished," Ambrose said. "The American Legion, firemen and every city official was working feverishly to save the lives of 3,500 estimated."

Every hospital was clogged full of victims. Schools and churches were filled with the injured and dying.

"One wall of a grocery had been demolished, and the merchandise was scattered over the street. We saw a moving picture theater which had collapsed. The balcony had fallen across the doorway. Whether anybody was in the theater or not, I do not know. Some men were trying to chop through the balcony to reach any injured who might be inside."

"We left this scene of desolation and retraced our steps to the car. Driving back to Bay Village, we overtook a number of refugees who came pouring out of the city a few minutes after the storm struck."

"One of these was a man who said he owned a four-family apartment house which had been wrecked. Two people were found buried in the debris, he said."

"We met a man hurrying toward Lorain. He said his wife and family were in the wrecked area. Ambulances and automobiles were rushing storm victims to the Elyria hospital."

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF STORM AT LORAIN.

Cleveland, June 28.—One of the first eye witnesses of the tornado to reach Cleveland was brought back by L. F. Forster, of Bay Village.

He was in Lorain within a few minutes after the storm struck and he walked over several blocks of the devastated area, saw unroofed buildings, fallen trees and telephone poles, heard screams of some of the injured, and afterwards saw refugees fleeing the city.

"My wife and I and a party of friends were driving toward Lorain, he said. "It was about 5:30 when the storm struck. We were about three or four miles east of the city, and a heavy rain was falling."

"At a gasoline station we met another automobile that had stopped there. It had just come from Lorain and from the man and woman in it we learned there had been a cyclone. They said they had seen houses toppling over, roofs flying through the air, and trees and telephone poles moving down as if by huge hands."

"Their car was a sedan. They said the wind blew so hard that they had to sit on the floor to keep it from shattering their car drums."

"We drove on toward Lorain until a tangle of fallen trees made further progress impossible. Then we got out and walked on into the town."

"The town was a wreck. I had an uneasy feeling as I looked at houses without roofs or without walls. As I picked my way through the wreckage in the streets."

Feeds of Cyclone.

"I recall looking into one house from which the front wall had been blown out. I could see into the bedrooms, and noticed that the beds stood there neatly made. In the dining room, there were some houses in flames, although there appeared to be no general conflagration."

The river bridge was demolished, except the foot path, which was still standing. People were running about excitedly in the streets, some of them with injured hands and legs. Many had been pinned under falling buildings and trees."

Wildest Confusion Reigns.

Scenes of the wildest terror and confusion were enacted in the cities as the furious winds blew men and buildings into the lake, blew railroad cars off their tracks and pushed structures over."

As the darkness came on, unlighted streets and homes added to the terror, while pouring rain fell.

Refugees were clearing the roads out of Lorain and Elyria to Cleveland, said reports, while relief workers and newspapermen were rushing into the stricken area.

Governor Donahy of Columbus has ordered northern Ohio units of the national guard to proceed at once to the three cities, and some of them have started from their barracks in taxicabs.

Go to Area.

Tomorrow the governor and Adjutant General Henderson will proceed into the storm area.

Reports early in the evening had the two cities burning, with no water with which to fight the fire.

The mayor of Sandusky, in a frantic appeal to General Henderson for troops, said the city was in ruins.

The area of tornado violence seems to have been in the 60-mile stretch from Cleveland to Sandusky, along the lake, although other Ohio cities reported violent wind and rain storms, with much property damage but no deaths.

FIVE TO TWENTY-FIVE DEAD AT SANDUSKY.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 28.—Estimates of the dead due to a tornado which swept over this city and surrounding country late today were placed at from 5 to 25 tonight.

The entire waterfront section has been either swept away or wrecked. Several fires are reported. The waterworks pumping station is out of commission and the city has no water supply to fight the fires. Wire communications are almost demolished.

The three-story Groch Coal company building was demolished and several persons, probably fatally injured, have been taken from the ruins. Three or four more are believed to have perished when this building collapsed. All city hospitals are filled with injured.

Lake passenger boats known to have been caught in the storm are the G. A. Boeckling, an excursion steamer running between this city and Cedar Point; the steamer Reliance, between here and Marblehead, and the steamer Chippewa on the Sandusky to Put-in-Bay run. Passengers are reported to have been swept overboard from the Reliance and Boeckling. No report has been received from the Chippewa, which left here late this evening with several hundred passengers.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED AFTER LORAIN STORM.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 28.—Reports received over crippled railroad wires from Sandusky late tonight state that between 50 and 75 persons were killed or drowned there late today when a tornado struck that vicinity. The Sandusky waterworks and several large buildings along the lake front were blown down.

Troops were called at 8 p. m. by Mayor George Hoffman, who delegated Councilman Goldthorpe to swear in deputy sheriffs.

Lorain is without water, light, telephone and food, and has little gas. An automobile ferry plying between Sandusky and Marblehead broke loose from her moorings at Sandusky and struck a pier. Fifteen passengers on the ferry are reported to have been drowned.

Considerable damage along the shore line east of Cedar Point is reported. Some summer homes are said to have been blown down and several persons killed.

FIRST RELIEF TRAIN REACHES EAST LORAIN.

Cleveland, June 28.—The first relief train sent from here by the Nickel Plate railroad reached East Lorain late tonight. The Nickel Plate dispatcher announced. A second Nickel Plate train is due at Lorain later.

The first relief train made no report of the conditions found at Lorain.

SANDUSKY IS CITY OF 28,000 POPULATION.

Cleveland, June 28.—The 1920 census accredited Sandusky with a population of 28,000. The city lies midway between the eastern and western borders of the state on the shore of Lake Erie.

Commercial fishing probably is the major industry of Sandusky, but located there also are many large candy factories and several automobile part factories.

The city as junction point for scores of summer resorts along Lake Erie and the transient population during the summer months is heavy.

The city is 111 miles north of Columbus and 60 miles west of Cleveland. From Columbus, the Pennsylvania railroad is the only line that enters it. It is connected by Cleveland with traction lines, and scores of automobile busses ply between Cleveland and Sandusky.

RAILROAD WIRES OUT OF BUSINESS.

Chicago, June 28.—Railroad wire connection with Lorain, Sandusky and other northern Ohio points between Toledo and Cleveland were practically eliminated tonight as a result of the storm. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad reported that it had a wire to Sandusky for a few minutes late in the day. The New York Central reported all its wires down between Toledo and Cleveland, and the Nickel Plate said its wires were out of commission in the storm area.

Flood conditions in Iowa country, Iowa, are serious but no immediate alarm is felt, say dispatches from Cedar Rapids. The business section of Marengo is under five feet of water and families living in the low lands are seeking ground.

Several scores of women delegates to a convention at Mason City, Ia., had narrow escapes for their lives when, as they were changing trains at Belle Plaine, a cloudburst struck the station, the rapidly rising water forcing them to drop their baggage and run to higher ground.

FOUR DEAD, 17 HURT IN PEORIA VICINITY.

Peoria, Ills., June 28.—Sweeping a patch about 50 miles wide with Peoria as its center, a tornado struck this vicinity early today, claiming the lives of four persons, injuring 17 others, and piling up damages which will run into the millions of dollars, according to estimates.

Houses were torn from their foundations, their occupants buried beneath the debris or carried into fields. House boats were capsized and occupants blown into the river. Trees were picked up by the roots by the rampaging wind and hurled in all directions. Steeples were torn from churches and slammed at strange angles into homes. Roofs were blown from homes.

Telephone poles were blown down and wires left in a tangled mass all over Peoria and the surrounding territory through which the wind whirled rampant.

Lightning hit the Lincoln school. The roof was hit and the debris crashed through the other four floors and landed in the basement. Lincoln school is used as the summer school for high school students.

TWO GUARD REGIMENTS ORDERED TO STRICKEN AREA.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson tonight ordered all available troops of the 148th national guard infantry in the vicinity of Toledo and the 112th engineers of Cleveland to proceed at once to the stricken cities of Lorain, Elyria and Sandusky.

Adjutant General Henderson has notified Governor Donahy of the disaster at his home at New Philadelphia, and he and the governor will meet at Wooster tomorrow morning to proceed into the stricken area.

The adjutant general said he was making ready shortly after 9 o'clock to order the 108th infantry to mobilize and be ready for orders.

An appeal for troops came from the mayor of Sandusky, who stated that the city was in ruins.

LORAIN SHIPYARD REPORTED RAZED.

Cleveland, June 28.—The American Shipyards at Lorain are reported to have been razed. Two boats belonging to Henry Ford were reported to have been razed.

Reports here are that small passenger steamers, plying between Sandusky and Lake Erie, have been lost, but could not be confirmed late tonight.

TOLEDO DAMAGE HEAVY, BUT NOXIS KILLED.

Toledo, Ohio, June 28.—Wind that reached an estimated velocity of 50 miles an hour, accompanied by about two inches of rain and some hail, struck Toledo and this vicinity about 5 o'clock this afternoon, doing damage estimated at thousands of dollars.

Trees were uprooted, windows were broken, telephone and telegraph poles were east of Meckinaw, twenty miles east, where it is held up by a washout of a bridge.

FOUR ARE INJURED IN IOWA CITIES.

Des Moines, June 28.—Four persons were injured and huge property loss in a number of Iowa cities resulted from a severe wind storm that swept virtually all sections of the state early today. All communication lines were interrupted. A heavy rain also added to the damage by washing out bridges and railway lines. Officials of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad reported traffic virtually at a standstill.

SANTA FE TRACKS ARE UNDER WATER.

Galesburg, Ill., June 28.—Santa Fe railway tracks through Galesburg are under several feet of rushing water today as a result of a cloudburst in which Cedar Fork, a small stream in the center of the city, overflowed.

Eastbound Santa Fe passenger train No. 10 is marooned six miles east of here. The train was derailed by a washout, the locomotive turning over and the thirteen cars leaving the track.

VIOLENT STORM HITS OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., June 28.—A short but violent windstorm with a velocity of fifty-one miles an hour struck in Omaha and parts of western Iowa early today, crippling telephone and telegraph service somewhat. Property damage was not believed to be great.

A deck of cards, on the corners of which are numbers from 1 to 100, making possible the playing of 50 mathematical games, was recently patented.

During 1922 nearly $50,000 new members were enrolled by building and loan associations, according to figures made public by the national officers of the associations.

LANGLEY TO OFFER REDUCTION PLAN

When the legislature convenes Monday Representative Lee J. Langley, of Floyd county, will introduce his bill calling for reapportionment of representation in the general assembly. Mr. Langley stated Saturday night that his bill as now drafted has met with the approval of practically every member of the house to whom he has shown it, and he is optimistic regarding its chances of passage.

The bill as drawn provides for 100 members in the lower house and 36 in the senate. It is based upon the federal congress method of representation, the state being divided into 100 legislative districts, on a basis of population, with the proviso that no county shall have more than three representatives. This clause leaves Fulton county with its present representation of three members. Otherwise, on a strict population basis, Fulton would get seven out of the 100 places.

Mr. Langley said Saturday that not only had a number of the strongest and most influential members promised support of this bill, but that about 25 members had promised to sign it as co-authors.

"It will model representation," said the Floyd representative, "after that of the United States congress and will therefore have the principles of the United States constitution for its authority and foundation."

"It will cut the membership of both houses to efficient working numbers and save taxpayers about one-half of what lawmaking now costs them. It will leave both houses with members enough to make up committees for the consideration of all subjects. The reduced size of committees will prove one of the greatest benefits of the change."

Bloc Government in Europe Causing Legislative Anarchy

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Washington, June 28.—In parliamentary—or, as we would say in America, congressional—government breaking down? The question has both domestic and foreign importances. In the United States, the congress which has just adjourned is noteworthy beyond much else as the first in which majority rule gave way to something of the continental bloc system. In Europe, three democracies are in a state of turmoil in consequence of parliamentary incoherence. Moreover, a fourth, Italy, has embraced a dictatorship to escape the confusion which prevails in the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany.

With the American phase of the wide phenomenon or disease, as one may choose to view it, my readers are familiar. In both houses of congress a nominal republican majority has been abolished and the policies and purposes of a republican chief executive brought to nothing by the action of a group of senators and representatives, elected as republicans, who have broken away from party moorings and voted with the democratic minority, thus creating a new majority.

This well nigh complete paralysis of reasonable party government, which we are familiar with in this country, has created nation-wide comment, protest and criticism. It has changed the whole character of legislative operations. What many observers are now eagerly and even anxiously watching to see is whether it is to become a fixed feature of our political life. And it is this American situation which gives real interest to the European parallels of the moment.

Parallels in England.

Looking to these European parallels, that of Great Britain is, in a sense, the most interesting, because in the British field there are but three parties, by contrast with the many parties in France and Germany. Moreover, it is toward a three-party situation that we in America seem at the moment to be drifting, and it is wholly within the bounds of possibility that the next congress, like the present house of commons, will see repetition of the baffling condition, where three parties are represented and none has a majority.

The present house of commons has 615 members. Of this number, 191 belong to labor, 159 to the liberals, 259 to the conservatives and there are six nominally at large. In the present house of commons, the conservatives are 259, the liberals are 159, or 49 more than the Tories control. Actually, the present government represents a coalition of liberals and labor, together controlling 350 votes. But the labor and liberal parties are mortal enemies and their coalition is of the flimsiest sort. Thus sometimes it is the Tories, and sometimes the liberals, who save the labor ministry from defeat and resignation.

Afraid of New Election.

The reason labor, although a minority and hated by both opposition parties, actually remains in office is the opposition is afraid that if a new election should take place, labor would make great gains and might get a clear majority of its own. To keep it in power until it makes some major blunder and thus insure its own defeat at a new general election is the strategy of both the Tories and the liberals, although in recent days the Tories seem to be ready to take the risk of an election and to be striving to turn MacDonald out.

In the existing situation, however, there is obviously no such thing as responsible party government. Labor is not responsible because it has not the votes to carry any legislation of its own. It can do little to realize any ambitious program. What is much worse is the fact that since it is a minority government and can be turned out at any moment there is no such thing as real security. Britain is always on the ragged edge of a new election and of a possible, if not probable, change of government. All of this makes for uncertainty and confusion.

Nevertheless, it is the settled opinion in Britain that the three-party system is likely to endure for a considerable length of time and certainly through the next general election. Thus, if the labor party were beaten today in the house of commons, there is nothing to suggest that it would not elect at least as many members as it now controls, or that there would be any clear majority for any party.

Confronted by Grave Crisis.

You have then the extraordinary situation—both at home and abroad—British people and statesmen confront grave crises. Their foreign relations have an enormous importance at the moment when the Dawes plan is to be discussed both with France and with Germany and the whole subject of European adjustment examined in international conferences. Yet the representatives of Great Britain speak only for a minority party and may be turned out of office at any moment. In France the confusion is even greater because a constitutional crisis has been added to the legislative. Actually, in the French chamber of deputies, which has just been elected, there are nearly a dozen parties. Yet these parties have been pretty generally combined into three groups, the bloc national, which supported Poincaré, with the 15 royalists, number 255. This is the opposition. Against it stand the bloc of the left, which has just defeated it. This bloc of the left contains about 230 members, namely, 147 radicals, 100 socialists and 43 radical republicans. But since the new French chamber contains 584 members, the victorious radical bloc does not itself have a clear majority. In opposing Poincaré, however, it can count upon 29 communists, who, in the main, however, vote by themselves.

Herriot, leader of the radicals, was naturally indicated as the man for prime minister, since he headed the largest party in the bloc of the left. But before he could enlist the support of the socialists, he had to accept their terms with respect to President Millerand. Herriot did not want to insist upon the resignation of the president of the republic, but the socialists made this a condition to their support and without them he could not form a ministry.

But socialist insistence did not end with the demand for Millerand's head. In addition, it submitted a long list of radical measures, some of which went far beyond the views of either the radicals or the radical republicans. Thus to accept enough of the socialist doctrine to get socialist votes led Herriot to make concessions likely ultimately, if not at once, to alienate many of his own followers.

Here, then, is a further illustration of the fundamental weakness of the bloc system of parliamentary government. In the British case, there is incoherence and uncertainty, but in the French case there are, in addition, the evils which flow from the inevitable bargaining between parties. The radicals and the radical republicans are by no means radicals in any extreme sense. They are moderate liberals and they have little in common with the doctrinaire socialists with whom they joined forces to defeat Poincaré. But to get into power and to stay in power, they have to buy socialist support by espousing socialist programs and carrying on socialist battles, such as that against Millerand.

By contrast with the British system, moreover, the French is very fluid. Thus, it is almost inevitable that within a brief period of time the radicals and the radical republicans will break with the socialists and a new ministry will be formed by another alliance, this time between the radical and certain members of the radical and radical republican parties. Herriot will then go out of office, to be succeeded by Briand, always assuming that Herriot is able even for the moment to get office.

Charge of Government Frequent.

Frequent changes of government are the rule in France. Before the war and in normal times these changes were of little real significance, but at the present moment, with great international discussions just to begin, lack of stability is a patent disadvantage. The fall of Briand was a good illustration of this, for he suddenly lost control of this parliamentary situation two and a half years ago, at the moment when he was discussing a settlement of the European situation with Lloyd George at Cannes and all of the plans which the two premiers had made went into the waste-paper basket when Briand's fall and the coming of Poincaré, with new views and other purposes.

As it stands, then, both the British and French prime ministers, whether Herriot or some other representative of France when the international discussions begin, will negotiate with a noose about his neck and may be hauled off his feet at any moment.

Uncertain as is the British situation and insecure as is the French, both are simple by comparison with the German. In Germany, the chaos almost defies description. The last election a month ago, 465 members were chosen to the German reichstag. Of these, 247 represented parties which were pledged to the support of the Dawes plan, the socialists, center, people's, Bavarian people's and democrats, whose totals were respectively 100, 62, 44, 16 and 25. Opposing this group were three parties, the nationalists, the kischers and communists, counting 190 members; namely, 96, 32 and 62. In addition, there were 28 scattering.

In the surface, then, it would seem that the four first-named parties formed a government and carry through their program despite the opposition and particularly since the opposition was divided between monarchists and communists, that is, between the followers of Potsdam and those of Moscow.

The difficulty has been that the moderate parties, namely, the center, the two people's and democratic parties, all felt themselves on the whole nearer to the nationalists than to the socialists and acted accordingly.

Combination Difficult.

Obviously, a combination between the three moderate parties and the nationalists would mean 243 seats, or only four less than a combination of these three parties and the socialists and would mean a far more natural and durable arrangement. But it was prevented, at least for the moment, by the insistence of the nationalists for a non-partisan control. They wished old Adolph Hitler for chancellor and they were not in the least prepared to accept the Dawes report unconditionally, even as a basis for discussion. But in spite of this intransigence, there was more enthusiasm in the ranks of the moderates for marriage with reaction than with republicanism as represented by the socialists, and this enthusiasm was particularly accentuated by the fact that the socialists had suffered great losses and the reactionaries made great gains in the recent election.

But the absence of responsible party government through a party majority has proven a disadvantage in Britain and a menace in France, how much more serious an evil it is in Germany, for at the moment Germany must act upon the Dawes report and her action will determine her own domestic prosperity as well as her foreign standing, for if the report be rejected, then none of the necessary foreign loans will be forthcoming and French occupation and exploitation of the Ruhr is likely to continue with at least the passive assent of the rest of the world.

Demand Overthrow.

Yet the nationalist leaders are, at this precise moment, demanding that the existing Marx-Stresemann government be thrown out because it has wasted its time in accepting the Dawes report, instead of concentrating its efforts upon abolishing the German acceptance of guilt for the world war, written into the treaty of Versailles, which German representatives signed. Moreover, at a moment when Germany needs beyond all else to enlist world sympathy and confidence, the nationalists are demanding for chancellor the very man who, in the eyes of the outside world, was most responsible for the war, since he was the author of the policy of German naval expansion.

If the nationalists on one side are making extreme demands in return for giving their support to a ministry, the socialists on their part are making equally extreme demands, although their demands are for preservation of the republic and abandonment of a policy of armament and revenge. The three moderate parties, with 147 votes, which must be the core of any German ministry, are thus pulled to the right and to the left by the nationalists and by the socialists, while the foreign policy of the reich at this grave moment is made the football of domestic feuds and factions.

German Situation Worst. All things considered, then, the German situation is much the worst of the three European countries which are struggling with much the same problem, but there is little in the situation in any one of it if one tries to lead Americans hastily to adopt for themselves this continental method of bloc government in place of the old party system.

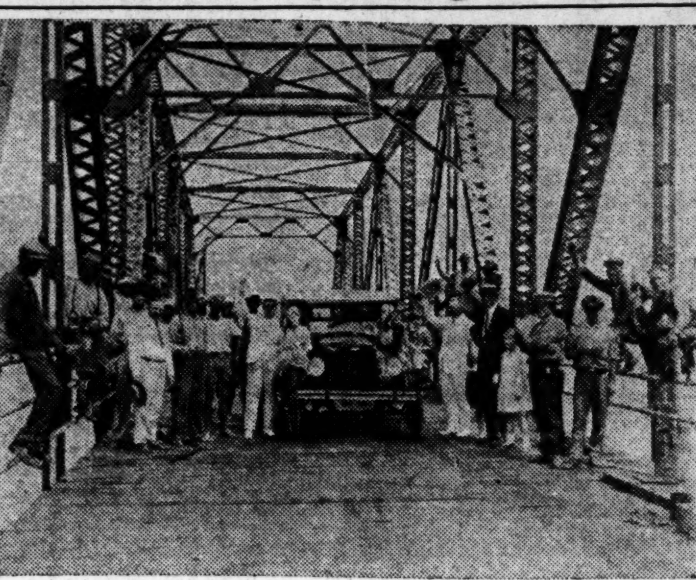

At the present moment, no prime minister in Britain, France or Germany can propose and carry through any piece of domestic legislation, large or small, save as he has enlisted the support of one or more parties with totally opposing principles. In all three countries the moderates—the liberals in Britain, the radicals in France and the three moderate parties in Germany—have steadily to choose between cooperating with socialism and reaction. And what is worse, the moderates in France and Germany can only control nominally by sacrificing their moderation.

What is peculiarly suggestive about the British situation for Americans at the present moment is the fact that labor's rapid rise and present strength is due in a considerable degree to popular dissatisfaction with both the old parties. Both the liberals and the Tories had become unpopular in Britain before the last general election, had been becoming increasingly unpopular for some years. The same state of mind in the United States might easily lead to a situation in the next congress in which not only would the confusion of the last session be repeated, but instead of a handful of insurgents there might be a more considerable membership, namely at least, belonging to a third party.

Led to French Crisis.

In France, moreover, the legislative incoherence has led to a presidential and constitutional crisis. In order to get the votes necessary to enable him to form a government, Herriot was compelled to accept the program of the socialists and to elect the duly elected president, whose term had four more years to run. Our own radicals might in a measure

Simple Ceremonies Mark Informal Opening of Road

Realizing a dream that off-time Georgians have always declared to be an impossibility, on June 25 an automobile crossed all the way over the marshes of Glynn making the journey from Brunswick to St. Simons Island on its own power, over a magnificent paved highway and across a series of bridges constructed along most modern specifications. This trip marked the informal opening of the new highway, the carrying of the grip carried Mayor Malcolm McKinnon, of Brunswick, and party. The final lap in the construction of the four-mile causeway was completed when the drawbridge across the Frederica river was finished. This bridge, with the automobile and a group of officials and workers on the great project, is shown above.

The formal opening of the highway is set for July 11, when one of the most spectacular programs ever presented in Georgia has been arranged. There will be, in addition to the exercises dedicating the highway, a great historic pageant and other features which will give the rise to highway mark in south Georgia annals.

Principal speakers will be Governor Clifford Walker and Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution. Tens of thousands of guests have been invited and it is expected that the occasion will be one of the most enjoyable and important ever held. In addition to building the great causeway from the mainland to St. Simons, the roads on the island itself are all being widened, regraded and paved. The Glynn county chain gang is doing this work, which, it is promised, will be completed before the ceremonies on July 11.

ELECT JOHN M. ROSE MAYOR OF LYERLY

Summerville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—John M. Rose, one of the best-known citizens of Chattooga county, former postmaster at Lyerly and chairman of the Chattooga county republican committee, was elected mayor of Lyerly in the special election there.

Mr. Rose succeeds the late Mayor J. M. Smith, who died June 6. The election was one of the quietest ever held in the town. Mr. Rose was unopposed.

More than 300 cities of this country employ policemen.

But apart from all subsidiary and perhaps remote contingencies, the essential fact is that the three great democracies of western Europe—Britain, France and Germany—have come to the bloc system and it is working in all three very badly. At the moment, it is productive of domestic uncertainty and even chaos in all three nations, and it has given to foreign relations incoherence and lack of continuity to an almost unlimited extent.

In fact, at a moment when the desire for settlement in Europe and the will for peace are greater than at any time since the outbreak of the war, and when the report of the Dawes committee has supplied at least a sound basis for solution, all progress toward settlement is being retarded by the bloc system, which has led to paralysis and instability and at the moment seems destined to prolong, if not to accentuate, international unsettlement by postponing if not preventing the application of the Dawes plan, which for at least two months now has waited upon the French and German parliamentary elections and post-election organizations.

DAWSON LAYS PLANS TO CELEBRATE JULY 4

Dawson, Ga., June 28.—(Special.) July fourth will be celebrated here with various amusements and a concert to be staged by the Dawson Concert band.

The day will open with a trapshoot by marksmen from all sections of south Georgia and this feature of the program is under the supervision of A. J. Hill. Names of entrants have not yet been given out.

A grand pig will furnish the next entertainment following the trapshoot. Following this feature a three-legged and potato race will be staged, winners to be awarded prizes.

A source of considerable entertainment and amusement for the onlookers, to say the least, will be the greased pole, about twelve feet in height, upon the top of which will be placed a gold coin, and the winner will reap his reward when he reaches the coin.

At noon a barbecue will be served. About 500 pounds of meat have been secured for the affair. Several concessions have also been planned to add to fun for those in attendance.

THREE BADLY BURNED IN OIL PLANT BLAZE

Columbus, Ohio, June 28.—Giving up hope of saving any part of the plant of the Central Ohio Oil company from destruction by fire, following explosion of four 4,000-gallon tanks of gasoline, in which three employees were painfully burned, firemen shortly before noon today directed their efforts toward preventing spread of the blaze to homes nearby.

Cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Joseph Ryan, 29, warehouse foreman, was probably fatally burned. He was at work in the warehouse at the time of the blast and was blown through the open doors of the building, falling into the street. Frank Keiffer, 30, and L. D. Williams, 28, are in a hospital suffering from painful burns.

Approximately 100,000 gallons of gasoline in 16 tanks was stored at the plant.

Persons residing near the plant, which covers a city block, were ordered from their homes by police. But few of them were able to remove any household effects. So dense was the smoke in sections of the north side that lights had to be turned on.

Mystery Surrounds Buick's Next Move

Many Rumors Are Being Circulated Regarding a New "Six"

MYSTERY surrounds the plans of the Buick Motor Company for its 1925 year. For the last two or three months rumors have been rife of an announcement of importance to be made in the near future.

Now that the summer has started, the industry and buying public alike are busy casting about Buick's next move. Naturally, the chief rumor is to the effect that Buick will announce a new six-cylinder car. The first of the year has been generally swung back to the six cylinder type, one as a result of this prediction. And following on this is the fact that Buick, as a leader in the industry, is naturally inclined to be conservative in its present six-cylinder line with another "six."

In view of these facts, every move of the Buick organization for the last two or three months has been noted carefully by the gossip of motordom and predictions have been numerous, based upon the events in Buick organization as interpreted with a "six" background. The shifts in the manufacturing program, customary in every organization at least once a year, have been diagnosed by the "wiseacres" as a positive indication that Buick is planning a new "six." Trivial comments by those closely associated with Buick manufacturing also have been construed to fit into the picture of a new six-cylinder Buick. Even the most serious mark has been set on a reflection of a rumor.

On the other hand, there has been nothing that definitely denies the truth of these rumors. They simply may or may not be true. Consequently, the calmest judgments in motoring circles are waiting—expectantly to be sure—but waiting without forecasting, for the day when Buick will reveal its 1925 program. The feeling is that whatever it may be, it is sure to be well worth waiting for.

Attempt To Repeal Cigar Tax Expected To Bring Hot Fight

Following Tame Opening of Legislature, Warmer Sessions in Near Future Are Predicted.

GOVERNOR ADVOCATES BIENNIAL SESSIONS

Big Bond Issue Proposal Cast Into Hopper Expected to Draw Bitter Opposition.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Although lines have been drawn and opposing forces in the general assembly have clearly indicated bitter fights on certain pending and proposed measures, the first three days of the 1924 session have been relatively quiet, with every indication that the session will be void of prolonged squabbles and spectacular features.

Of course there are going to be extended and heated debates on some questions such as the proposed statewide bond issue for highways; the proposal to repeal the state cigar and cigarette tax act; the bill to require all motorists to come to a full stop before crossing railroad tracks; the biennial sessions bill; proposals to reapportion representation in both houses so as to reduce the personnel; to create a state forestry board; to change the date of meeting of the assembly and others. On the whole there is no anticipation of an outstanding issue on which there is sharp division of opinion, such as is usually the case as a legislative session begins.

Favors Biennial Bill.

Probably ranking first in importance of all the measures yet introduced or coming over from last year as unfinished business is the biennial sessions bill. This was passed last year by the senate and will be reached early on the house calendar. Governor Walker, in his message delivered to a joint session last Thursday, strongly urged passage of this bill, pointing out the large financial savings, both direct and indirect, to the state should the legislature meet only every other year instead of annually. This measure is a constitutional amendment and if passed by the house must be submitted to the voters next November for ratification.

A companion bill which involves at least an equally important reform for the state is the measure to make the governor and other statehouse officers hold their places for four years, instead of two as at present. This bill carries a clause providing that no governor shall succeed himself in office. It is predicted about the corridors that, if it passes, it will do so with an amendment attached providing for popular recall.

Fight Indicated.

Perhaps the most bitter fight to come up, according to indications Friday, will revolve around the bill to repeal the state cigar and cigarette tax act. There was a lengthy parliamentary wrangle on Friday morning when this bill was introduced by Stanford, of Lowndes, and Jones, of Cook, on the committee to which it was to be referred. It was finally sent to the ways and means committee.

DAYLIGHT ROBBERS RAID APARTMENT

Gold Watch, Diamond Ring and Cash Taken From A. C. Kelly's Home on The Prado.

During daylight burglars Saturday afternoon ransacked the residence of A. C. Kelly, 11 The Prado, searched the apartment thoroughly, and stole $8 in cash, a gold watch, diamond ring and other jewelry. The robbery was perpetrated while Mrs. Kelly was absent from home.

Returning, Mrs. Kelly found the entire suite of rooms in great disorder, with bureau drawers pulled out and their contents strewn about the floor, chairs overturned and everything giving evidence of a hasty search.

Twenty dollars in cash, hidden in a pillow slip, was the only thing of value overlooked by the thieves.

Entrance evidently was gained through the front door of the apartment by use of a skeleton key. The rear door also was found unlocked, and it is thought the bandits intended to leave through that door, but were frightened by several maids, sitting on the rear porch of the adjoining apartment. Lieutenant W. H. Andrews, of the plainclothes department, and Detective Joe Wiley have been assigned to the case.

GEORGIA POLITICS STIR NO INTEREST EARLY IN CAMPAIGN

Hardwick To Open Campaign Against U. S. Senator Harris in Greene County on July 4.

WALKER OUTLINES PLATFORM TO SOLONS

Many Candidates Busy in General Assembly Session and Get Little Chance To Visit Voters.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

With the democratic convention in New York attracting 95 per cent of attention of Georgia voters, and with the opening of the state legislature in Atlanta claiming at least another 4 per cent, there was barely a trace of interest shown during the past week in the various races which are officially under way in the state, to end with the primary in September.

United States Senator William J. Harris, seeking reelection, and ex-Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, his opponent, did not engage in any active campaigning during the week. It is doubtful if Senator Harris will be able to find time for many speeches in the state this summer, but he spent all of last year touring the state, visiting each county at least once, most of them twice, and many three or more times.

Mr. Hardwick has announced that he will open a vigorous campaign on July 4, when he will speak at Watson Springs in Greene county.

Governor's Race Quiet.

In the governorship race the two candidates have had their time entirely occupied by the state legislature. Governor Clifford Walker, seeking reelection, has as yet made no formal announcement regarding his platform, though his annual message to the legislature delivered last Thursday, was generally regarded as embodying the main issues on which he is appealing to voters. In his message he stressed the need of economy and efficient handling of state finances and advocated biennial sessions of the legislature.

Herschel H. Elders, of Tattnall county, also a candidate for the gubernatorial seat, is a member of the legislature and is entirely occupied with his duties in that body.

Races for minor state house places have been correspondingly quietest. Albert J. Woodruff and O. R. Bennett, who are seeking to depose J. D. Price and John T. Boileau, respectively, on the public service commission, are members of the general assembly. Mr. Woodruff, however, is in New York as a member of the Georgia delegation to the democratic national convention.

Many Are Opposed.

Other state officials who face opposition in their races for reelection include State Superintendent of Schools N. H. Ballard, who is opposed by Fort E. Land, of Macon; J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, opposed by George F. Hunnicutt, and C. E. McGregor, pension commissioner, opposed by John Y. Clark.

Many members of the general assembly are candidates either for reelection or for new offices.

L. J. Steele, of DeKalb, is running for congress from the fifth district against William D. Upshaw, the present incumbent. Frank Holden, of Clarke, is a candidate for congress from the eighth district, and Ben J. Fowler, of Bibb, from the sixth.

A large number of members of the lower house, including Carl N. Guess, of DeKalb, and Craig Arnold, of Lumpkin, are seeking places in the state senate, while nearly all who are not eager for a change of office, are asking reelection to their present places. And there are a few who have refused to run again for anything, saying that they have had ample plenitude of public office holding, for a lifetime.

BANKER SAID TO HAVE STOLEN WOMAN'S RINGS

Rhineland, Wis., June 28.—According to advices received here today, Clark Kune, former Three Lakes banker, is wanted in New Orleans on a charge of embezzlement preferred by Mrs. J. J. Ware, wealthy resident of that city.

Man Who Killed His Wife Lingers at Death's Door

Daughter's Story Leads Police to Believe That T. F. Burson Had Planned Wife's Murder.

T. F. Burson, who killed his wife and fatally wounded himself Friday night, had planned the double shooting long before it happened, police were led to believe Saturday by a statement from his 12-year-old daughter, Mattie Lee Burson.

"Daddy asked me many times what I would do if both he and mamma were killed and I were left alone in the world," the child told the police. Officers who have been detailed to investigate the case say they will follow this lead in an effort to develop a motive for the shooting.

Although Burson is still alive at Grady hospital, doctors hold out no hope for his recovery and believe that he will not survive the night.

Neighbors, hearing the pistol shots Friday night in the residence of the Burson family at 8 Carr street, ran from their homes to find both Burson and his wife crumpled in a heap in the yard. She was dead when they reached the spot, and the man wounded.

Funeral services for Mrs. Burson will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Christian church at Howell Mill station. Interment will be in Crest Lawn cemetery. She is survived by her husband and three children, Madeline, 12; Annie Blanche, 10, and Thomas, 7.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF WIFE CAUGHT

Walter Sydnor Arrested When He Calls at Telegraph Office for Wire From "May."

Richmond, Va., June 28.—Walter J. Sydnor, for the past ten days a fugitive from justice, has been captured and will return to this city in custody of Alexandria officers who made the arrest.

Sydnor is wanted by the Richmond authorities for the alleged murder of his third wife, Mrs. Violet Worley Sydnor, whose body was found floating in the James river on the morning of June 17. Since that time members of the local police force have followed their man over a trail that led through Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia and finally terminated when he was taken into custody in Alexandria, Va., last night at 8:45 o'clock.

According to Captain of Detectives Alexander S. Wright, the arrest was effected when local officers, working on the case, learned that Sydnor was in Alexandria and furnished the police there with a description of the man. He was apprehended just after he had called at a telegraph office for a message which had not arrived but which did arrive later and read: "Call for money Saturday 28. Identification will be waived, May."

In discussing the capture last night Captain Wright said that it has been possible to follow Sydnor's moves because he has been in constant communication with his second wife, Mrs. Eva May Sydnor, from whom he was estranged and against whom he had started divorce proceedings shortly before he was married a third time to Violet Worley. Officers have been so close on his trail, Captain Wright said, that several times during the past week his arrest was expected momentarily.

Mrs. Sydnor was last seen alive on Saturday night, June 14, when she left the home of her mother, Mrs. E. W. Roney, following a quarrel with her husband, which is said to have resulted when she learned that he was not divorced from his second wife, who also lives in Richmond. According to the dead woman's mother, the couple agreed to separate and her daughter went out to meet her husband for a "last talk" together. The next time Mrs. Roney saw her daughter was when she identified her body at a local undertaking establishment.

Police have in their possession, they say, affidavits from persons, whose names are being withheld, stating that Sydnor confessed to them that he killed his wife by hitting her on the head with a brick and that he threw the body in the river where it was found.

The dead woman, herself married twice, was Sydnor's third wife. He was married first, several years ago, to a Norfolk woman whom he later divorced. His second wife was Mrs. Eva May Sydnor, through whom police located the missing man.

Top, left, Mrs. T. F. Burson, 32, of 8 Carr street, who was shot to death by her husband Friday night, who also shot himself through the neck and is not expected to recover. The husband is shown next at right. At extreme right, Mrs. Mattie Bratcher, 25, niece of Burson, who was sleeping in an adjoining room when the shooting occurred. Battle Launched By Edward Heirs To Win Millions

More Than 200 Persons Hold Meeting in Atlanta to Plan Action.

Having organized in pursuance of their claim to several hundred million dollars' worth of New York property originally owned by their ancestor, William Edwards, the Georgia-Alabama association of Edwards heirs met here Saturday afternoon to form plans for further action. More than 200 heirs were present, including J. T. Turpin, president of the Kentucky association, and Rev. W. A. Edwards, 89, of Dallas, oldest known living descendant of the first William Edwards.

Mrs. R. S. Walker, of College Park, president, was the principal speaker. She outlined the work of the association since its organization last May, and recommended further consolidation and careful verification of the descent of every member before recovery proceedings are started. Her plans were endorsed by the meeting, and she was authorized to appoint an advisory committee to assist her in execution of the work. Calhoun S. Saul and C. R. Collins, of Atlanta, were named.

According to members of the association, William Edwards came to New York in 1745 with his two brothers, and soon afterward acquired by royal grant from George II a tract of land on Manhattan Island, then practically worthless, but now priceless. Some years later, Edwards is said to have moved to Culpeper county, Virginia, where he married and settled. His son John, it is claimed, migrated to Oglethorpe county, Georgia, and there founded the family whose numerous branches have spread over the entire south.

In spite of the large number of claimants to the property, the share of each in the event their title is established will be considerable. They claim that the Edwards property was never sold, but leased and subleased for long terms. It is now probably the most valuable piece of land in the world, lying around the corner of Forty-second street and Broadway.

Beginning in 1888, a movement was launched to recover the land for the Edwards heirs, but it was unsuccessful when the original royal grant made to William Edwards could not be found. The present heirs are faced by the same difficulty.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TROLLEY CHARGED TO UNION CHIEF

Atlantic City, June 28.—Tilghman Mathis, president of the Atlantic City local of the Trolley men's union, and Michael Magnus, secretary of the union, were arrested today charged with attempting to wreck a car of the Atlantic City and Shore Railroad company, whose employees are on strike to enforce wage demands.

They were arrested by Chief Joseph Margerum of the Somers Point police, after his suspicions were aroused by the actions of a group of eight men on the trolley tracks. Chief Margerum charged that the men were placing ties on the rails to wreck one of the fast line cars. At his approach, six of the men fled.

Street Kissing Not Disorderly, Recorder Rules

Young Savannahs To Be Allowed Rare Privilege, Unless Kissees Objects.

Savannah, Ga., June 28.—John E. Schwarz, recorder of Savannah, made himself square with the young people of the city today when he ruled that kissing on the street is not disorderly conduct when there is no objection on the part of the kissees.

Harry Brooks, 21, had been arrested at 3 o'clock in the morning because of loud singing and some snacking in an automobile.

The singing was not so annoying, but the neighbors did not like the snacking.

"There is no disorder in kissing," the recorder declared. "Case dismissed."

Bandit Is Killed In Duel With Cop In Police Patrol

Cleveland, June 28.—One alleged bandit is dead, a second seriously wounded and a police patrolman shot in the leg as the result of a gun duel between holdup suspects and patrolmen in a police emergency car this morning.

"Ray Martin," alleged leader of a bandit gang of five which this morning held up and robbed a grocery store, was killed by Patrolman Hach driving the emergency car in which the men were being taken to police headquarters when Martin snatched the gun of another patrolman and opened fire on Hach.

Ray Walsh, the second suspect, was believed to have been seriously wounded by Hach's second shot.

Lester McGrath, third man of the gang, came out of the firing unharmed, and admitted when questioned at headquarters that he and his companions had participated in the early morning robbery, detectives said.

Two of the bandit gang have not been captured.

6 Disabled Vets Face Rum Charge After U. S. Probe

Warrants Issued After Secret Agent Lives in Government Hospital.

Paducah, Ky., June 28.—Warrants for arrest on charges of possessing liquor were issued today for six patients in the federal government's rehabilitation hospital at Dawson Springs. A deputy United States marshal left Paducah immediately afterward to serve them.

The warrants were issued after a federal agent spent a week in the hospital as a patient during which time he attempted to locate the source of a liquor traffic which has troubled doctors at the institution for several months. Patients frequently became intoxicated, it is charged, and hospital authorities said night nurses had complained of conditions existing when they came on duty in the evening.

Compromise Plan In Melon Fight Ends in Failure

EIGHT ACCIDENT VICTIMS ADDED TO INJURED LIST

Two-Year-Old Morris Jones Seriously Injured; Two Women Among Accident Victims.

53 NEW CASES MADE AGAINST VIOLATORS

A. J. Cook Bound Over For Accident on May 28 in Which C. C. Barfield Met His Death.

Eight persons were hurt in two accidents on the streets of Atlanta during Saturday, two being seriously injured and six others slightly bruised and scratched.

The seriously injured are W. C. Norton, of 210 Wadley avenue, and 2-year-old Morris Kersey Jones, of Lakewood Crossover. Both are at Grady hospital, Norton suffering from bad cuts and bruises and a dislocated shoulder, and the small boy badly bruised and cut.

Miraculous Escape.

The automobile in which the boy, Mrs. N. S. Jones, his mother, and two small brothers were riding, collided with a street car according to the report filed at police station. The mother was shaken up and slightly bruised, but the other two small children miraculously escaped injury.

The car—Washington street car—was in charge of Conductor M. L. Andrews and Motorman J. G. Britt, who stated that the automobile came out of an alley near Macon drive, directly into the path of the street car, and was struck before the car could be brought to a stop.

Norton was injured when struck by an automobile in a downtown street. Details of the accident were not available.

Other Injuries.

Others injured are Miss Lulu Pittman, of 46 Longley avenue; two negro messenger boys, Raleigh Evans and Walter Willes, and Bennie Dennis, also colored. Miss Pittman was knocked down by a bicycle ridden by William Phillips, negro messenger boy, at Five Points. She was bruised and shaken up, but was taken to the hospital. Officer Baldwin, who arrested Phillips on a charge of reckless driving, reported that he was crossing the street in violation of the traffic signal at the time of the accident.

Evans was knocked from his bicycle when struck by an automobile driven by R. M. Newsome, negro, at North Pryor and Hunter streets, suffering minor injuries. Patrolman Wulhel arrested Newsome, who entered a plea of guilty to the charge of reckless driving, and was fined $10.

The Willis boy suffered slight injuries when knocked from his bicycle at Decatur and Ivy streets by a truck driven by an unidentified white man. Instead of stopping, the driver of the truck increased the speed after the crash. Patrolman Felder obtained a description of the man, and witnesses reported the license number.

Negro Badly Bruised.

Bennie Dennis, colored, was badly bruised when struck by an automobile late Friday afternoon at the corner of Forrest avenue and Butler street. He was carried to the Grady hospital, where surgeons stated that

$250,000 CHECKS SIGNED BY MAYOR

Money Will Be Used in Paying Semi-Annual Interest on City's Bonded Indebtedness.

Mayor Walter Sims Saturday signed checks for $250,000 with which to pay the semi-annual interest on Atlanta's bonded indebtedness of $13,000,000, including more than $1,500,000 of baby bonds issued for street improvements during the last three years. The checks were sent by special messenger to City Treasurer Ewing, who will make the payments to bondholders.

The city's bonding power is $23,000,000, under the state constitutional provision limiting municipalities to bond issues of not more than 7 per cent of the total taxable value. Interest and sinking fund on bonds now outstanding cost Atlanta a little more than $1,000,000 a year, all of which has been provided by council for this year.

Evidence of Reinfestation Ready for Submission, Declares State Veterinarian Bahnsen.

FEDERAL COURTS WILL HEAR CASE

Shippers and Carriers To Seek Permanent Injunction Order at Hearing Monday.

Efforts Saturday to reach an agreement in the Georgia-Florida watermelon controversy in order to avoid the tedious three-judge federal hearing scheduled for Monday, met with failure when Peter F. Bahnsen, state veterinarian, and his colleagues presented evidence to show that active cases of re-infestation had crisscrossed themselves since the posting of the $10,000 bond to indemnify the state.

Conference of various state officials in a desperate effort to eliminate the hearing came on the heels of a decision rendered by Judge Samuel H. Sibley in federal district court Saturday morning, overruling a motion for a continuance made by attorneys for the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, complainant in the case. The attorneys declared that further time was needed to prepare their evidence.

The hearing Monday will be an effort to make permanent the temporary injunction against enforcement of an order by Mr. Bahnsen, which would prevent shipment of watermelons from Florida through Georgia when they are embedded in straw. Mr. Bahnsen contends that pine straw is a cattle tick carrier.

Compromise Rejected. At the conference Saturday afternoon in the offices of George M. Napier, attorney general of Georgia, compromises offered by representatives of the railroad company and of the state of Florida were not received favorably by the state veterinarian. Although it seemed for a time that an agreement would be forthcoming, all indications after the session pointed that the hearing would be held as scheduled.

W. L. Bryan, attorney for Seminole county, who is assisting the state official in the fight, positively declared that tick re-infestation had demonstrated itself in the southern part of the state since the Atlantic Coast Line railroad had posted the bond. Neither he nor Mr. Bahnsen, however, would disclose the location of the reappearance of the pests. This, they said, will develop at the hearing when sworn affidavits will be introduced.

Under the articles of the indemnifying bond, the railroad will probably be called upon for forfeiture, they intimated, but would not state positively that they would make an attempt to recover damages.

R. C. Alston, attorney for the railroad company, made every effort to assure an agreement. A compromise feature, that watermelon cars be disinfected on return to the state together with the burning of the straw in which melons are hebed, said to be a cattle tick carrier, was discussed at some length.

The discussion was dropped, however, when Mr. Bahnsen made stringent reservations.

WILL COORDINATE TWO AIR SERVICES

Effort Will Be Made To Prevent Duplication of Effort and Secure Better Cooperation.

Washington, June 28.—A new policy for the coordination of the army and navy aviation services was announced by Secretaries Weeks and Wilbur.

The aeronautical board will be reorganized and every effort will be made to prevent duplication of effort and to secure a more complete cooperation between the two branches of the nation's armed forces.

Under the new policy the board will report on all questions affecting jointly the development and employment of army and navy aviation and will make recommendations for joint plans and of tactical employment of aircraft and for the location of air stations. In addition, it will consider questions relating to the development of new types of aircraft and weapons and decide whether the army or navy should be charged with their development; will endeavor to prevent competition in the procurement of material; arrange for interchange of craft and facilities when possible, consider recommendations for air stations to be used jointly by the two services, pass on projects for experimental stations on shore and coastal stations and will consider recommendations in regard to estimates of appropriations of the army and navy.

The aeronautical board will be headed by the chiefs of the army and navy air services and will consist of six members.

Barfield, of 94 South Mason avenue, May 28, causing injuries which resulted in Barfield's death, was bound over to the grand jury Saturday in recorder's court, charged with involuntary manslaughter. Evidence showed that the fatal accident was caused when Cook's machine struck the side of Barfield's car, causing the latter to turn over.

A total of 53 new cases were made Saturday. Drivers being charged with violating traffic ordinances, 13 with speeding, 11 with reckless driving, three with violating the dinner ordinance and three with operating automobiles while intoxicated.

LISTLESS SESSION GETS UNDER WAY

tee, but the authors did not hesitate to express disapproval of this action and intimated that they would endeavor to have it reassigned to what they termed "a more friendly committee" next week.

There has been much dissatisfaction, openly expressed, against the results of the enforcement of the cigar and cigarette tax act to date. This law became effective on January 1 last and members who supported it when passed at the special session last fall are badly disappointed in the manner in which the revenue raised has fallen far short of the amount estimated when the bill passed.

Should the repeal effort fail to pass it is expected that an effort will be made to amend the original bill so as to provide some better method of collection of the tax.

Railroads Suspected.

The bill to require all motorists to come to a full stop not more than fifty feet away from all grade crossings was the center of extended debate on Friday when a motion to reconsider was put. The house defeated this measure last year after it had been passed by the senate. Opposition is based on the argument that it is sponsored by the railroads and members who supported it when passed at the special session last fall are badly disappointed in the manner in which the revenue raised has fallen far short of the amount estimated when the bill passed.

Should the repeal effort fail to pass it is expected that an effort will be made to amend the original bill so as to provide some better method of collection of the tax.

To Come Up Again.

On the vote to place the bill back on the calendar for reconsideration its supporters won, 74 to 70, and it will therefore come up again for action when it is reached in the regular course of house business.

Representative Mann, of Glynn county, introduced his promised highway bond issue bill on the opening day of the session. As forecast, the bill provides for an issue of $400,000 in bonds over a period of five years, the bonds to be retired in not over 30 years. The bill carries no additional taxation, provision for interest on the bonds and their retirement being amply taken care of through the taxes already imposed on gasoline and the state automobile license tax, which money is already appropriated to the highway department.

Both the biennial sessions bill, the four-year term bill, and various bills for reduction of the number of representatives have as their object economy in state affairs and a reduction in the number of political campaigns throughout the state. Representative Craig Arnold, of Lumpkin county, is author of a drastic reapportionment bill which would make the membership of the house 82 and that of the senate 12.

Representative Lee Langley, of Floyd, has a reapportionment bill which is copied on the plan under which the federal congress operates. This bill would divide the state into 100 districts, on a basis of population from each district. Three state senators would be elected for each congressional district, each district to vote on three senators at large.

Wants Date Changed.

Representative Jeff Linder, of Jeff Davis, is the author of the bill to change the date of meeting of the assembly. The bill sets the annual meeting date on the third Wednesday in January. It is a constitutional amendment. Supporters contend that it would prove beneficial by bringing the legislature into sessions five months sooner after new members have been elected, thus lessening the gap between the time many are defeated and their successors take office.

Representative Harris, of Jefferson, has introduced a bill to make a state income tax constitutional, similar to the measure he sponsored last year. Numerous other measures, largely of minor importance, were introduced last week and it is evident that, if the session is, as predicted, comparatively quiet, it will not be for lack of crisis for legislative hoppers.

At 11 o'clock Monday morning solons will resume their labors, in advance for the weekend since Friday noon. In the senate there is no business pending, the calendar for Monday being clear. In the house there are a number of matters ready for action, but which will receive first attention is at present unknown.

One of the first important committee meetings of the present session of the legislature will be held Tuesday when the house committee on education will meet to consider the bill introduced last week by Carl N. Jones, of DeKalb county, to provide for the creation of a state school book board. The bill was introduced, Mr. Jones said, on request of a number of his constituents.

New Zealand University Rejects Accredited System

A plan for admitting graduates of accredited secondary schools without examination was recently rejected at the session of New Zealand university. It is stated in a letter recently received by the United States commissioner of education from a distinguished New Zealander. The proposed reform was vigorously opposed by the professors, and one of the reasons given was that Harvard and other great American universities refuse to accept the plan.

Free Parcel-Checking.

Here's an idea for some local merchant who wants to accommodate the women that go down town to shop on hot days. A writer in Good Hardware tells how an Ohio dealer is doing it. He has a refrigerator in his business district, had to carry around with them packages of perishables which they had purchased in his store. The refrigerator was filled with fresh meat, fish, and other foodstuffs which melt or lose their freshness in heat. Noticing this, the dealer has placed a refrigerator for stock near the front entrance, keeps the ice compartment filled, and this sign on the box:

"We will check your perishables in this refrigerator free while you finish your shopping. Don't take a chance on your spoiling but leave them here until you are ready to go home."

All of which might seem a bit too Utopian but for the fact that refrigerators happen to be one of the dealer's chief lines.

At 6 o'clock every evening an officer and a platoon of forty-five soldiers march from their barracks through the streets of London to stand guard duty over the Bank of England through the night. At 6 next morning they take their departure. The custom of guarding the Bank of England dates back to 1694, the year when the bank was built.

Prince Rupert, British Columbia. During the past four months 130 timber contracts have been entered into, covering about 19,000 acres of timber lands and representing a total value of $105,000, according to the local authorities. The land is estimated to produce 167,000 ties, 840,000 lineal feet of poles, and 32,000,000 feet of sawlogs. All has to be removed in three years.

Any lead drink requires thorough mixing or shaking and should be served in a state of frothing and foaming in the thin flat glass in which it is found. For this purpose an egg-beater may be used, although nothing really works as well as an old-time cocktail-shaker, for which these simple fruit drinks now offer a legitimate usefulness.

There are many delightful cool drinks to be made of milk plus fruit. These offer a pleasant inducement to take a bit of mid-afternoon nourishment—and both are needed in hot weather.

Those Old Axioms.

(Good Hardware.)
There are certain straight truths that every one has accepted as true. They go back to our earliest memories: "Things equal to the same thing are equal to each other." "The whole is greater than any of its parts." Ten out of ten men believe these, one hundred per cent all of the time.

Ten out of ten men also believe that a yardstick placed east and west was the same length as the same yardstick placed north and south. But two or three men in a billion doubted that a few years ago. One of them was Einstein.

Even the physicists laughed at him for doubting their absolutely established "facts." Now every reputable physicist agrees largely with Einstein's results and the relativity theory.

The men who have doubted and tested axioms are few, with many between—Newton, Darwin and others among the scientists. Even Aristotle said that the accepted views of others may be our greatest obstacles to progress.

Two morals: Keep a place in your brain for one more idea at least. Secondly, if some one asks you to put all your faith in vitamins, glands or any other new bug, tell them you'll be glad to reserve a seat, but you can hardly pay the full price at once.

Railways of Brazil are preparing to buy 75 locomotives, while one of the organizations has ordered 200 freight cars and another will purchase 50 American refrigerator cars.

$500,000 DAMAGES ASKED FROM KLAN

Chicago, June 28.—A suit for $500,000 damages against the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a corporation organized under the laws of Georgia, was filed in federal court here today by the American Unity Publishing company, alleging conspiracy against certain races and classes of citizens.

It is charged that Ku Klux Klan leaders employed Neufeld Jones, formerly in the taxicab business at Atlanta, to disrupt the opposition to the Klan represented by the publishing company, which publishes "Tolerance." Jones is alleged to have represented himself as an enemy of the Klan and to have gone to New York and collected large sums of money.

Then, it is charged, he was an active party in the strife which resulted in fist fights over control of the Klan and a constitutional amendment proceeding in which the original managers of "Tolerance" regained control when Federal Judge Wilkerson dismissed the receivership suit.

Suited Heavy Loss.
As a result of the conspiracy and bitterness, it is alleged, the publication lost subscriptions and that the company suffered a loss of $500,000.

According to P. M. O'Donnell, president of the American Unity league, which was organized to oppose the Klan, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia university, is interested in preparing a book on legal action against the Klan in New York, and that other federal action against the Klan and its officials must be taken.

The bill charged that Jones was a paid employee of the Klan of which Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans and other high officers are alleged to have conspired to use the Klan to defraud through the efforts of Jones.

Jones Under Charges.
Jones, it was alleged, came to Chicago and obtained employment as a district director of the American Unity league and was commissioned to do organization work for the league in the east.

Attorney O'Donnell declared that while Jones was soliciting membership for the league in the east, he was being paid a total of $32,887 by the Klan. This information, he said, came to him from E. L. Clarke and others two weeks ago in Washington, as a result of the factionalism within the Klan.

Mr. Jones served for more than a year as assistant federal prohibition director in Georgia, resigning to enter another business. He is the son of Dr. C. O. Jones, superintendent of the Georgia Anti-Saloon league.

When You're Thirsty.

(From The Delineator.)
One of the things that make the hot, dusty days of summer months so formidable is a long, cool, refreshing drink. But even the enjoyment that comes from a tall glass is somewhat alloyed if you can not have that just at the moment you want it, whether it be for yourself, a friend, member of the family, a casual caller or for one of those spontaneous parties that spring up without warning in every hostess' community.

Preparation in this case means popularity, even if only with oneself for having the thoughtfulness to keep a supply of water in the refrigerator so that ice-cold water may be always available without drawing on the ice supply.

The next thing to do in preparing for the summer campaign is to stock a stock of plain white sirup. This keeps indefinitely, is always ready to use and instantly blends with fruit juices or water. On the other hand, the sugar-syrup never mixes satisfactorily and requires much stirring to obtain even unsatisfactory results. If you try to make sirup each time it is needed, it will always be hot and sticky and will be a waste of time and effort in cooling it and the final result will be thin and diluted. With sirup one can regulate sweetness to taste, and the drinks in which it is used will be smooth and ready. When the advantages of a ready-made sirup are once realized, the pantry shelf may be extended to include ready-to-use fruit and chocolate sirups and perhaps a fruit vinegar or two. These things are inexpensive, simple to prepare and are a first-aid to summer comfort. A teaspoon of the vinegar gives a pleasant tang to the other fruit drinks and is refreshing if added to plain ice water. Also it may be the needed flavor in a French salad dressing.

Conferences Will Reject Plans, Dr. Elliott Predicts

BY REV. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT, D. D.

The most absorbing question before American church life today pertains to the question of unification between the two great branches of Methodism in America. No other question is receiving one-half the consideration, and probably no other question is nearly so important. Thousands of columns of newspaper space are being devoted to it, and thousands by the scores are being delivered daily. Millions of people are thinking and talking about it.

The profound and far-reaching possibilities that may arise out of the situation, to contemplate a merger whereby 8,000,000 Methodists, with their 30,000,000 adherents in America, unite in the varied work of evangelization, education, hospitals, publishing interests, and general efforts to build up the kingdom of God and overthrow the powers of evil, is a fascinating occupation just at this time to anyone who is heartily in sympathy with promoting that which is true and good. United Methodism would, indeed, be a power without equal in religious activity.

But the absorbing question is, What will the Southern Methodists do about the matter of unification? Since the discussions of 50 years have come to a juncture where Southern Methodists have it planned to vote on the matter, and thus continue the efforts towards unification, or otherwise, everybody wants to know as early as possible what the Southern Methodists will do.

The sincere judgment of the writer is that the general conference, which meets in Chattanooga on July 2, will consider the proposed plan of unification, will vote to approve the plan and pass it down to the annual conference for further consideration, where the plan will fail to secure the requisite approval.

Vote Is on Plan.
It should be clearly borne in mind that the Methodists of America are not voting on unification at this time, but on the plan of unification proposed by the joint commission appointed by the two general conferences. The plan is the product of the work of 50 eminent men of the two churches, approved by more than the required two-thirds majority in the general conference of the Northern Methodist church. The plan, and the plan alone, is the matter being considered now. Should the plan be endorsed by the necessary majorities in the general annual conference, Methodist unification will be accomplished; should the plan be defeated, unification will be deferred for years.

The plan submitted is the product of the labor of many men through many years. It is the best that could be devised under existing conditions. It manifests a give-and-take spirit on both sides. It approaches most closely to unification of the two churches so far considered, and is the only plan that has secured nationwide attention. The prediction is made that the general conference of next month will approve the plan, and that the annual conferences coming later will do so.

Southern Conference Committed.
The Southern Methodist general conference is somewhat committed to unification. Through the past several sessions of the general conference the commission has been continued, and the earnest spirit manifested that a plan might be formulated whereby the two branches of Methodism might be united in one body in the bonds of brotherly love and spiritual oneness.

ber and extent. Uncertainty here will prove an insurmountable barrier in any man's mind, and he will not vote in the way of assurance, and oppose adoption of the plan, so that he may be sure of his holdings. Southern Methodists have not forgotten that will not, Vanderbilt university. If a clouded title discounts the value of a property, and prevents its desirability, it is certain that uncertainty implied in the proposed plan of unification will develop strong opposition to it. Southern Methodists from now on will go slowly in the matter of transferring property titles or investing ownership of their institutions.

The Judicial Council.
Another stupendous feature of the proposed plan pertains to the judicial council. This feature is revolutionary and heretofore has invariably been defeated. The judicial council, as proposed, is to be composed of an equal number of members from each jurisdictional conference, to provide its own methods of procedure, to have authority to review the acts of the general conference, and to have the right to annul the acts of the general conference or of other jurisdictional conference, to be empowered to arrest the action of the general conference, and to be empowered to make decisions as to be made by a majority of the total membership of the council.

As interpreted, this one feature of the proposed plan, when Southern Methodists come to consider and understand it, is enough to defeat the plan being accepted in the south. It affords protection to the Northern Methodist church, but none to the Southern Methodist church. It is loaded with danger for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The judicial council is to be the supreme court of last resort to consider the acts of the general conference and of other jurisdictional conference. But more than this, the judicial council may by its own right and motion pass upon the constitutionality of the acts of the general conference of either jurisdictional conference.

Again, the proposed plan stipulates that the voting of the general conference shall be by majority vote of each jurisdictional conference. The plan proposes that the judicial council shall vote and make valid its membership and by jurisdictional conference. It is easy to see possibilities of developments unfavorable to Southern Methodism in this scheme. This one feature is enough to kill it in the south.

Opponents of the proposed plan observe that no method is guaranteed to eliminate overlapping and dual occupancy of territory or to prevent efforts penetrating and disintegrating the south will cease. Provision is made for the transfer of members, and charges, but with their consent.

In the plan of separation, adopted eighty years ago, the two churches and all congregations, stations and churches and churches adhering to the church in the south should remain under the unimpaired pastoral care of that church, and that ministers of the two churches should in no way undertake to organize congregations or churches in the territory of the south.

The two churches of the southern church of the Potomac and Ohio rivers adhered to that agreement; while the northern church has not adhered to that agreement, nor to that one formulated at the Centennial conference many years after the separation. The Northern Methodist church has conferences throughout the south, and churches in the south are actively at work every month building yet others. This is in direct violation of the compact entered into, and no promise is given or even intimated that it will be.

Madison was President.
On March 4 that year James Madison was sworn in as president of the United States, succeeding to the office of George Washington.

Wrangles Promised.
Unending wrangles in the general conference are promised by the proposed plan, which stipulates that motion shall be by jurisdictions, and that to motion shall prevail except by a majority vote of each jurisdiction.

Should one side move to adjourn or extend the time limit five minutes, the other side could defeat it. This provision appears a monstrosity in any parliamentary procedure.

Southern Methodists long ago set up the negro Methodists of the old south in a church to themselves, giving them such help as was practicable. Northern Methodists have led on to the negroes, having some 400,000 members in the south. Unification has been delayed on account of the negro question. The proposed plan stipulates that negroes are to be included in the new arrangement. Nearly one hundred negroes occupy seats in the northern general conference at this time, and will continue to do so in the same relation in the new church.

Two negro bishops now sit in equal authority and position in the general conference of the northern church with the white bishops, and will continue to do likewise in the new arrangement. Southern Methodists will not be likely to subscribe to a plan of unification that will give them no promise or guarantee of deliverance from this.

What the coming weeks and months will bring forth in the matter of Methodist unification no one can definitely say. The question before the question is being studied, and hearts are aflame with a desire to do that which will promote the kingdom of God on earth. Momentous issues are at stake not only in this world but in the next world, but also in heaven and pertaining to spiritual things.

It is a time for all church people, not merely Methodists, to seek the overruling guidance of heaven.

The stabbing took place at the corner of Cornelia and Decatur streets, and was witnessed by Carl Dill, of 31 Savannah street, the son of the victim. According to information given Call Officers L. L. Stone and J. A. Brown, father and son and Medley were walking down Decatur street toward Five Points, when Dill senior, started an affray with Medley, during the course of which Dill pushed Medley playfully.

Medley evidently misinterpreted the act, and hostilities began. Medley whipped out a knife, and thrust the blade into Dill's neck just below the left ear. Carl Dill then grabbed Medley's arm, but Medley jerked it free and made another slashing movement, striking the elder Dill in the right arm. Neither cut was very deep. Medley then made his escape.

Police Making Probe Of Cutting Affray

Police are searching for a man named Medley, initials and street address unknown, who is reported to have stabbed R. L. Dill, of 38 Savannah street, Saturday afternoon. Dill was carried to the Grady hospital, where doctors stated his condition was not dangerous. He was allowed to go home, after a few stitches had been taken.

The stabbing took place at the corner of Cornelia and Decatur streets, and was witnessed by Carl Dill, of 31 Savannah street, the son of the victim. According to information given Call Officers L. L. Business Outlook Is Decidedly More Optimistic, Says Platt

BY C. H. PLATT.

New York, June 28.—(Special to The Constitution).—The stock market did not give much attention to the democratic national convention in the past week and stocks were generally strong. The railroad shares were the feature, with some of the leading dividend issues going to new high records and the averages for the rails as a whole going into new high ground for the past year or two. Certain of the industrials which have pools operating in them were quite strong, but as a whole there was much more movement in the rails than in the rest of the list. A few of the public utility stocks had good advances. Several weak features included the oils, which went lower as a result of the government anti-trust suit and the current unsettledness in the industry. Copper, motor and rubber stocks did not have as firm a tone as many other groups. There are strong indications that some of the most influential trading interests are solidly back of the market at the present time. There has been a good buying movement every time the market weakened and when any bad news that might cause unsettledness has arisen there has been immediate support for the market. It is the reverse of the conditions of a few months ago when the professionals would sell the market every time there was a hint of a favorable news. Then, they were trying their best to get prices much lower and they succeeded many times in heading off a real rally. Now, there seems to be a bullish feeling among professionals, with some exceptions, and they want to stop all reactions before they become serious.

Improvement Seen

It looks as if it is expected to be decided an improvement in business and in sentiment in the fall that a big buying movement in stocks by the public will be the result. The big pools and groups which have been formed are trying to get prices up and hold them up, with a view of selling out at still higher levels when the public does come in on a large scale. Incidentally, it might be said that a fair public following exists in the market at the present time and that the steady trend under bad news which the market has shown has attracted many outside traders in the past two weeks. Just as the public does most of the selling near the bottom of a long decline, so there is the biggest buying after many weeks of strength. That is why it is expected that the professional will hold the market up during most of the summer, and while occasional severe reactions may develop when there is profit taking, that support will appear before the down trend becomes serious.

News of the business world is becoming more optimistic. There is no denying that a better stock market has had much to do with this. Many business men who consider the stock market price range as almost an infallible barometer of the future of industrial conditions, and many a contract has been canceled merely because of weak stock market conditions. Conversely, a sustained advance in stock prices attracts a lot of hope and where a man might be hesitating about placing orders, this might cause him to go ahead. As far as politics is concerned, there is little fear that the coming campaign will be disturbing to business as a whole. The real secret of the strength in stocks is to be found in the continuation of low money rates and a plentiful supply available for loans.

Higher grade stocks are being taken up by investors, in many cases because of the high yield in proportion to the price of the stock. There is almost as great a scarcity as in the high-grade bond field. The government suit against the large oil refining companies came into effect when there were indications that the oil stocks were going to have a good rally. There has been a steady improvement in conditions in the oil industry and in the past three or four weeks a heavy withdrawal of the stored surplus of gasoline and crude oil has taken place. In the warmer weather of the past week, consumption of gasoline is said to have been larger than for any similar period in the history of the oil trade. Despite the government suit, it is believed that there will be better conditions in oil stocks during the summer.

Although general business has been dull, employment has continued good. In some trades, most notably in the steel industry and motor car business, a steady reduction in employment has been taken place, but this has not been fast enough to clog the market and there has been some other field found by most workers quickly.

Cash Sales Fair. Motor car sales are fair even if they are below last year. The industry is in much better condition than might be supposed from some reports, and it is expected that the surplus cars that have been thrown back onto manufacturers' hands will be disposed of during the summer.

Copper has been soft, even though there has been a very strong statistical position in this trade. It looks as though further curtailment of production by the mines having the higher-cost rates, especially those whose cost of production is over 20 cents a pound, will take place in the near future.

next few weeks. It would take very little new curtailment to bring down the total output to under the present consumption. There would then be a basis for a decided advance in copper prices, for the supplies on hand are quite small and amount to only a few weeks' needs.

Steel orders are in better volume, and there is every reason to look for a decided improvement in demand during the next few months. The gain in new business came too late in the month to offset the slack buying of the early part of June and so there is going to be another decline in unfilled tonnages reported for June, although it will not be as large as for April and May.

Cotton had another irregular week with bursts of strength and then profit taking and new short selling offsetting it. The action of the July position indicates that there will be a "squeeze" in it before the contract expires. Crop conditions do not indicate that there will be more than a slight improvement shown in the next government report.

Court of Appeals Has Placed

Bonds in Demand

Bond offerings of better grade securities have been snapped up so quickly that many people who wanted to buy them have not been able to. The market is now showing a higher level than corresponding old ones, due to the fact that offerings of desirable bonds of the most seasoned kind have been taken off the market by recent buyers and only small lots are available as a rule. A new issue of the prospect to those who obtain the bonds of an insurance company, have had over a million dollars to invest and wanted lots of $50,000 to $100,000 in various bonds. In most cases, there would have been many points of advance on the particular bond before all of which a block could be bought, but such lots were actually obtained in several of the recent new offerings.

Higher grade stocks are being taken up by investors, in many cases because of the high yield in proportion to the price of the stock. There is almost as great a scarcity as in the high-grade bond field.

The government suit against the large oil refining companies came into effect when there were indications that the oil stocks were going to have a good rally. New York, June 28.—A tendency to increase estimates of the crop, and tendencies for continued good weather, seemed responsible for declines in the cotton market today. The most urgent demand for July appeared to have been supplied and that delivery would fall from 29,228 to 28,935, or 29 points net lower, under a little liquidation, while new crop monthly sold 17 to 20 points below yesterday's closing quotations, with October declining to 24.95. The closing tone was barely steady at net losses of 19 to 20 points on all months from August, which was nominally unchanged.

The market opened steady at a decline of 7 to 12 points on a few weather news. There were bulges of a few points right after the call on further covering by July shorts, but the demand for that position was much less active than yesterday and the market soon turned easier on the generally favorable crop and weather news. Three more private crop reports were published, one making the condition 63.2, but giving no indicated yield. Another placed the condition at 63.1 and the indicated yield at 11,777,000 bales, and the third made the condition 63.4.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance was estimated at 52,000 against 55,000 last year.

NARROW AFFAIR AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, June 28.—The cotton market was a very narrow affair today and after showing a slight advance in the early trading turned easier, particularly on the new crop months. July was sustained by fears of what may happen to the shorts before that option is finally liquidated. After trading up to 27.40, or 7 points higher, it eased off to 27.20, but closed at 27.40, or only 2 points net down. October traded at 24.95 and December at 24.12 near the start, or unchanged to 2 points up, and later eased off to 24.10, or 1 point down, and 23.95 for the latter, or 17 to 21 points down from the high. The close showed net losses for the day of 2 points on July and 15 points on new crop positions.

Later in the session there was moderate selling of new crop months on the generally favorable weather in the interior and on the rather high condition averages reported by two of the three private authorities issuing reports during the morning.

The three condition reports issued during the day gave averages of 63.4, 63.3, and 63.1, but giving no indicated yield. Another placed the condition at 63.1 and the indicated yield at 11,777,000 bales. Houston officially reported the arrival of the first new bale today.

New Orleans, June 28.—Spot cotton quiet and unchanged; sales on the spot, 24 bales; to arrive, none. Middling 28.95; middling 28.80; good middling 29.92.

Paris, June 28.—(By the Associated Press).—The Herriot ministry was placed in a dangerous position this afternoon when the socialists refused to vote appropriations for the forces of occupation in the Ruhr, whereupon the premier proposed the question of confidence and part of the socialists abstained from voting.

The chamber voted for the appropriation, 456 to 26, groups of the minority deciding to support the government on the question of the occupation of Ruhr.

Harville E. Noland, former Atlanta resident, and well known here died Saturday afternoon at Athens following a short illness. He had been working with the Central Georgia railway for 25 years, and was a conductor on a run between Atlanta and Savannah for the past 18 years. He was married to Mrs. Noland, who moved to Athens from this city several years ago. He was a member of the Order of Railroad Conductors, and was a member of the local lodge. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Emmet Hart, and Misses Emmie Lou and Mabel Noland, all of Athens, and two brothers, E. A. and E. B. Noland, and three sisters, Mrs. G. W. New York, June 28.—Definite steps toward urging the democrats to nominate a younger soldier as their vice presidential nominee were taken today at a caucus of former service men and women and representatives from 40 states attending the annual O. L. Bodenhorn, of Arkansas, the chairman, announced that the caucus would make no choice between the three or four service men who have been talked of for the place.

A resolution by C. G. Calhoun, of Texas, adopted unanimously, calling for the nomination of a vice presidential nominee who had fought in the war and peace-time record. Speakers declared that the nomination of General Charles G. Dawes by the republicans would be a "sell-out" to give a service man by the democrats to attract the soldier vote.

Mr. Bodenhorn said the convention platform committee had accepted all the suggestions of the service men except that calling for a universal military service plank.

ANNUAL AUTO OUTING PROVES BIG SUCCESS

The summer outing of the Atlanta Automobile association, recently held at Brookhaven Country club, terminates the general membership activities of the association for the summer. Unless something special arises there will be no general membership meetings of the association during July and August; in fact, the various departments of the association are not expected to hold membership meetings during these two hot summer months unless special circumstances require it.

For the next month or six weeks, while the Georgia legislature is in session, executive offices of the association will present a very busy scene. The Atlanta association is practically the only association of automotive dealers in Georgia that takes any active measures to protect the legislative interests of the automotive industry of this state, being the only organization of automotive dealers sufficiently influential to be able to handle matters of this kind effectively. A number of bills will probably be introduced at this session of serious concern to everyone engaged in the automobile business or any allied industry, and every effort will be put forth by the Atlanta Automobile association to see that the interests of users of automobiles, as well as the rights of the dealers, are protected.

The Atlanta association is made up of 160 members. Of these, 50 are

Who Will Get "No. 1" Of New Pierce-Arrow Model Is Answered

Whenever a motor car manufacturer introduces a new model, there always is considerable interest attached to the sale of the first one of the new models actually produced. When it became known recently that the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company is going to announce a moderately priced six-cylinder car this summer, the factory received many applications from persons who wanted the distinction of having the "No. 1" car.

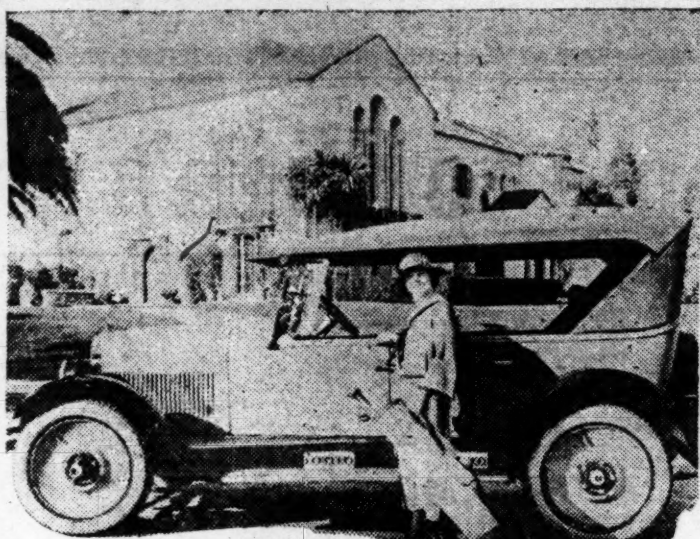

"We are sorry, but it will be impossible to grant any of these requests," said General Sales Manager L. E. Corcoran.

"The reason is that the first group of actual production models, or stock cars, was produced many months ago, and none of them will be sold. We built these cars under standard production conditions, for we wanted to test out actual stock cars rather than cars which had been hand-built in our experimental laboratory.

"This was a most unusual procedure, but it is in accord with the established Pierce-Arrow policy of never experimenting at the public's expense. In this way, we know that the new model, when it is announced, will be as perfect as we know how to build a Pierce-Arrow."

automobile dealers, representing 100 per cent of the automobile dealers of Atlanta, and the balance are allied trade lines, consisting of tire dealers, battery dealers, auto renovators, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers in accessories.

Popular Oakland Model

Above is the attractive true blue sport model Oakland touring that is on display at the Oakland Motor Car company's show rooms, located at 235-295 Spring street.

PRODUCTION OF FORDS REACHES 10,000,000

Announcement of production of the ten-millionth Ford car causes old-timers to recall the days when Fords could be counted by thousands instead of millions.

While seven years were required to build the first million Model T cars, only 132 working days were required for the last million. A striking feature in this record, however, is the fact that there has never been any deviation from the original principles underlying construction of the first Model T in 1908. The Ford Motor company was first to standardize on such fundamental engineering practices as three-point motor suspension, torque-tube drive and removable cylinder heads, all of which have since been generally adopted by the automobile industry. Even now, parts in Model T No. 1 could be replaced by the parts in No. 10,000,000.

And now the ten-millionth, so like and yet so unlike his elder brother No. 1, will be piloted over the Lincoln highway by Frank Kulick, who drove one of the first two Model T's to cross the continent, in 1909. Kulick, veteran race driver, made the first in 21 days, bringing his car to the Pacific coast one day after the other Ford car, which was the winner. Unimproved trails, for the most part, were met by the Fords in 1909 after leaving Chicago, and it was found necessary to pick up native guides and even with these precautions the cars were "lost" several times. Now the ten-millionth can hardly lose its way over the present well-posted route.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH TO MEET TODAY

During the months of July and August the time of the weekly meetings for the school of health will be changed from 3:30 to 4 o'clock and will be held as usual in Assembly Room No. 2, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, on Sunday afternoons.

At every session opportunity for consultation and free advice along lines of health and success can be obtained, it is stated.

Robert Bryan Harrison, director, will preside.

QUICK TIRE SERVICE

Friends of J. Frank Robinson, Jr., will be pleased to learn that he has returned from Jacksonville to take complete charge of the Quick Tire Service store, at 44 West Peachtree.

Mr. Robinson for many years has been connected with this store, where he has served in practically every capacity. Prior to being made manager of the Atlantic Tire Service, the Jacksonville branch of the Quick Tire System—where he has spent the past five months, Mr. Robinson served for two years as assistant manager of the Atlanta store.

Now that he has been returned as manager to Atlanta, Mr. Robinson states "that he intends to make this store the best in the country, and wishes to assure all his former friends and customers that they will be accorded every consideration and the best of courteous service at all times."

Harry Sommers, Inc., Has Secured Franchise For Maxwell-Chrysler

Harry Sommers, Inc., Spring and Hunnicutt streets, one of the leading automobile distributing concerns in Atlanta and this section, has secured the distributing franchise for Maxwell and Chrysler, and these lines have been added to the Packard, on which the company has built up an enviable reputation. This announcement will be of marked interest to Atlanta motorists by virtue of the large number of Maxwell and Chrysler owners here as well as the capacity and ability of the Harry Sommers organization for handling motor cars of proven worth.

Jack B. Eaves, retail sales manager of the organization, has been placed in personal charge of the new additions. He has been associated with fine cars during the entire extent of his automobile experience and his unusual ability coupled with a personality which compels friendship for Maxwell and Chrysler, and these lines have been added to the Packard, on which the company has built up an enviable reputation. This announcement will be of marked interest to Atlanta motorists by virtue of the large number of Maxwell and Chrysler owners here as well as the capacity and ability of the Harry Sommers organization for handling motor cars of proven worth.

Service facilities will be afforded Maxwell and Chrysler owners which have heretofore been reserved exclusively for those who drive Packards. An expansion of the service department necessary to meet the increased demands has been completed, and it is understood that this expansion is along the same lines which has made the Packard service in Atlanta a matter to boast of in other cities. It is the wish and endeavor of the Harry Sommers organization to get in touch with all Maxwell and Chrysler owners and acquaint them with facilities thus afforded in a personal manner.

The performance capabilities of the Chrysler have been one of the outstanding achievements of the present year. Atlanta owners have turned in reports which more than justify the extravagant rumors which preceded the car's introduction. The car demonstrates in an unbelievable fashion and its reception is amply illustrated in the production scale at the factory, which rose from a 25-car-per-day schedule to over 300 cars a day in less than six months. The Chrysler in Atlanta is a repetition of the Chrysler all over the country and Harry Sommers, Incorporated, is certain to make friends in every section where a Chrysler is owned or driven.

The popularity of the Maxwell is one of our present day business romances. Already Maxwell has grown to where it is considered one of the big "fleet jobs" of the country. Such concerns as Union Carbide and Carbon company, the Remington Arms Co., the Schaeffer Pen company, have standardized on the Maxwell. The New York fire department recently installed 25 Maxwells for the use of assistant chiefs. The city of Richmond, Va., is also standardizing on Maxwells. Thus it is that the acquisition of the Maxwell-Chrysler franchise means much to a healthy and aggressive organization like the new distributor.

The cotillon, once popular in this country, is being revived in England. A French airwoman made 212 loops with her plane in one hour 13 minutes.

GEORGIA-CAROLINA ROADS IMPROVING

Surfacing Completed From Gainesville to White Sulphur Hotel and Apartments.

BY O. J. WILLOUGHBY.
Franklin, N. C., June 28.—(Special.)—The path-finding party of The Constitution has covered practically every passable road in the Georgia mountain resort section east of Dahlonega and is rapidly completing logging and inspection of all routes in western North Carolina for the 1924 mountain resort road guide, to be distributed free at The Constitution's road bureau and at leading hotels, garages, filling stations, civic and commercial organizations throughout the mountain sections.

Roads in Georgia and North Carolina show considerable improvement. A number of the most troublesome spots last year have been rebuilt and surfaced. The road from Gainesville toward Clayton is considerably better than ever before. The particularly bad spot between Gainesville and White Sulphur hotel and apartments, just north of Gainesville, has been opened and is a splendid example of Georgia road building. The bad curves have been largely eliminated and the entire distance surfaced with crushed rock, making it all but perfect even when wet.

Construction has not been completed, however, as far as Lula, but will likely be completed before the close of the season.

The portion of the old road which is being used pending the opening of the new road is in good condition and can be made easily. Lula to Demorest has been surfaced practically all the way and is paved to Clarksville.

Clarksville to Franklin, though not rebuilt, was found in better condition than in previous years. Franklin to Bryson City has been scraped and surfaced in spots, and those who have been longing to take this most picturesque thirty-mile drive may do so safely any time this year.

The Gainesville-Cleveland route to Blairsville through Toccoa Gap is in excellent condition to Cleveland and better than formerly the remainder of the distance. Blairsville to Murphy is fair even when wet and can be made easily and rapidly when dry.

Blairsville to Hiwassee and Clayton is good when dry but owing to about four miles of uncompleted road and to the fact that it has not been surfaced, will be found difficult after extremely heavy or continued rains. The Roswell-Dawsonville to Dahlonega road has been completed except a few places where surfacing is now in progress. The Gainesville road to Dahlonega is in excellent condition from Gainesville.

TO MANAGE DUCO ENAMELING PLANT

FRANK R. BELL.

Of much interest to automobile owners throughout Georgia is the announcement in today's paper of the opening of a Duco enameling plant in Atlanta, located at 100 West Peachtree street, to serve local and surrounding territory.

Duco is a Dupont product, developed to meet the need of a permanent and beautiful automobile finish, and according to Charles F. Kettering, president of the General Motors Research corporation, who wrote in a recent article concerning needed automobile improvements, "We have the finish; you can leave your car standing outside all year; take the door out if you want to and scrub the finish with it, and it won't even scratch."

"Duco presents a smooth, even and lustrous finish with a great depth of color. Dust and even caked mud is easily removed from this new finish with a dry rag without harming the surface. Grease stains and road tar are as quickly removed without damage," states Manager Frank R. Bell. "We believe that at last we have the solution for automobile painting that is lasting and at the same time beautiful."

"In the past automobile factories have been compelled to put a finish identical to that of a piano on motor cars. Yet if anyone should place a piano in the weather and expect it to endure the elements, they would be considered insane."

"Duco has relieved us of all finish worries, and the wonderful reception given Duco finishes by the motoring public and its adoption for production of new cars by many of America's foremost automobile manufacturers is sufficient cause to warrant your consideration."

MOTORIST SHOULD HAVE 50-50 BREAK WITH PEDESTRIANS

Chicago, June 28.—(Special.)—"Fifty-fifty" is the percentage of blame in traffic accidents involving both motorists and pedestrians, according to experts' statistics cited by Richard E. Kropf, supreme agent of the Royal Arcanum, in a safety address here. In fact, the average analysis of an ordinary community places the pedestrians' fault at 50 per cent, the fraternalists declared. Some experts put it as high as 65 per cent.

"Pedestrians must be taught that they have joint responsibilities with the car driver," said Mr. Kropf, who has become recognized as an authority on safety through the Royal Arcanum's nationwide accident prevention campaign among its 1,300 councils in the United States and Canada. "The pedestrian must know the rules of the road as well as the driver. He must accustom himself to habits of watchfulness and alertness."

"Many pedestrians are killed and many more injured because they attempt to cross streets and roads in the dark without thinking whether or not they are visible to motorists. They step out from behind obstructions and off the sidewalks suddenly making it impossible for the driver to stop his car. In one large American city, 85 per cent of the accidents occurred at points other than street intersections. The state of Connecticut reported that 91 per cent of its traffic accidents were due to 'jaywalking'."

"Out of 102 motor vehicle accident deaths in San Francisco last year, 70 were pedestrians. The coroners' records show that only 17 or 24.3 per cent of these deaths were chargeable to the motorists."

"Educating the walking public is just as necessary as teaching the automobilists to recognize regulations. Many people, otherwise entirely careful and well-poised, still take all manner of chances while crossing a street. Their habit of mind has not changed since the days of horse-drawn vehicles."

Church To Open.

The new White Rock Baptist church, colored, at 237 Chapel street, will hold its opening exercises today at 2 o'clock. Revs. G. W. Luke and Taylor will deliver sermons. H. Davis, clerk, and Rev. C. L. Long, will be masters of ceremonies.

WOMEN OF SOUTH WILL BE HONORED IN BIG MEMORIAL

In recognition of services of women of the sixties, the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association announces that women who rendered service to the south during the civil war may be memorialized by children who enroll in the Children's Founder Roll of the great Confederate memorial at Stone Mountain. The names of the women so honored will be inscribed in the Book of Memory in the same manner as those of the veterans of the Confederacy.

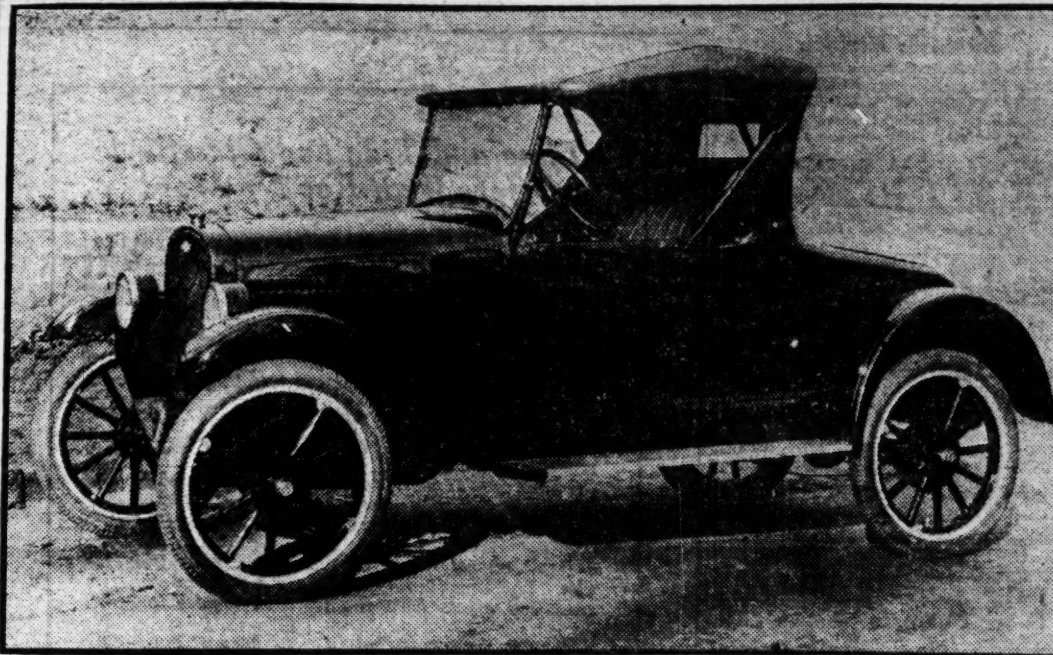

As practically every woman of the south rendered the class of service later known as "Home Service Work" this means that a large number of the women will be eligible for memorialization through the children's enrollment.

In many cases women rendered conspicuous service during the war between the states and secured for themselves an enviable place in the history of the period. Others participated in the nursing of the wounded, in making clothing for those at the front, in all the different phases of activity that went on behind the lines while the men fought and the women waited, worked and prayed. Announcement that the heroines of those times are to have a place in the world's greatest memorial is expected to please those who have requested the privilege of memorializing the women.

BIG 'FOURTH' PROGRAM READY FOR LAKEWOOD

Arrangements have been completed for a great Fourth of July celebration at Lakewood on Friday, and Secretary R. M. Striplin, of the Southeastern Fair association, states that everything possible is being done to insure the success of the occasion.

"Harness race events have all been filled and the entries published," Secretary Striplin said Saturday. "While lists for the auto races are not close for several days, entrants already number ten, all but one being from other cities. Atlanta has several drivers who are always willing to match brains and skill with any others in the south, and they are sure to be in the line-up on the track for the big day. In order to get all the events within a single afternoon it will be necessary to start the harness races at 12:30 o'clock."

"We are to have an unusual fireworks display this year," continued Mr. Striplin, "and this will last nearly an hour, beginning at 8 o'clock. We will make no charge for the grandstand. Added to the customary comic designs, patriotic pieces, rockers, bombs and star mines, it is our purpose to show large fire pictures of the democratic nominees for president and vice president, if the present convention in New York succeeds in making nominations in time."

URBAN LEAGUE WEEKLY BULLETIN

"As goes Atlanta, goes the south," is an often repeated statement that carries more truth than poetry. Other cities throughout the south are beginning to follow Atlanta's lead in the matter of Community Chest method of raising funds for the different social agencies. The citizens of Richmond, Va., are now making their final plans to launch their first Community Chest campaign and they are turning to Atlanta for their information respecting the interracial feature of the campaign.

Field Secretary Jesse O. Thomas left Friday afternoon for Toronto to attend the national conference of social workers. He goes by the way of Richmond at the invitation of the director of the Richmond Community Chest campaign to advise with them as to how Atlanta handled the interracial feature of its community chest effort. Field Secretary Jesse O. Thomas is to be the speaker at the conference dealing with negro social problems presided over by E. K. Jones, executive secretary of the National Urban League.

Through the cooperation of the state interracial committee, committee on church cooperation representing both white and colored Protestant churches, and the Atlanta and National Urban League, an additional matron has been employed at the police station, so that now there are two colored women matrons at the police station instead of one. They are on duty twelve hours each instead of one working 24 hours as was the case before another matron was secured.

Phillips Wheatly branch of the Y. M. C. A. has opened camp. All was in readiness. The truck left the branch, 196 Piedmont avenue, Tuesday morning, June 24, at 10 o'clock, for the first trip to Sunshine camp. On board were 14 girls comprising the first group. Those wishing to go for the second two weeks, beginning July 16, should mail or bring the registration fee of $1 to the branch within the next ten days.

The following activities will give an idea of how full the days will be: Revellie, setting up and flag raising, breakfast, inspection, discussion, religious and secular, recreation, group meetings, dinner, quiet hour, games, supper, camp fire and stunts, bugle, warning, taps, all in bed at 9:30 o'clock at night. There will be free periods during the day for handicraft and sewing. Weekend guests may spend Saturday and Sunday in camp for $1.50. Accommodations will be limited, so make your reservation early. VICTOR RECORDS FOR THIS WEEK PRESENT STARS

The present week's Victor records by the Flonzley quartet make up in some measure for the lapse since its last records were made. It was Platon's conception that in the rhythm of the universe was something kin to music, and this tenet subsequently inspired Rubinstein centuries later to compose his "Music of the Spheres" quartet for strings.

This record is "molto lento," the rich and mysterious slow movement, thoroughly in harmony with its conception. Technicovsky's scherzo from his "Quartet No. 3 in E Flat Minor" makes a fitting companion piece. Di Capua's entirely familiar and immensely popular Neapolitan street song, "Maria, Mari," has been sung so often that there is always an element of interest when another artist records it for the first time. This week it is a soprano, and a great one, who sings it—Rosa Ponselle. And with it she pairs a melody equally impassioned—"Carrie."

"Pale Moon" is a magnificent record by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra. "Fox Trot Classics," by Jean Goldkette and his orchestra, utilize the other side also remodels for the purpose two American melodies—Caldman's "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and McDowell's "To a Wild Rose."

"Big Boy" a fox trot by Ted Weems and his orchestra, and "Savannah," by the same organization, are splendid to hear.

The limit in dance humor may not have been reached, but "Wa-Wa-Wad-die Walk," which Waring's Pennsylvanians record this week pretty near qualifies. "Nobody's Sweetheart," by Charles Dornberger and his orchestra, on the other side, is some sob stuff in fox trots.

"Ad" Told the Story.

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs Will Deliver Series Of Three Sermons

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, of Oglethorpe university, has been invited to fill the pulpit of the Central Congregational church during the absence of the pastor, Dr. D. Witherspoon Dodge, on the last Sunday of June and the first two Sundays of July.

By special request he will preach a series of three sermons—having to do with the proper relationship of modern scientific discoveries to old-fashioned religion. The subject of the first sermon will be "Evolution of Heavens." The subject of the second, on the first Sunday of July, will be "Evolution of the Earth." The subject of the third, on the second Sunday in July, will be "The Evolution of Life."

The unfortunate utterances of some ill-advised defenders of the faith have disturbed the minds of a good many educated people as to the propriety of their remaining in the church, Dr. Jacobs says. It is largely in order to correct such misapprehensions and to aid lovers of science in harmonizing their knowledge with the old-fashioned religion that this series is being preached," he said.

BAPTIST MINISTERS WILL MEET MONDAY

Whether or not the Baptist ministers' conference of Atlanta will adjourn during the month of August will be decided at a meeting to be held Monday morning, it was announced Saturday.

At a recent meeting Rev. L. B. Crawford, of Edgewood Baptist church, was named president; Rev. Broadus E. Jones, of Oakland City Baptist church, was elected vice president, and Rev. R. K. Bedwine, of Jackson Hill Baptist church, was elected secretary. A committee was appointed at this meeting to arrange with other ministers' associations of the city for the simultaneous evangelistic campaign to be conducted during the spring of 1925. Rev. W. H. Faust, Rev. John F. Purser and Rev. S. H. Cowan were named on the committee.

ATLANTA ELK TRAIN TO LEAVE WEDNESDAY

With more than 150 members of Atlanta lodge already signed up for the trip, and indications that many more would make last-minute decisions to go, Atlanta's delegation to the annual meeting of the grand lodge of Elks in Boston, July 7 to 10, will leave the Terminal station next Wednesday afternoon.

A specially decorated train and a crew of Elks from firemen to the flagmen, has been provided by the Seaboard Air Line railway, which is handling transportation of the Atlanta party, and it has been announced that every engine that pulls the party will be specially decorated with the insignia of Atlanta lodge.

The party will be four days en route to Boston, stop-overs having been arranged at Richmond, Philadelphia and New York, and special entertainments have been provided for the party in Richmond and Philadelphia. In the latter city, the 4th of July will be spent, and the Quaker City lodge has made plans to show the Atlanta party a splendid time during the day and night.

The mayor and Richmond lodge of Elks also have made plans to show Atlanta a good time in Virginia's capital city. No plans have been made for Saturday and Saturday night in New York, delegates being allowed to spend the time there as they choose.

Judge L. F. McClelland, exalted ruler, will head Atlanta's delegation, while Ed F. Bond and Arthur I. May, who have had charge of all convention plans, will be in charge of the delegation in Boston. The party will be housed at the American house, which is just two blocks away from the Boston Elks' home and near the scene of convention headquarters.

It was announced Saturday that Atlanta's who desire to take the trip should make railroad reservations at the ticket office of the Seaboard, 18 Walton street, while hotel accommodations can be secured from Secretary "Tur" Broyles at the Elks' home on East Ellis street.

VOLPI IS IMPROVING FOLLOWING ACCIDENT

Signor E. Volpi, Atlanta voice teacher, who injured his hip several days ago while swimming, Saturday was reported as greatly improved. While Signor Volpi is unable to attend personally to his classes, Nora Allen, formerly of the Chicago Grand Opera company, is coaching his pupils during his absence from the studio in the Wesley Memorial church building.

TAX EQUALIZATION REPEAL IN SENATE

When the Georgia state senate convenes again Monday morning for its fourth day of the 1924 session, it will not be overburdened with immediate work.

For the first time in its history the upper house last Wednesday began a session with no legislation ready for action, and thus far has very little with which to occupy its attention. The senate seems to be waiting for the house of representatives to give it something to work on.

However, there are a few matters of legislation ready for consideration next week, the most important of these being the proposal to repeal the tax equalization law, which was passed by the house last session. This measure will come up in the senate for discussion Tuesday.

Another bill of local import which is scheduled for consideration next Wednesday is the Atlanta viaduct bill, which was ordered put back on the senate calendar Thursday at a session of the rules committee, and read for the third time in the upper house Friday. The measure calls for amendment to the charter of the city of Atlanta, permitting construction of viaducts over railroad tracks at Pryor street and Central avenue. It was passed by the house at its last session and was favorably reported on by the senate committee in whose hands it has been.

The only other business which has been announced ready to be taken up by the senate next week are two bills which were read for the third time in the senate Friday morning and deferred until Tuesday or Wednesday. These include a bill by Senator Hamby, of the 40th, to change the county line where a non-navigable stream forms the boundary.

Another is a constitutional amendment to consolidate offices of tax receivers and tax collectors. Consideration of this has been set for Tuesday.

WEDEMEYER'S BAND AT LAKEWOOD TODAY

Wedemeyer's Concert band will entertain at Lakewood park Sunday afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock. The program follows:

March, "Our Country First." Unsubdued waltz, "Fox and Peasant." Ragtime, "Lords and Ladies." Salzer selection, "Daughter of the Regiment." Duet, fox trot, "Linger Awhile." Boss serenade, "Andalusian." Bonnet intermission, Chilian dance, "Mamma." Minuet waltz, "Mia Tannen." Klezmer fox trot, "Somewhere in the World." Aye! selection, "The Sho-Gun."
